TEN THOUSAND UNEMPLOYED IN TORONTO

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 20—The situation is serious, but certainly not alarming, "said Rev. J. A. Miller, Superintendent of the Ontario Government Labor Bureau, discussing the problems of unemployment today. "When the machinists some weeks ago were reported as saying that nearly 24,000 were out of work, they must really have meant that this number had been temporarily discharged from government work, such as munitions and they were disengaged ready for other openings. As a matter of fact, unemployment is marked not among the unskilled workers.

"Conditions today are more serious than they were three weeks ago, the householder and many returned soldiers being the sufferers. I have no hesitation in saying that the number of

GREAT PROBLEMS MUST BE SOLVED IN FRANCE

American Lady Who Served With French Red Cross, Gives Out Interesting Interview—People Driven Out by the Huns are Now Beginning to Return to Their Homes—Peasants are Grateful for What has been Done for Them.

The problems facing France today, an airship. The Germans entered require greater relief work than at Noyon Monday afternoon. This was any time during the entire period of the war. This statement is made by Lucy Stockton of this city, a member of the French Red Cross, who is now at her home, 436 Franklin street, on a short furlough.

"Food is the greatest of all these problems," said Miss Stockton. "It is too early to plant the gardens in many of the devastated sections, and refugees are being held in the south and other parts of France until late in February, when passports will be granted them to return to their homes or rather to the site where their homes once stood."

Miss Stockton went to Paris early in 1917, as nurse's aid with the American Red Cross. At the time of the Hindenburg retreat from Noyon, which town the Germans had held for three years, a call was sent in by the French Red Cross for more help and Miss Stockton was then sent to Noyon where she drove the nurses' ambulance and did civilian relief work between drives.

"These people had been under German rule since 1914," said Miss Stockton, "and we found scarcely a family from which a boy or a girl had not been taken by the Huns when they left the town. All of the strong middle-aged people had been sent to Germany to work."

"I believe they are beginning to return to their homes, however, as a letter just received from a peasant friend tells me that her husband has arrived home. But he is ill and shows the results of very bad treatment on the part of the Germans."

"The offensive broke through Noyon for the second time on the 21st of March," continued Miss Stockton. "It was at 4 o'clock in the morning. The terrific outburst of cannon had started at 5 o'clock the day before and had continued without intermission."

French Fortitude.

"I found these French people remarkable. They did not rush about in a panic. They remained quietly in their homes, guarding their possessions loyally until the very last. All that Sunday afternoon they sat on their porches, praying sometimes moaning, but hoping to the very end that their homes would be spared. That night the church bells sounded and French soldiers rode through the streets warning them to evacuate. Trains ran until 3 o'clock in the morning."

"There was great danger from the German airplanes which hovered overhead. They fired on the refugees as well as the troops. In one car six civilians were killed by a bomb from

They tell many stories of the visit of the Crown Prince to that section during the early period of the war, Miss Stockton relates an interesting incident told her by an old gardener in Carlepont. He said at the time of the first battle of the Marne, the crown prince rode into the village on a white mule. He stopped in front of this old peasant's home and demanded that chairs be brought out. He wanted to give a band concert. This was done and the concert took place. The mule must have run away from the prince later, as during the following night it found its way back to the village where it is now exhibited as a souvenir.

"The French peasants are deeply grateful and appreciative for all that is being done for them," continued Miss Stockton. "We are to continue the work already begun in the Noyon section which is to be the headquarters of the relief department of the French Red Cross. This organization is militarized just like ours. The work will be under the supervision of the ministry of the interior and branch quarters will be established wherever needed and possible."

Miss Stockton says the Red Cross has the entire confidence of the peasants who believe they are doing everything possible to help them. Miss Stockton will return to Noyon, France early next week.

She's a Mother to the Boys in Khaki!

YOU may never know all the Salvation Army Lassie has done at the front. Aside from your letters and parcels she bestowed the true MOTHER touch to the boys. They will never forget her!

They will never forget her mending their clothes within sound of the guns; handing out hot coffee, pies and sandwiches to the men on the march; getting up concerts and "free-for-all" songs around the piano; comforting the heavy-hearted; and restraining him with a mother's influence when nothing else on earth could give him the necessary spiritual strength.

One thing only will stop the Salvation Army Lassie continuing her wonderful work among the soldiers—Lack of Funds! Supply the money that is absolutely necessary and no Canadian soldier who has done his bit will be without a friend or a home to turn to!

Soldiers Home Coming Campaign THIS WEEK

So far the Salvation Army has been able to finance its war work without a general appeal for funds. NOW comes the crisis. They are proud of the slogan "First to Serve—Last to Appeal." They appeal NOW only because they cannot continue without your help, and the appeal is made to you, not only in the name of the men who offered their lives for you and who are deserving of every comfort we can provide, but for the welfare of Canada.

The Salvation Army is giving vital help over here to the solution of Canada's problems of Repatriation and Reconstruction.

Does a soldier need a home for a few days? The Hostels are open to him. Does he need a job? The Salvation Army finds him one. Is his family in distress? The Salvation Army Lassie is ready to nurse, comfort, scrub, attend to the children—all with loving care for the sake of the Master! Help and help liberally, so that our homecoming men will feel that you stood behind them to the finish. Be able to meet these men eye to eye, conscious that you have done your duty to the full! "Keep the home fires burning till the boys come home."

Children Love Candy Cascarets

Careful mothers know that Cascarets in the home mean less sickness, less trouble, less worry, less cost. When one of the kiddies has a white tongue, feverish breath, sour stomach or a cold, a Cascaret quickly and harmlessly "works" the poisons from the liver and bowels and all is well again.

TO MOTHERS! While all children detest castor oil, calomel, pills and laxatives, they really love to take Cascarets because they taste like candy. Cascarets "work" the nasty bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison from the child's tender stomach, liver and bowels without pain or griping. Cascarets never disappoint the worried mother. Each 10 cent box contains directions for children aged one year old and upwards.
