VIEWS OF GERMAN LEADERS ARE NOW BEING RECALLED

What the Peace Terms Would Have Been Like Had Germany Won the War—Hun Statesmen are Now Wringing Their Hands and Talking About the Brutality of the Allies—The Ex-Kaiser's Viewpoint.

Those who can find anything to laugh at in the war should laugh now. This is the time. Germany's leaders, with few exceptions, are expressing their horror at the conditions of peace. They say this is not peace but an indefinite continuation of the war. They assure themselves and others that the terms are impossible, and that they will merely make certain a great German war of revenge in the future instead of ushering in an era of brotherhoods. It is interesting to contrast these lamentations with the exultations of two or three years ago and read what Germany's spokesmen declared would be the terms inflicted up on the Allies when the Central Powers had triumphed. There was no fear then expressed that the seeds of a future war would be sown; there was no apprehension that France would be undertaking another war of revenge. Of course, these were the views of the Junkers and the army leaders. What the present outfit of supposed democrats would have proposed in the way of peace terms can only be conjectured, and since there were no democrats in Germany worth speaking of until Germany had been thoroughly defeated, we can only suppose that if Ebert, Schiedemann and Erzberger had been in control of affairs and were making a German peace it would have been just such a peace as the Kaiser would have desired.

Indeed we have Erzberger's views on record and the Herr Matthias is one of the loudest objectors to the Allies' conditions, he declared in 1914 for sovereignty over Belgium, possession of the Channel Islands, the mines of Alsace-Lorraine, and the founding of a German Empire in Africa.

"Germany in the first place cannot tolerate the presence on her frontiers of so-called neutral states insufficiently strong to preserve their neutrality, or which do not want to remain neutral," said Erzberger. "Her second aim must be to free herself from the insupportable leading strings of England on all questions of world policy. In the third place, she must break up the Russian colossus. Consequently Germany must have sovereignty not only over Belgium but the French coast from Dunkirk to Boulogne and possession of the Channel Islands. She must also take the mines in French Lorraine and create an African German empire by annexing the Belgian and French Congos, British Nigeria, Dahomey and the French West Coast.

"In fixing indemnities the actual capacity of a state at the moment should not be considered. Besides a large immediate payment, annual instalments spread over a long period could be arranged. France would be helped in making them by decreasing her budget of naval and military appropriations, the reduction to be imposed in the peace treaty being such as would enable her to send substantial sums to Germany. Indemnities should provide for the repayment of the full costs of the war, and the damages of war, notably in East Prussia; the redemption of all of Germany's public debt and the creation of a vast fund for incapacitated soldiers."

William Hohenzollern frequently gave his ideas of what sort of peace would be satisfactory to Germany, and his utterances may be used against him when he is brought to trial by the allies. His memorable first reference to the British army is worth recalling. He, in an order issued in Belgium to his commanders, said, "It is my royal and imperial command that you concentrate your energies for the immediate present on one single purpose—that is that you address all your skill and all the valor of my soldiers to exterminate first the treacherous English, and walk over Gen. French's contemptible little army. The word 'exterminate' is worth nothing. On Christmas 1914, in a speech at German General Headquarters, the ex-All Highest said, "We are on hostile ground. The point of our sword is directed against the enemy, our hearts to our God. We say as once the Great Elector did, 'Down with all enemies of Germany, Amen.' Addressing troops starting for the front he remarked, "Remember that the German people are the chosen of God. On me as German Emperor, the spirit of God has descended; I am His weapon, His sword, and His Vice-Regent. Woe to the disobedient. Death to cowards and unbelievers!"

In March, 1915, Rudolph Martin, former Minister of the Interior, declared that Germany would demand an indemnity of from thirty to thirty-seven billion dollars, absorb Belgium and her Congo colony, cut off a slice of France, hand over Serbia to Austria, and give Egypt and the Suez Canal to Turkey. Six great German associations representing farmers, merchants, mechanics and manufacturers urged the necessity of annexing Belgium and seizing all the coal and iron mines of France. For the sake of Germany's existence it was necessary to weaken France, both economically and politically. It also demanded that the Allies should pay the full costs of the war, "and provide for the renewal and further development of armaments." It insisted that the most important business undertakings of France should be transferred to German ownership. France to recompense the owners, and added "A peace that has not these results will render new struggles inevitable at an early date, but with the chances much less favorable to Germany."

A STOWAWAY WAS FOUND ON AIRSHIP R-34

Mineola, July 6—If the British dirigible carried a "brig" this "brig" probably would have been occupied on the airship's voyage across the Atlantic, for six hours after he had left East Fortune, Major Scott, commander of the R-34, discovered he had aboard a real stowaway.

"His name is W. W. Ballantyne and he lives in Cromwell, England," said Major Scott in making known on his arrival here that airships are just as attractive to stowaways as regular ocean liners.

"At one time he was a member of our crew, but when we completed arrangements for the trip it was decided not to take him on board for various reasons which I do not wish to disclose at this time.

When he was discovered, of course we couldn't drop him off, so we put him to work, and he did his share of the work on the voyage. He will not make the return trip, but will be left here. In the near future, I expect, he will be formally court-martialled, but I do not think he will be subjected to any severe punishment."

Ballantyne said: "I was sore when they told me that I could not go along and instead of getting off the dirigible I stowed away between gas bags six and seven. I foraged some food and water, and intended to remain there until the end of the trip, unobserved I hoped.

"But I was out of luck. I took sick—I guess I was the only man aboard who was sick on the entire trip. I remained stowed away until I was on the point of becoming delirious from fever. I then had to give myself up. They looked after me in fine shape,

PALE CHEEKED WOMEN TOLD ABOUT RESTORING A ROSY COMPLEXION

A few years ago the girl with pale, drawn cheeks scarcely knew what to do in order to restore her fading appearance. At that time there was no blood-food medium made that really would put color and strength into systems that were more or less worn out.

Today it's different. The blood can be quickly nourished, can be made rich, red and healthy. All you have to do is to take two Freezone Tablets with a sip or two of water after meals. The effect is almost magical.

Mothers, look at your children. Are they ruddy and strong—do they eat and sleep well, or are they pale, weak, and anaemic?

FERROZONE will rebuild them. Take your own case—is your blood strong and rich? Have you that old-time strength and vigor, or are you somewhat under the weather?

FERROZONE will supply the strengthening elements you require. It is a blood-forming nourishing tonic that makes every ailing person well.

FERROZONE is a marvellous remedy, it contains in concentrated form certain rare qualities that especially fit it in cases of anaemia, poor color, thin blood, tiredness, and loss of weight.

Every day you put off using FERROZONE you lose ground. Get it today, sold in 50 cent boxes by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhzone Co., Kingston, Ont.

and brought me about again in a couple of days.

"I don't know what they intend to do with me, that's up to Commander Scott—but I am not worrying. The big thing for me is that I made that trip, and here I am."
