PRINCE OF WALES TAKES LEAVE OF THE DOMINION

His Royal Highness in Speech at Halifax Expresses Appreciation of What Has Been Done for Him During His Tour of Canada—State Dinner at the Halifax Club—Will Sail for England on the Renown This Afternoon.

Halifax, Nov. 24—Promising to return to Canada soon, and to return often, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, took official leave of the Dominion tonight, in a speech which overflowed with the royal appreciation of all that has been done during his tour of the country. The speech was delivered at a state dinner given this evening at the Halifax Club, by the federal government, the pen-ultimate function of his royal highness' last full day in Canada. Following the dinner the prince danced to his heart's content at a ball given at Government House. At noon tomorrow the prince will lay the corner stone of a development which will preserve as a landmark, the ancient town clock, erected by the Duke of Kent, upwards of one hundred years ago, and at sunset the Renown will sail for England. Golf and a luncheon aboard the cruiser will occupy the remainder of the day.

Yesterday's Programme

The Renown arrived at Halifax shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. At 10.45 the governor-general went aboard to pay his respects and his excellency was followed an hour later by the lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia. After luncheon aboard, his royal highness came ashore for a game of squash at Artillery Park and later attended the tea dansant, given by Mrs. Charles Archibald. From this function the prince walked a half mile to Government House where he changed into ordinary evening dress. He arrived at the Halifax Club for the state dinner a few minutes after 8 o'clock. A huge crowd had assembled in Hollis street and the approach of the car bearing the royal guest was the signal for a tremendous outburst of cheering. For a few seconds he stood at the top of the steps and waved his hat to the delighted throng.

The state dinner was a brilliant affair. Only two speeches were made throughout the evening, that of Sir Robert Borden, and a brief address by his royal highness. The prince spoke as follows:

The Prince's Speech

"Your Excellency, Sir Robert Borden and Gentlemen:

"It is with the greatest regret that I bid a temporary farewell to Canada to night, after three months tour which I can never forget. It has meant much more to me than I can properly express, and I shall only attempt to say a few words tonight, but I want you all to know that I feel much more than I can say.

"This, my first visit to Canada, has done two things for me which will influence the whole of my life. In the first place, Canada has given me such wonderful welcomes throughout my travels, all the way across the Dominion from Halifax to Vancouver and back, she has shown me such kindness and hospitality she has in fact so thoroughly spoiled me, that I have been feeling more and more at home all the time. The result is that I am not only intensely Canadian now, but that I shall feel a Canadian all the rest of my life, and shall never be happy if too many months elapse without a visit to the home on this side of the Atlantic.

"The other great thing which this first visit has done for me, is to give me a thorough understanding of all that Canada stands for on the North American continent. I realized that pretty fully before I left Ottawa a fortnight ago, but I realize it even more fully now since my visit to the United States. You are the guardians of British institutions upon this continent and your development as a nation of increasing power and influence will be one of the most important factors in determining relations between the British Empire and the United States.

"This wonderful journey through the Dominion has meant so much to me that I appreciate in the fullest degree the wisdom of what you, Sir Robert, said just now about the value of constant personal intercourse. Nothing can go wrong with the British empire if all nations maintain this intercourse and understand each others standpoint.

"Feeling all this very strongly, I also appreciate most deeply what Sir Robert has said about the value of a close understanding between the sovereign and his people throughout the empire, and I can assure you that no one feels this more keenly than the King. The King's feelings in this respect need I think, no explanation from me in view of the fact that he has sent me on this four months' journey this year in spite of my four years' absence from the Old Country during the war.

"I think that I need not reassure you either on my own behalf for I mean to see as much of the dominions as of Great Britain. You will notice that I have not used the word 'good-bye' and I do not intend to use it, because I hope to return to Canada soon and to return often. But I mean my future visits to be less formal. I want to travel as you travel, Sir Robert—like a Canadian in his own country, and not as an extra special visitor who may never turn up again.

"But at the conclusion of this more or less official tour, during the whole of which the dominion government has looked after me with such kindness and hospitality, I must thank you, Sir Robert, and all your government, for the generous care which you have taken of me and for all that you have done for me and for my staff.

"I hope that you reciprocate in some degree my strong desire to be in Canada again soon and as often as possible,—au revoir."

ANITA STEWART

THE ROMANCE OF BEAUTIFUL AMY FORRESTER, daughter of wealth, swept from society's glitter by strong Andrew Forrester—then left to play while he, in distant Colorado, struggled for wealth to place her in the glowing setting he felt her beauty deserved.

"But no, Andrew," she pleads tearfully, "take me with you."

"I couldn't work so hard nor so fast with you beside me," he replied. "I want you to play for both of us while I am away at work. I want men to admire you too; I shall glory in your triumphs."

As the months passed, Andrew slaved and Amy played with other men as he had willed—holding herself a virtuous wife according to society's code.

Then came a sinister warning to absent Andrew, the anonymous poison of another woman's venom planted a barb into his trusting heart that brought him back to Amy—and then—then, then Andrew's soul accused hers.
