

HOW A PERSIAN PROFESSOR WAS ROBBED BY A YOUNG MARRIED PAIR

London, Sept. 25.—Mr. G. H. Darab Khan, a Persian professor at the University of London, resides with a merchant friend at a flat in Southwold-mansions, Witley-road, Maida Vale.

He prosecuted a well-dressed young married couple Hubert Charles and Josephine Launspach, of Howland street, Tottenham court-road, at Marylebone.

His allegation was one of breaking into his flat and stealing a trunk, attache case, cloth, two overcoats, and a number of documents valued at £45. The police described the case as one of flat-breaking with a stolen key.

Mr. Darab Khan said the woman was known to him as Miss Marie Pettite. About eighteen months ago he was going down Oxford street with the University colors in his hat when she stopped him.

She asked him if they had met at the Imperial Club. They became friends and she asked his permission to call at his flat, as she was anxious to obtain news of someone at the club.

She called in his absence and left a note. While his maid was preparing tea she called again, and remained with him and his friend until eleven o'clock at night.

After she had gone he missed the key of the flat from a tray in the drawing-room. Next afternoon he went out to keep an appointment at the Legation, returning several hours later.

Shortly before midnight he missed his attache case, which contained a cut diamond and important documents while his friend, Mr. Aziz Ollah, missed a trunk containing 2,300 Russian War Bonds, bank drafts, and other documents worth at least £600.

The female prisoner interrupting, said she did not steal the key. She intended to return it, but her husband took it away when she went home.

She returned to Mr. Darab Khan's flat for dinner and he asked her about the missing key. But she could not tell him that her husband had it, because he did not know she was married.

Prosecutor said it was true she called and she told him that she did not know where the key was.

Magistrate: Did she say she was married?—No; she always called herself Miss Marie Pettite.

The male prisoner denied that there was a diamond in the attache case, but admitted that there were documents. He said they were returned by post.

Mrs. Launspach denied all knowledge of the matter, and said it was all strange to her. The man agreed that she knew nothing about it, and said he went to the flat and obtained the things.

After they had been remanded, the prisoners were again brought before the Court.

Asked who prepared it, he replied "It is in my handwriting." When the plan was shown to his wife, however, she said she had prepared it, adding, "My husband made me."

Prisoners were committed for trial to the Central Criminal Court, the woman being admitted to bail.

SEA CAPTAIN AND TWO SONS CONVICTED

New York, Sept. 29.—Convicted of cruelty toward members of the crew of the American barkentine Puako, Captain Adolf O. Pedersen, and his two sons, Leonard and Adolperic, Mates on the same vessel were sentenced by Federal Judge Jack today. Pedersen to 18 months in Atlanta Penitentiary and his sons to six months in a local prison. They were released on bail pending appeal.

The Pedersens were arrested at Capetown, South Africa by order of the United States Consul-General on complaints of the crew after the Puako had completed a voyage to that port from Victoria, B. C. They were brought back here for trial and were first tried on a charge of murder, being accused of having refused to try to save a sailor who, their accusers swore had jumped overboard to escape further brutalities. They were acquitted on this charge.

PHYSICIAN CANED BY LOVE CRAZY WOMAN

London, Sept. 25.—The Hon. Mrs. Emmeline Stuart Henley, of Finchley road, who was summoned for attacking and threatening Dr. J. Warren Davis, of Dorset Square, appeared again at Marleybone Police Court.

Dr. Davis said that he declined to attend Mrs. Henley because she became an intolerable nuisance to him. She had since that time plagued him with letters, post-cards, telephone calls, and attentions in the street.

Mrs. Henley waylaid him late one night as he was returning home, called him a "dirty Welshman," screamed, and struck him with a cane. She rang up his wife on the telephone the next morning and with regard to the "trivial incident" the previous night said: "But I am in love with him. I will give him no peace. My life is no use to me whatever, and when I go I will take him."

Mrs. Henley denied that she had threatened the doctor, and said that when she returned from war service in France and England she was suffering from nerve strain.

"Dr. Davis was not the same warm, kind friend to me that he had been," she said.

A son-in-law of Mrs. Henley appeared and informed the magistrate that he was prepared to become surety for her in £50 for her good behaviour.

The magistrate: You must have her medically attended, as she tells me that she is ill, but this sort of thing must not go on.

The magistrate: If I find that her friends are not prepared to do that I shall have to remand her in custody for her mind to be inquired into.

The magistrate eventually accepted Mrs. Henley's son-in-law's surety for £100, and directed Mrs. Henley to pay £3 3s. costs.

"If this behaviour continues," he added, "it will be a serious matter."

WAS KILLED BY A TRAIN

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 29.—Rory MacLeod, aged fifty five was run over and killed by a Sydney and Louisburg local express at Port Morien Saturday night. The body was found by section men early Sunday morning. He had been a passenger on the train from Glace Bay and how the accident occurred it is not known. A sad co-incidence in connection with his death is the fact that his only son was killed in the same way and within two hundred feet of the same place about two years ago.

EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 1

Washington, Sept. 29.—The national agreement on working conditions for railway shopmen, establishing uniform rules for 600,000 men, as proposed in President Wilson's reply to the demand of the men for increased wages, will become effective Oct. 20 and remain in force until the end of government control.

It was learned today that the agreement had been signed by the railroad administration and six international unions affiliated with the railway employees in the American Federation of Labor.

Halifax Cake.

A delicious spice cake that can be eaten hot or cold. It is made with a cup of sour milk, a cup of brown sugar a half cup of molasses, a quarter of a cup of melted shortening, two cups of raisins, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, a teaspoonful of soda and three and a half cups of flour. Dissolve the soda in the milk and mix with the molasses. Be sure it is in a large enough mixing bowl as it foams up. Then add the rest of the ingredients and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.
