WAR INVENTIONS.

The Westminster Gazette urges that some serious effort be made, while the evidence is available, to collect and record all the mechanical inventions and scientific experiments made during the war which are likely to be of value for peace purposes. The experience in the air records itself, and undoubtedly it takes first place. But innumerable experiments have been made in developing such things as "tanks," which should have a positive value in ordinary life. Nothing could be more valuable in certain parts of the world than a serviceable form of heavy transport which was independent of roads. That is a positive novelty, which ought certainly to be preserved and developed. The motor industry has had an enormous output in the war, but, so far as disclosed, it has achieved nothing which can be called a discovery; and the other great development of the war, that of the submarine, has little obvious utility for peace purposes. Underwater transport is slower, more dangerous, more expensive and infinitely more disagreeable than above water, and if it were banished from the world there would apparently be no loss to set against the gain.

In some ways the most striking scientific work of the war has been in the chemical and bacteriological laboratories, which have not only produced explosives of incredible power and poison gas of incredible virulence, but have discovered antidotes and prophylactics of high value, and pursued lines of research to most important conclusions. It is to be hoped that we shall be able to dispense with the explosives and the poisons, but the chemists of the world should be able to pool their other results to the great advantage of mankind in general.

Telegraph: The Standard just now professes to be worried about the selection of a local government ticket here. To secure strong and representative candidates in support of the Foster administration will not be difficult; but the opposition's record, from Mr. Flemming's day down to the end of the Murray-Baxter regime, ought to make it exceedingly difficult to persuade men of good standing to accept that party's nomination unless proof of honest efforts at reform are first forthcoming, beginning with the repudiation of the gentlemen under whose leadership the party deservedly fell into so great disrepute.

The itinerary of R. H. R. the Prince of Wales is briefly set forth by Reuter's as follows: Leaving on August 5th, the Prince crosses the Atlantic to St. Johns, Nfld., and from there goes to St. John, N. B.; visits to Halifax, Charlottetown and up the St. Lawrence to Quebec follow. The Prince will leave the Renown at Quebec and proceed overland to Toronto, where he will visit the exhibition. Ottawa will next be visited, where the Prince will lay the foundation stone of the new tower for the Parliament Buildings. North Bay and Lake Nipissing will be the next objective and thence the Prince goes to Cobalt, where he will visit the silver mines, and to Timmins where he will inspect a gold mine.

An Indian fisherman in a Rangoon, Hospital was fishing along the shore recently when he caught a small fish. His basket being a short distance away, he put the head of the fish in his mouth and closed his teeth on it while he was rebaiting his hook. The fish slipped into his throat, and in struggling to escape got stuck there. The fisherman was hurried into the hospital, where an incision was made and the fish removed just in time to save the patient from choking to death.

The London Times in the descriptive account of the victory procession in London on Saturday says: "A shout of something like relief welcomed the Canadian contingent organized at the last moment, after the announcement that it could not be assembled. Canada could not properly be missing from the gallant company, and the whole empire would be sorry for the lapse."

room. Next morning Mrs. FitzRandolph and Mrs. Chestnut registered at the Prince William Apartments. Liquor was brought in by Mrs. Chestnut. Bridge was played later on a certain night. He had one drink. Mrs. Chestnut and Mrs. FitzRandolph were drinking whiskey and beer. Both women were under the influence of liquor. Witness from time to time did not go into Mrs. FitzRandolph's bedroom. Once she went to bath room to draw water he accompanying her. All three ladies, Miss Tingley included were fully dressed. Witness went to bed after the party broke up. Before retiring he heard no call from Mrs. FitzRandolph's room and did not turn his light out in answer. He did not see Mrs. FitzRandolph until dawn next morning. A knocking and calling at the door awakened him. He found Mrs. FitzRandolph at the door dressed as she was the night before. She was intoxicated and could give no coherent account of herself. He tried to get some sense in her and finally led her by the arm downstairs. No familiarity took place. Mrs. Chestnut's statement that Mrs. FitzRandolph spent the night in his room was absolutely false. At no time did improper conduct ever take place between himself and Mrs. FitzRandolph.

Cross Examined

Cross examined by Mr. Teed the witness said that his acquaintance with Mrs. FitzRandolph was entirely casual, no more than it was with Miss Tingley. He would not say that he saw a great deal of Mrs. FitzRandolph. He did not go about with her with no other person in the party. He never caressed or kissed her, nor she him. He had learned from Miss Tingley that Mrs. FitzRandolph was coming from Fredericton on the occasion he had referred to previously.

Pressed with regard to evidence given by him at a previous trial witness said he had spoken to Mrs. FitzRandolph at the Royal Hotel by telephone. He went to the Royal afterward. Mrs. FitzRandolph did not reproach him because he had not met her at the station. His recollection of events was not clear. With regard to the bridge party he was positive Mrs. Chestnut drank both whiskey and beer. He believed he handed the drinks to her.

Mr. Teed stated that his former evidence was to the effect that witness and Mrs. FitzRandolph had not gone into the hall because there were no seats there. Witness said his recollection was hazy. There were lively exchanges between witness and Mr. Teed at times when discrepancies in evidence were pointed out. Witness denied that Mrs. FitzRandolph had any reason to expect him at the railway station in St. John.

Every man sighs for a perfect woman; but if he ever found one she would have to pretend to have lots of little faults, defects and weaknesses for him to "correct" in order to make him happy.

APPEAL FOR SUPPORT

Dear Mr. Editor,—

I most earnestly wish to enlist the sympathy and practical assistance of readers of your paper in the work I am engaged in as chaplain of this military district which embraces the whole province. I beg of you, therefore the courtesy of sufficient space for this little letter.

Mine is largely hospital work, visiting and looking after sick and wounded soldiers in the county hospital, East St. John, the D. S. C. R. hospital West St. John, the Jordan Sanatorium near Petitcodiac, and the Military Hospital at Fredericton.

My notion of a Padre's duty is that he should concern himself with the physical and intellectual as well as with the spiritual. All the years I served our lads overseas I did all in my power for the pleasure and comfort of mind and body and made this practical ministry of enormous assistance in reaching the spiritual. I have always been able to supply such things as smokes, reading matter, writing materials, outings for the crippled and any special thing a lad may especially require. I have come to regard this material and practical ministry as second only to the spiritual and instrumental in opening hearts and minds for the latter. To all who agree with me I extend a hearty, nay, a pressing invitation to help me, by sending me contributions for my beloved "Sick and Wounded Soldiers' Fund." This fund made a glorious reputation for itself and for the kindness of hosts of generous people in New Brunswick, who by their gifts made my ministry overseas a ministry of wonderful benefit, cheer and comfort to our gallant lads in their sufferings and during their stay in hospital. We are all one—absolutely no denominational differences known or recognized. Every Saturday and Sunday my address is "The Barker House," Fredericton, at all other times, 143 Duke Street, St. John.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your courtesy and anticipating from your readers a prompt and willing response I am yours faithfully,
E. B. HOOPER, C.F.,
Major, Chaplain or "Padre"
