DECALOGUE OF LABOR.

The New York Tribune, in a recent issue, published the following "decadology of labor."

1. Thou shalt not shrink production. By it all are fed. It is the mother of every material blessing.
2. Thou shalt not break contracts; neither plenty nor brotherhood is possible when men are liars.
3. Thou shalt not raise thy hand against the better machine or method. Invention lifts the curse pronounced against Adam.
4. Thou shalt not slack on the job. The unused talent rusts and the sluggard sins against his soul as against the leisure and happiness of his fellow.
5. Thou shalt not put three men to the work of two. The third is a burden carried by the two.
6. Thou shalt not deny freedom to others. Another's right to work is as sacred as thy right to quit. He may also bargain.
7. Thou shalt not deem the employer an enemy. He is thy partner and he earns his wage.
8. Thou shalt not oppress the consumer. Strip him and he lacks wherewith to buy the work of thy hands.
9. Thou shalt obey the law, the mandate of the majority. If it suits thee not, persuade, but beware of the barbarism which distills the poison that might creates right.
10. Be thou a man, independent, full statured, mindful of the moral law, guided by an intelligence which sees that a man best serves himself by harmonious co-operation with his fellows.

Moncton Transcript: The whirligig of time brings about some strange happenings. Does the general public yet fully realize that, assuming the resignation of the Hearst government, there then will not be in Canada from ocean to ocean, a single government, either Federal or provincial, which is Tory? Has this ever happened before in Canadian politics? One party has been in power at Ottawa, but there generally would be some of the other party in power in the provinces. In the present case there is a Union government at Ottawa and in all the provinces but one there is a Liberal government and in that one the events of the next few days will decide its complexion.

Col. W. W. Melville, Unionist candidate in Carleton-Victoria, in his card to the electors, says: "I cannot support free trade, as this would mean direct taxation. I will promise, however, to encourage and support a free interchange of our farm products." Col. Melville in 1911 responded to the crack of the party whip and voted and worked against a proposal for the free interchange of our farm products. United States. Having done this, what faith can the farmers of Carleton-Victoria put in any promise he may make at the present time?

Hon. M. H. Goudge, president of the Legislative Council of Nova Scotia, celebrated his 90th birthday yesterday. Hon. Mr. Goudge is an old-time Liberal politician, and in the early '70's opposed the late Hon. Joseph Howe in a by-election when he sought re-election after accepting office in the government of Sir John Macdonald. Hon. Mr. Goudge was defeated in that historic contest, but was elected in the following year and remained a member of the House of Commons until 1878.

Says the Tory Woodstock Press: "Col. Melville will doubtless be supported by the fathers and mothers of the boys who were overseas, the boys themselves, and all those who would like an independent man in parliament during these times of unrest." This kind of stuff was made to do duty on behalf of Tory candidates in the recent Ontario elections, but it failed to deliver the goods. The boys who were overseas, especially those living in Toronto, gave their support to candidates of the Liberal party, and probably had a very good reason for doing so.

Says the Tory Woodstock Press: "Dissension in the ranks of the Liberal party has been caused by Mr. Caldwell 'stealing their thunder,' and many will not vote for him on that account. Some will vote for Mrs. Adney and many will cast their ballots for the independent candidate, Colonel Melville." Although published the day after nomination day, the Press evidently was not aware of the fact that Mrs. Adney had retired from the field.

The Woodstock Press, published on Tuesday, had not a word concerning the great victory won by the farmers in the Ontario election on Monday. Its object was to withhold the information from the farmers of Carleton-Victoria, but they will learn all about it just the same and will be encouraged to work harder than ever for Mr. Caldwell, the United Farmers' candidate.

Latest returns from the Ontario provincial elections give the United Farmers 45 members out of a total of 111. The Conservative total has been reduced to 25 by the transfer of Hon. Dr. Jamieson, the speaker of the House, to the losers' column. Of the 45 U. F. O. men returned, it is said that 25 were formerly Liberals, 13 former Conservatives and 2 former independents.

Mr. Hartley Dewar, the Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature, was opposed in Southwest Toronto by a Mr. George Gooderham, a former member and a wealthy whiskey distiller. Mr. Dewar won out by the substantial majority of 5,500. His colleague, Capt. Jack Ramsden, a returned soldier with a wooden leg, had a majority nearly as large.

Financial Post: A wire to the Financial Post from the Comptroller General of New Brunswick announces that a provincial issue will be made in December. This will be for the purpose of refunding the issue of $2,000,000 of short term bonds falling due on the 1st of December. "Particulars will follow later," concludes the telegram.

Mr. J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, has arrived in Woodstock to take a hand in the by-election in the interests of Mr. Caldwell.

The price of hogs has dropped from $27 a hundred pounds to $15, but you needn't look for corroboration on the restaurant price cards, says an exchange.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

That German Horn always was badly out of tune.

All things come to those who wait—we've got a prisoner of war.

Werner is not the kind of horn that knew how to keep the powder dry.

The man who agrees with you is level-headed; the man who does not is flat-headed.

Ontario Tories have still got an occupation—they're busy explaining it away.

If our own business interested us as much as other people's business, some of us would be rich.

Any sort of a young girl can make trouble for a man if his wife happens to be jealous.

The people of Ontario have sustained prohibition, but they evidently have not yet forgiven the government that introduced it.

Dwelling houses are almost as difficult to get as sugar—and slightly more expensive.

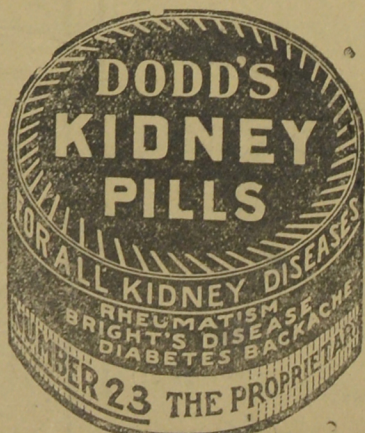

One character in magazine stories is dying—the fellow who betrayed his nervousness by suddenly snapping the stem of his wineglass.

We are all too prone to wrap a sheet around the pin scratches of our grievances to give them the appearance of serious wounds.

The former Crown Prince is visiting at Amerongen, but we hear nothing of him helping dad with the woodpile.

King Albert's success in running a locomotive should be a warning to striking railwaymen. A lot of kings are out of jobs these days.

Notice is served on novelists that the demand is for a story so interesting that a wife reading it will forget to look at the clock when her husband comes in.

Wedding Anniversary

Yesterday was the 24th anniversary of the marriage of Capt. and Mrs. John S. Scott of this city, and in the evening a number of lady friends gathered at their home to assist in celebrating the event. Mrs. Scott was out to a church meeting when the callers arrived and was summoned home by telephone. Naturally she came in for a big surprise. After the noisy demonstration made in her honor had in part subsided she was called to the parlor and presented with a handsome wicker rocker as a token of esteem. Mrs. J. F. Brewer read a congratulatory address and made the presentation. The visitors brought with them a liberal supply of refreshments which were partaken of later in the evening. The pleasant gathering did not break up until midnight.
