OF INTEREST TO WOMEN
MOVEMENTS OF THE STARS IN MOVIE LAND

Pauline Frederick will shortly appear on the New York Rialto if her present travelling plans are not interfered with by her screen advisers. Miss Frederick is in need of a rest, she says, and she proposes to earn one by journeying back and forth across the continent, remaining two or three weeks. She plans to dispose of her farm in Connecticut and take up her permanent residence in California.

Dorothy Phillips, Priscilla Dean and Mary MacLaren recently had appointments in the same day with Jack Freulich, Universal's star portraiturist. As each of the stars arrived and became seated for the camera, the Russian laird of Blarney Castle said to each one: "Do you know that you remind me of a famous statue; I can't think of the name of it, but the arms were broken off at the shoulders." The compliment went over beautifully until Miss Phillips, Miss Dean and Miss MacLaren met later in the cafeteria. "Mr. Freulich gave me a delightful compliment," said Miss Dean, repeating what the portraiturist said. Now the famous stars are all looking for Jack.

The famous dispensers of mirth, Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, are just as funny off the screen as on. "You know," said Eddie between scenes on the new comedy, "With the Help of a Friend," "when I was younger I smoked so much that the doctor warned me if I did not give up tobacco I would lose my mind." "Well, why didn't you give it up?" asked Lee and then he promptly walked away.

Enid Bennett is a good cook. She proved this recently to members of the company appearing with her in "Stepping Out." Miss Bennett plays the part of a thrifty young housewife who sews, cooks and cleans. So when it came to cooking she agreed to really prepare a meal for the company. The main dish she announced would be "Australian Goose." Now, as Miss Bennett came from Australia the players were anticipating tasting some rare bird. It turned out that "Australian Goose" is merely a name used for mutton. But it was a dainty dish and all thoroughly relished the delicacy.

When Corinne Griffith was crowned queen of the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, saw her. She immediately accepted his offer to join the Vitagraph forces. The beautiful Southerner has quickly climbed to stardom and popularity until with her appearance in the screen version of "The Climbers" by Clyde Fitch, she has proved beyond doubt the good judgment of Mr. Smith, creator of stars.

Between now and January 26th the First National Exhibitors' Circuit will release six attractions of importance, including Mary Pickford in "Heart of the Hills." Probably one of the strongest dramas to be published this fall was "The Beauty Market," starring Katherine Macdonald. This production shows the beautiful star at her best and affords her ample opportunity to display her histrionic talent.

December 22nd has been set as the release date for Charlie Chaplin's reported fourth million dollar production through First National.

Lima Beane says the high cost of leather has no effect on bootlegging.

Only thing free at a grocery is the alibi that goes with each advance in the price of sugar.
