Billie Burke Returns to Stage—The Jordan Mott Elopers Located in California.

Miss Billie Burke (Mrs. Florence Ziegfeld, jr.) returns to the stage this week at Washington after an absence of a few years and will star in "Caesar's Wife," the new comedy which has proven a winner in London. Mrs. Ziegfeld has been devoting the bulk of her time since even before the war to the most important little person in the world, that wonderful daughter of hers who already displays marked dramatic ability. Mrs. Ziegfeld has been rehearsing faithfully, and reports agree in declaring her a more interesting stage figure than ever.

Mrs. Frances Hewitt Browne, the former society matron of Flushing, who startled society when she cleared out a few years ago with young Jordan L. Mott, grandson of the multi-millionaire, has been located accidentally at Avalon, Catalina island, near Los Angeles, where she and Mott are living. He runs a motor boat for excursionists and the identification was made by a New Yorker. Mott cut quite a dash in his youth his first wife being a South Braintree girl. When Mrs. Browne and he fled to Japan his folks sent a man after him, but he disappeared and for five years has had to earn what money he has spent, despite his great inheritance.

Miss Susan Thorn Knapp, of New York, 60 years old, married her cousin, William R. Thorn rich manufacturer and 87 years old, last week when he was supposed to be on his death bed. The wedding was a formality to conserve his big estate. The doctors had begun to figure up their bills and undertakers were speculating on a fine funeral. Just to show 'em that a real Yankee is never dead until he's buried the old gentleman concluded life still has its attractions and that he'd fooled with medicine and double pneumonia long enough. He called for a man's breakfast and says he's got a lot of work ahead of him. The doctors say he will get well.

FASHION NOTES.

I one respect is the young girl of this season dressed as her mother was eighteen or twenty years ago. She wears as her mother did then, chiffon and gauze and net scarfs stamped about with flowers, boarderwise. The newest scarfs are seemingly exact duplicates of those women used to wear a score of years ago. They are pretty, too, but not quite so much in keeping with the tone of modernity as are the long swirls of bright colored tulle that seems to be there alternative. Sometimes these tulle scarfs, very wide, are held in at the ends with interesting tassels of barbaric colored beads.

One of the new hand bags looks like a squat little old lady in a very bouffant skirt, fringed about the lower edge. That is, the bag has such a squat, plump silhouette that one can't help thinking of a little old lady.

The two plumed fans are charming. They are made simply of two big, slightly curled plumes—curled just enough so that each frond curves gracefully toward the end. They come, of course, in the usual vivid evening shades—turquoise, orange, flame—as well as in the daintier pinks and blues, lavenders and yellows that always charm in the evenings.

A panel of light shade—beige or gray—up the front or some of the laced black kid boots of the moment

Transferred to Fredericton

Major S. S. Wetmore, who for some time has been attached to the staff of military headquarters at St. John has been transferred to Fredericton, where he will act as assistant to Major W.R. Caldwell who is assistant director of the department of soldiers' civil re-establishment at that place. Major Wetmore has been deputy assistant adjutant and quartermaster-general for Military District No. 7 for the last few years except for the time that he was assistant adjutant-general, in the absence of Lieutenant-Colonel A. H. H. Powell, who was in Siberia for some time. The office of D. A. A. and Q. M. G. is to be eliminated from this district, so there will be no successor to Major Wetmore.

Mr. Carl A. Duffy of Chipman is registered at the Barker.

adds distinction to them and gives an interesting trimming line and color contrast.

Flowered silk umbrellas in flowered silk umbrella sheaths are sold in some of the smart shops. They are a pretty note on a rainy day.

Steel rings are used on some of the new suits in such a way that they suggest a steel chain. They are not actually linked, but each is lapped over the next to it, so that the appearance of a chain is given.
