SAYS TORONTO PAPER HAD A NIGHTMARE

(London Advertiser)

The Toronto World claims to see in the visit of the Prince of Wales a plot to have a Canadian as well as an English throne for the next British ruler. This, according to the World, is for the two-fold purpose of binding this country closer to the motherland and providing a refuge—and a throne—in the event of an English revolution. We presume this binding of ties will also be extended to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Isles of the seas. His Majesty will be compelled to purchase thrones wholesale—at a discount, of course—and will spend a large part of his time skipping gaily from one to another, probably by the air route. We imagine that the Royal Family, should the improbable occur, would be more than pleased to retire into private life, and from what we have seen of them, both the King and his heir would make fine citizens for this fair land. Indeed there are a number of Canadians who believe a revolution in the United Kingdom would be worth while if it sent Prince Charming to us as a permanent resident. But it is the sheerest nonsense to talk of a Canadian throne. Canada doesn't want it and wouldn't consider it for a moment, and nobody understands or respects

THE MOVIES A GREAT AID TO BEAUTY

Ever Notice How Graceful the Girls Are?—Screen Beauties Reflected by the Imitative Fans.

(Chicago News)

A woman with flashing eyes stood on the northeast corner of State and Madison streets at noon today. She wore an outlandishly embroidered Russian smock, a flowing green silk skirt and bobbed hair. She was Miss Indiana Gyberson an Irish painter of beautiful women; she has a studio at 3 East Ontario street.

"See," she exclaimed nodding into the churning flood of woman shoppers and girl loop workers. "See that lovely young thing with the soft, fawn eyes the angelic poise of the head. Oh, observe how she flings up her chin with just the right touch of aristocratic audacity. And yet—she's a department store clerk, not a hothouse flower. I know; I bought some gloves from the child yesterday."

Movies Make 'Em Prettier

"She is the product of the cinemas as you say over here the movies. They have made American women more beautiful. Ah, the rising generation of Chicago girls. One sees a far, far larger number of charming women here now. Let them talk of cabaret dancing and rich pastry ruining the attractiveness. It is the movies that are moulding ever fresh types of native beauty—new American types."

And so this painter, who has studied in Madrid and Paris, flew on, lassoing with a sweep of her hand this lovely copper haired girl and that fair blond. Miss Gyberson was proving a new theory, something new in nature.

Questioning today brought out the information that she is right—the movies are making girls more lovely. Other artists, modistes, beauty specialists all nodded yes when they were asked about it.

"Girls will be psychologically affected by moving pictures," said Lorado Taft, the sculptor, today. "They see beautiful women on the screen; then they go home and practice for hours before the mirror. The outcome? Graceful walking, pleasant faces, fine complexions and vivacity."

"I have great faith in the movies. A few I have seen are so artistically lovely they are works of art. What girl could help but seek to imitate when such charm is set before her? Still, the hoydenish and caper cutting movie actresses are a bad influence."

Makes Girls Vivacious

"Remember the recent avalanche of 'vamps' in Chicago?" broke in Miss Gyberson "Girls who slinker-slouched when they walked, rolled their eyes alluringly and tried to look naughty? They were copying the movie queen of the moment. Now we're getting the athletic, vigorous, smiling films. It is good. As de Maupassant said: 'All women are imitative as monkeys.' The speedy action of the films has made girls vivacious."

Mme. Marguerite, style designer and importer, 2841 South Michigan avenue said today the movies have had a great influence of woman's costumes.

"The taste for beautiful clothes, a desire for classic lines and sympathetic colors, simple things, intriguing fabrics—it's all due to the films," she declared. But hold on; maybe there's something else to this movie beauty idea.

"Sale of cosmetics has gone up 25 per cent since the movies became popular," said Albert A. Wert, who runs the drugstore at Clark and Randolph streets, in the heart of the rialto. "The girls can't buy enough expensive rouge and powder."

Some kinds of love may grow cold, but the kind a man has for himself never does.

this feeling more than the English Royal Family. If there is a clique in the land that seriously contemplates any such coup it is too insignificant to require investigation. And it would have no encouragement from this side. Of course Toronto snobocracy thrills delightfully over the dream of a court established in Government House, but Mr. Drury and his Farmer-Labor Government will once for all dash this hope when they turn the Riverdale palace into a hospital, playgrounds, bowling alley or something else, that is both democratic and useful. Doesn't the World know that such an appalling conspiracy if it existed would long since have been scented by that grand old sleuth, the Toronto Telegram? What does the Telegram think, anyway of the World stealing its stuff? That would make much more interesting reading than the World's "exposure" for which there might be some excuse were the season of that type that tradition says drives the human mind to grotesque and bizarre imaginings.

Invalid Ladies THIS IS FOR YOU

There are thousands of females who suffer untold miseries common to their sex.

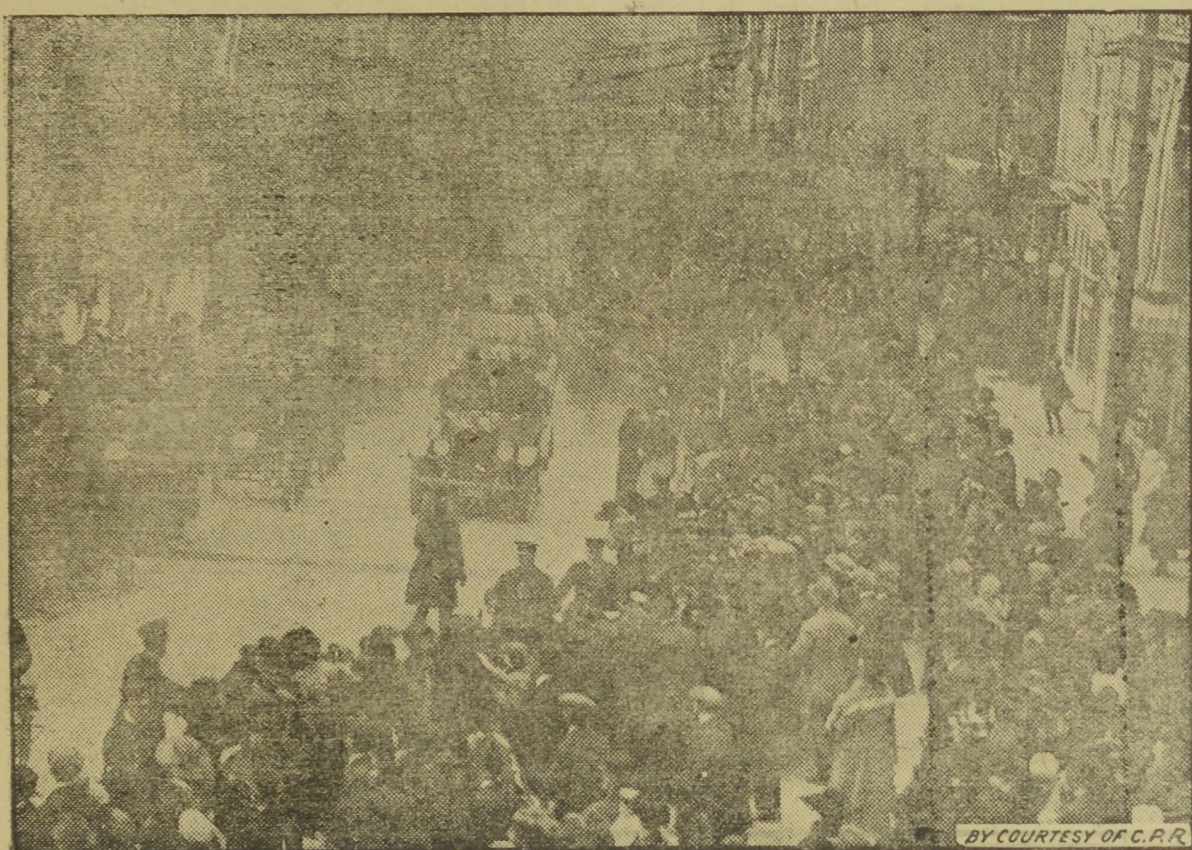

This is largely due to the stress and strain of everyday life, the trials and drudgery of household duties, or perhaps the improper training of girlhood. Then, too, the physical changes that mark the different eras of womanhood (maiden, wife, mother, change of life) have much to do with her sufferings, much of which are endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends.

To all those whose hollow cheeks, pale face, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps point to palpitation of the heart, nervousness, faint and dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sinking and smothering spells, rush of blood to the head, and many other troubles, we would earnestly recommend a course of
