

NEW YEAR'S EVE WILL BE LIVELY IN OLD MANHATTAN

Glint of Falling Snow Gives Added Brilliance and Zest to the Joys of Cafe and Cabaret—Activity Along New York's Great White Way Presages a New Mark in Holiday Bookings—Private Stocks in Cellars Likely to be Called Upon.

New York, Dec. 28—There is something in the glint of falling snow that enhances the appeal of shiny dance floors and rollicking orchestras and gold draperies. And so with the first real signs of winter on Broadway, the lavishly furnished cafes in the Great White Way belt have been filled to capacity nightly and the famous thoroughfare where song and pretty girls and tuneful melody about have shown whiter and more brilliantly than ordinarily.

And if one examined the records of these places such as the Cafe de Paris formerly Rector's, the Moulin Rouge, Palais Royal, Cafe des Beaux Arts, Delmonicos, Churchill's or Reisenweber's, one would find that reservations for the holiday season are quite near to capacity at present, with only a few nights left when tables may be had at any price. This assures the owners of the pleasure establishments along Broadway and Fifth avenue that this Christmas time and New Year's Eve are not to be quiet. Hundreds of persons are ordering the same sort of menus they have had each year in their respective favorite places.

And everything would tend to cause one to believe that there is going to be no mean amount of the liquid that sparkles and bubbles from the stem brought into these restaurants in the pockets and arms of the diners on Christmas and New Year's Eve. There being nothing without the law in such a proceeding the cafe managers have nothing to say against it. As a matter of fact they favor it.

Contents of Cellars to Appear
Truly Broadway will not be asleep on New Year's Eve. Any one hazard'ing such a guess should think again of all those private cellars we heard so much about soon after the ban on the liquor traffic took effect. It should be remembered that in fully half of these cases the supply of liquor has been conserved for the greatest evening of the year—New Year's Eve. The contents of the cellars will be brought out and put on display and consumed to the last dregs along "celebration row" on that evening.

his novel Golden Glades at Sixty-sixth street and Broadway gives us a tip that there will be many innovations in that gay resort and an orchestra double the size of the regular one to help boost the heartless old year on its way and welcome the new one.

"There's bound to be some good come of all this sadness we've had recently," he said smilingly yesterday. "I'm sort of optimistic in that way. Things will equalize. You watch and see. Drop in to the Golden Glades on New Year's Eve and see whether there's gloom or gladness."

It sounded as if it came from the heart, and looking over Mr. Healy's reservation list one is inclined to believe what he says:

A Fairy Garden

"A stroller up Broadway while the snow was falling was necessarily impressed with the beauty of the glow of yellow and amber and vari-colored lights that have made this great street with its life and its bustle the famed fairway of the world. The Cafe de Paris, at Forty-eighth street, just across from Churchill's and in the midst of the land of make-believe stood out like a fairy garden with sun bursts gleaming over its walls and floors, walled in with diamonds and works of art.

But the spectacle does not depend upon the snow to produce impressiveness. Within the last year the brilliant restaurant innovations on Broadway monopolize all other forms of industry after dinner time. One sees the quaint old Moulin Rouge, with its slowly revolving windmill as a sign post and hard by the Palais Royal with its bevy of dancy beauties within.

Palais Royal Draws Visitors

The Palais Royal is known from San Francisco to Portland, Me., and from the lakes to the Gulf. Pretty girls and pretty costumes have earned for this sparkling resort just around the corner from the Winter Garden a name that it will be hard to forget. For the man from out of town who seeks to see Broadway at its gayest the Palais Royal offers all that may be asked.

And in summing up the beauties and the lure of the wonders of New York's night life dancing parlors, which, by the way, are at their height now and perhaps more beautifully decorated for the holiday season than ever before, one must not forget that little nook tucked away up on West Forty-second street and called Murray's Roman Gardens. It is the smallest, yet perhaps one of the most elegant of all of New York's restaurants that are animated well into the morning with the dancers and diners of the city's quota that has never grown old.

Bustanoby's to Be Lively

And a visit to Sixth avenue and Fortieth street, where Mr. Andre D. Bustanoby, the young son of Mrs. Marie D. Bustanoby, is holding forth as owner and manager of the famous Cafe des Beaux Arts is time indeed well spent. For those who seek the truly French in service and atmosphere this "little bit of Paris in New York" will be difficult to equal.

Here, too there is going to be a "wild" night on or about the last day of this month and the early part, or perhaps all of the following morning.

There will perhaps be as usual the annual "table dance" as the old year goes—that is, the moment when all step to the top of the bronze topped tables and dance together. Every one is aware that wine, and very much and good wine is necessary to bring an entire crowd to so mount the tables, but the Cafe des Beaux Arts is one of those places where they probably will bring along their New Year's cheer from home.

Reports generally from the owners of the dance and cabaret restaurants up and down the brilliant path tend to show that after all there's not going to be any perceptible grouching behind the white shirt fronts and inside the low neck gowns this New Year's Eve.

LAUNDERING QUILTS.

An easy way to wash your bed quilts or comfortables is in this manner: First take a small scrub brush and a pail of suds and scrub well the most soiled parts. Place the articles to be cleaned over a table to do this. Second, place article on clothes line and proceed with the rinsing, which can be done with a garden hose. Let the full force of water soak the quilt or comfortable well. This may need to be done several times, but the result is a good clean comfortable without the pulling apart of the interlining. Do this on a good windy day.

NEW LIGHT HAS WONDROUS POSSIBILITIES

London, Dec. 29—A light which far surpasses any existing arrangement of artificial light, and is the closest approximation to actual daylight ever developed, is understood by the American Chamber of Commerce in London to have been perfected here.

The apparatus consists of a high power electric light bulb, fitted with a cup-shaped opaque reflector, the silvered inner side of which reflects the light against a parasol-shaped screen placed above the light. The screen is lined with small patches of different colors, arranged according to a formula worked out empirically by Mr. Sheringham, the inventor, and carefully tested and perfected in the Imperial College of Science and Technology.

HOW C.P.R. ENGINEER WON VICTORIA CROSS

It fell to the lot of a C.P.R. engineer Pte. John Peter Robertson to win the much coveted Victoria Cross at Passchendaele. Robertson enlisted at Lethbridge with the 175th and was an engineer on that division. He was better known as "Pete" to his Lethbridge friends. He was born in Pictou, Nova Scotia, but lived most of his life in Medicine Hat with his mother, Mrs. Alex. Robertson.

Robertson was aged thirty-four, won his distinction in connection with operations at Passchendaele, November 6, 1917. Details came through authoritative channels that during his battalion's attack Robertson's platoon was held up by uncut wire two hundred yards from the final objective. Our guns were still busy cutting a way through the wire when a German machine gun opened fire and inflicted very heavy losses on the Canadians. Robertson, without waiting for orders entirely on his own initiative, rushed towards the German gun, defying the machine guns' withering fire. Moreover, our artillery barrage was so intense that death seemed almost certain. Working his way to the flank, he eventually found an opening in the wire, got through and crawled until the end of the emplacement was reached. Rising suddenly to his feet he charged down on the astonished Germans, and killed four of the gun crew before they could recover from their surprise. The remainder fled in terror, but their flight was soon cut short when Robertson seized the abandoned gun, screwed it around and poured a hail of bullets upon the backs of the fast disappearing enemy. Several of them fell victims to their own weapon and others were caught by our shells. When the remainder of the platoon arrived Robertson was still firing the captured gun. It was entirely due to his heroic action that the whole line was enabled to advance and capture the final objective. Robertson went forward with the first wave, taking a gun with him. He used it very effectively to keep down the fire of German machine guns and snipers, while his platoon consolidated the new position. Later in the day when two of our snipers who ventured in front of our lines were wounded Robertson volunteered to bring them in. He went into the open, although exposed to a heavy enemy fire, lifted one man on his back and carried him safely to the trench and immediately returned to the second man, staggering back with his unconscious burden while the bullets whistled around him. But as if cruel fate were awaiting until the last possible moment to overtake him, he was killed on the very parapet of the trench, his mission almost accomplished. His splendidly heroic end, like his dashingly work done earlier in the day, had a most inspiring effect.
