THE ONTARIO ELECTION.

The Toronto Saturday Night, an independent newspaper, in the course of some breezy comment on the Ontario provincial elections, has this to say:

Sir William Hearst may be regarded as definitely eliminated from the situation. Beaten in his own constituency and in the province at large, the suggestion which appeared in a number of government organs on the morning after the election that he remain in office until February and devote the next three months to making a dicker with the new parties or factions was too preposterous for words. Placed in power by a secret deal between the Conservative party machine and the religious body which is numerically the strongest in this province, but without the assent of a party convention, there was little chance that he would weather an appeal to the country. He is an object of sympathy inasmuch as he was deserted by the elements to whom every other consideration was sacrificed. He found them willing to threaten the voters they could influence with the perils of eternal torment if they did not support his liquor legislation, but so far as he was concerned quite willing to throw him to the wolves.

The U. F. O., who find themselves with a representation both too great and too small, seem to be objects of sympathy also. They are dazed by the responsibility that suddenly confronts them. Their ablest leader, Manning Doherty, was defeated in Peel, and they find themselves pledged to a platform borrowed from the Sockless Simpsons of the American Middle West, which few of them understand, and saddled with the task of assuming a share in Government for which they are hardly equipped.

The Liberal leader, Mr. Hartley Dewar, whose speeches did more than those of any other politician to upset the Hearst government and assist the U. F. O., finds himself with a following no stronger than it was when he was the real, though not the titular leader of the opposition.

Altogether Ontario's affairs have come to a pretty pass through the general tendency to abandon established principles of government and legislation, and adopt the fads of the American Middle West from A to Z—prohibition, the recall and all the other nostrums that the people of Kansas, Nebraska and North Dakota have evolved from their heady diet of corncake and "punkin" pie.

ALL RISK ELIMINATED.

While at the time the Victory Loans of 1917 and 1918 were floated the bonds constituted the best secured investment on the market, there is no denying the fact that their purchasers shouldered a certain measure of temporary risk. This was especially true of the first Victory Loan of 1917. No one then knew how long the war would last. Generally speaking, events had gone badly with the Allies throughout the year. Canadians were then asked to back their country, and provide her with the means to avert defeat. The risk involved in the 1918 loan took a different form. Victory was in sight, and the armistice signed in the midst of the drive. But no one knew what the next few months held in store for Canada. There was good reason for theorists to predict a period of depression, caused by the cessation of war industries and war experts, and a condition of unemployment in the cities which would reduce the spending power of the public and hit the producer hard.

By a seeming miracle no depression occurred. The farmer and the manufacturer, and all the myriad branches of the community who depend on them are flourishing. It was the great success of the 1918 Victory Loan, more than one third of which was employed in financing credits for goods purchased in Canada, that averted a slump and kept us prosperous.

The 1919 Victory Loan will have the same happy effect, and there is no adverse cloud hanging in the sky; no fear of trade collapse as in 1918. Risk is eliminated; but this happy situation is conditioned on one thing; the success of the present Loan. On that depends everything.

Toronto Star: It looks as if the political parties in Canada would be remade from the ground up. But as time goes on and as issues arise to be faced and dealt with, these will gradually shape up into two opposing forces,—those who favor reforms and those who desire to retain a system of things under which they and their interests have flourished.

His nominee having been trimmed to a finish in the recent by-election, Mr.

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR FIVE YEARS

No Return of the Trouble Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. JOHN E. GUILDERSON

P. O. Box 123, Parrsboro, N. S.

"I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up without assistance."

I tried different medicines I saw advertised and was treated by doctors in Amherst, also in my home town, but the Rheumatism came back.

In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-tives' would stop Rheumatism, and took one box and got relief; then I took them right along for about six months and the Rheumatism was all gone and I have never felt it since.

Anyone who would care to write me as regards 'Fruit-a-tives' I would be glad to tell them what 'Fruit-a-tives' did for me."

JOHN E. GUILDERSON, Contractor and Mason.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

B. Franklin Smith is now urging the faithful in Carleton county to bury the hatchet and send a delegation to the Opposition convention at St. John next week. Politically, B. Franklin is a dead one, but he does not appear to have found it out yet.

The Divorce Court which meets here on Tuesday has a record breaking docket. Sad to relate, the defendants in the majority of the cases are wives of men who went overseas to fight the Hun tyrants and assist in making the world safe for democracy. During their absence the "Huns" at home had a free hand and seem to have made the most of the opportunity.

Ottawa Citizen: The farmers are getting so accustomed to victory that they will undoubtedly take to the Victory Bonds as something in the way of commemorating an epoch in Canadian politics.

So far the Tory newspapers have given very little prominence to the part taken in the Carleton-Victoria by-election by Hon. P. E. Blondin, Postmaster General of Canada.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE
Hallowe'en was not exactly unobserved.

Love of man for himself never grows less.

Never kick a live wire when it is down.

Give us this day our daily false alarm.

The less a man wants of a thing the more he is apt to get of it.

A woman never reads the preface until after she has read the story.

Probably the easiest way to make trouble is to look for it.

Bookkeepers are merely figureheads in the business.

Our fire dept. now seems to need special equipment for answering false alarms.

Many a man has saved himself a lot of domestic trouble by not getting married.

A true genius is a man who, when he accidentally says something good, can make his hearers believe it was premeditated.

When a woman marries the first time it's because she needs love; the second time it's because she needs a home and companionship; the third time it's because she needs—analgesic.
