

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION

Moncton, Dec. 5.—The Moncton police early this afternoon arrested Coleman Bannister, residing at the corner of St. George and Botsford streets, on suspicion of being one of the parties who took the sixteen black foxes from the ranch of Mr. C. P. Munro at Petcodiac, and slaughtered the same for the sake of the pelts. A second party is suspected of being connected with the matter, but has not yet been arrested.

A Fredericton Party

St. Croix Courier: The store in the Moore building on Water street lately vacated by A. Hannan is undergoing alterations for occupancy next spring by a Fredericton party who will establish a clothing and gents' furnishing business. Excavation is being made for a basement and the floor will be built on a level with the new pavement.

SHOPPING IN RUSSIA VERY COSTLY

Economic Chaos Makes Long Tours Necessary—Wives Away From Home Over a Week.

Novorissk, South Russia, Dec. 3.—When a housewife in south Russia leaves on a shopping trip she takes a travelling bag along. Because to make an economical success of it she may have to be gone a week and cover fifty miles of territory.

Conditions in a few of the larger cities which Denekin has wrested from the Bolsheviks are becoming fairly stabilized, but in hundreds of the smaller villages the utmost economic chaos prevails. Prices very widely in different towns and the rouble never has the same value in two adjoining villages. So the thrifty housekeeper buying a week's supply of potatoes or firewood, or seeking cloth for the children's clothes, journeys from town to town seeking the best bargains. The high cost of living is just as much a burning question in south Russia as it is in America, but reliable information on the costs of commodities is not nearly so definite.

Rumors of all sorts are bandied about. A traveller arrives in one town and announces that the price of potatoes is two roubles cheaper in the next village. The economical housewives set out for the designated town.

Upon arrival they are likely to find that the price of commodities is even higher than in their own town. But there are always plenty of "straight tips" on the other places further on. So the women journey on, travelling by train, ox-cart or on foot, according to the facilities available, seeking the best prices in a territory covering, perhaps fifty miles.

A week's shopping tour is considered a success if a few roubles are saved. But the mere physical strain of this heavy competition in economy has been the cause of a great deal of illness, and the American Hospital at Ekaterinodar has a number of patients who are listed by the doctors as victims of economical shopping tours.

Never put off until tomorrow what you should have done yesterday.

A VISIT FROM SALLIE SAUNDERS

What could Sallie Saunders want of me?

I was sure she wanted something, for no press of sympathy or circumstances could ever make her do anything except to satisfy her own selfishness.

I was sorry I had promised to see her, for as I went down the stairs I was fairly frightened by the great anger and hate that surged through me. My cheeks were burning and my eyes smarting with the terrible emotion. I felt that I must be very careful or I would hurt her physically. It seemed to me that physical pain was all she could understand.

But when I opened the door, and she came forward to meet me, I knew I was mistaken.

She was a wreck of her former self. Her face drawn, her eyes seemed almost lifeless and her closely shut mouth, with its thin, drooping lips, was devoid of color. She was thin almost to emaciation, and her hands trembled so that she tried to steady them by clasping them together. For a moment we stood staring at each other, and then she said in her old impatient manner, "Don't look at me like that, Margot. It is impossible for me to hurt you any more even if I wished to do so."

"I am glad to hear you acknowledge that you have knowingly hurt me," I answered coldly, although the sight of her colorless face, from which her great dark eyes stared despairingly, calmed me greatly. Do not think for a moment that I am remorseful, she exclaimed quickly. "Or that I would do differently if I had it to live over again, for I wouldn't."

I looked at her in amazement. "You poor woman," I murmured involuntarily.

"Yes, that is it," she interrupted. "I am a poor woman, but only poorer in a degree than you. Every soul that is born into the form of a woman is the subject of pity, some more than others."

"Did you come here to tell me this?" I asked.

"No, but the sight of you, so sunny and self-satisfied, brought the thought to my lips. You think you are perfectly happy now that you know your husband did not kill my father, but let me tell you, Margot, you have never known the great joy that life can give, and God help me, I know you have not probed grief to its depths."

"Today, Sallie, with my father lying dead in the next room, it almost seems as though I am dropping the line of life pretty far down in that depth of grief which you know so well. I want to tell you, though, that I always knew Theo did not kill your father."

"How did you know it?" she asked suddenly.

"Because it was impossible for anyone whom I loved as I love Theo to do a dastardly deed to someone who had never hurt him."

So you think because you love Theo Symone he could do no ill, do you, Margot? Women have loved murderers before now. Could you be one of those women?"

"I do not know. Why do you ask me that question?"

"Then you have never really loved. Love is not based on goodness nor badness. Just to convince you that you do not know what love is—what the meaning of the word is—Margot, I will tell you something."

"I was sure that Emil Baur killed my father until yesterday when that man confessed, but I loved him so that I believe I could have gone to him and kissed the blood stains from his hands."

"When I found that he had been with my father that night I was sure he had killed him. I knew Theo had been with Dad and had had some harsh words with him, and I immediately saw how easy it would be to turn suspicion on him."

"I do not think that I really intended it would go to the very end, for I was sure that Theo could clear himself, but by implicating him this way it would give Emil time to get away. That was the reason I feigned illness."

"Mrs. Chadwick Hatton was wonderful to me, and I knew she would be loyal about any sick-room secrets I might tell."

"You could tell by that woman's face that she had lived and loved. Strange that her life and mine should have touched. She is a great woman. Chad Hatton is lucky, for she loves him."

A SICKLY WIFE NO FIT MATE FOR ANY MAN

GIRLS AND WOMEN SHOULD LOOK WELL TO THEIR HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Never before was physical health and vigor so highly esteemed and so eagerly sought for as today.

No man finds happiness in a sickly wife, and the woman who wishes to enjoy the pleasures of life should spare no effort to maintain perfect health.

Is your daughter growing up strong and sturdy? Has she strength to drink in greedily all the pleasures that youth so zealously seeks—or is she compelled to use the street car instead of enjoying the delightful exercise of walking—does she after the ball arise refreshed and vigorous, or is she exhausted, indifferent, and perhaps irritable?

When strength and vigor can be so easily maintained by Ferrozone, when the glow of health is so quickly brought to the cheeks and elasticity to the step, it is plainly a mother's duty to see that Ferrozone is on hand to assist her daughter back to health.

Upon the wake of Ferrozone quickly follows a stream of rich, nourishing blood which imparts that power and surplus energy so earnestly desired by those in ill-health.

Stop and think what this means for your daughter—certainly a great deal, and it can be accomplished by Ferrozone.

Every growing girl and young woman derives enormous benefit in many ways from this nutritive, vitalizing tonic.

It is specially suited for young women and is a guarantee of health and regularity as long as it is used.

Ferrozone is free from alcohol and perfectly safe to use. Prepared in the all dealers, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co. of a chocolate-coated tablet and sold in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FROM A CHILD WAS CONSTIPATED

According to the best medical authorities, fully three-fourths of the people of the civilized world suffer in some form from costiveness or irregular action of the bowels. There is no doubt that many distressing diseases are caused by constipation. It gives rise to sick and bilious headaches, indigestion, heartburn, floating specks before the eyes, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness and the painful, troublesome piles. Therefore, it is of supreme importance to health that the bowels be kept regular. Simple food, fruit, etc. should be used, and rich food and stimulants of all kinds avoided. This, with the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills to regulate and establish healthy action of the bowels cannot fail to give permanent relief in the most obstinate cases.

Mrs. Letitia Wainman, Orilla, Ont., writes: "From a child I was always very badly constipated, and I can well remember when quite young, my mother giving me senna tea nearly every morning, and I got to dread it. After taking Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a while I am no troubled with constipation any more."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a trial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
