TWO PERSONS LOSE LIVES IN A FIRE

Manchester, N. H., July 25.—Two unidentified persons are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which damaged two four-storey tenement buildings on Lake Avenue, a congested district, early today. While firemen were engaged in rescuing scores of occupants who had been driven from their beds by the flames, they saw two persons on the piazza of an upper tenement signalling for help. Smoke immediately concealed the piazza from view and when a ladder was raised to it no one was found. It was feared that the two, despairing of help from the street reentered the house and were overcome by the flames.

SOME OF THE SPECIAL FEATURES OF THE ### Policy Holders Mutual Life Insurance Co

1. It is classed by the Insurance Department as a Mutual Life Insurance Company with Auxiliary Joint Stock. It has therefore the advantages of the Mutual, with the guarantees of a joint stock company.
  2. Premium rates are lower than for corresponding policies in other companies.
  3. The basis of profit distribution is fixed by its act of incorporation; each policy holder sharing in proportion to the amount of the reserve to the credit of the policy.
  4. Abstainers are placed in a separate class and receive in dividends the benefit of their superior mortality.
  5. Policy holders and stock holders vote on an equal basis, the stock holder has one vote for each share of stock; the policy holder one vote for each thousand dollars of insurance. The policy holder has the further advantage and privilege of voting by mail, ballot papers being furnished him which may be forwarded to any general meeting.
  6. Whenever a premium is due, the policy holder has the privilege without notice to the company, of paying it monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually, as best suits his convenience at the time.
  7. Policy holders have the privilege of an annual medical examination to be made by the company's medical officer.
  8. The Company has made arrangements with a leading accident company for the issuing of a supplementary policy at a nominal figure, by which if the assured should die from an accident, the amount of his insurance would be double that of the amount of his life policy.
- All of these advantages are not to be obtained in any other one company. We make this statement over our signature.

Confessions of an Every-Day Wife By Idah McGlone Gibson

I interrupted Eliene to say that I thought the man who could write a letter such as she was reading to me was something less than a man.

"Wait," she said, brokenly, "there is only one more paragraph to read, and this was how the letter ended:

"When I come back I shall be quite as honest with you as I am now, and if I find that my love is still in doubt, you will not keep me to my promise, will you, Eliene?"

There was silence for a few moments as Eliene's voice sank. My emotions were raging and I could not speak for a moment or two.

"Eliene Symone, do you mean to tell me that that man did not give you back your freedom and that he really expects you to give two of the best years of your life to his selfish whim?" I finally found words to say. "Why, I think he's the worst cnd in the world.

"You certainly gave him back his freedom and told him that you never wanted to see his face again, did you not?" Eliene buried her face in my lap.

"No, dear, I did nothing of the kind. I simply did not answer the letter at all."

"And are you waiting for him?"

"I hope not—but I do not know."

"I only know this, my dear Margot, and that is when I see another man, even as charming as Major Gordon, I become perfectly cold and indifferent. I have a feeling that if I accept the simplest courtesies from him or any other man it is betraying not my lover, but my love. Margot, my love was very beautiful and sacred to me."

"Look here, Eliene, you are thinking too much about your love and your lover. There are other things in life that are quite as important, if not as engrossing."

"I tell myself that every day," said Eliene, "but it is much harder for me to believe it than for you who are married and sure of your happiness. That is why I rebel against the unfairness of it all. If I were uncertain of my love and went to China, he could follow me and make sure, while I must sit and wait until my lord and master beckons, or hide my broken heart as he passes me by."

"I have often heard Budge and Toddy tell when they came home from college how men hate to be run after, and yet they think, as all other men seem to think, the greatest compliment they can pay us women is to show themselves dangling at our heels."

"Good night, Margot," she said abruptly. "I am going to bed. I hope you will forgive me for talking so much about myself."

"You have paid me the greatest of compliments, Eliene. I have been waiting for you to unburden yourself for some time, as I felt that things were not right with you. Now, perhaps I can help you, and I wish you had confided in me from the first. You may be sure I shall try to make you see that man as he is and not as your fancy pictures him."

"Oh, Margot, they are all more or less selfish. My lover happened to be a little more frankly so."

"Brutally so, you mean," I said.

"Well, you must give him credit for showing this brutal egotism before instead of after marriage," she said, as she gathered up the remaining orchid-colored garments and again said "good night."

Although I went to bed immediately, I could not sleep, and yet I was quite surprised to find the clock striking two and realized that Theo had not yet returned.

I sat up rigidly in bed and found myself listening for his footsteps. Not for one moment did I dream that he would stay out as late as this. Something must have happened to him, was my first thought, and then, as I remembered he took the roadster, driving himself, I was sure there had been a motor accident.

I tried to calm myself by saying I would be the first one to know it if this were so, but my rebellious heart took no advice from my common sense. It was beating so rapidly that it choked me. I got up hurriedly and threw the window wide open.

The whole street was silent, not a car in sight.

For a moment I was tempted to awaken Father Symone, and then realized that he must be the last person to know the hours of Theo's going and coming. Out of the distance I heard the faint sound as of a muffler cut out and shortly into view came the roadster at a terrific pace and my heart seemed to stop beating as I noticed it careen from side to side.

CHILD GAILY REBUKES THE KING

London, July 19 At the Derby races King George asked a lady of his acquaintance to bring her little daughter to the royal box. The King took the little girl on his knee and, after some bantering, asked her how she would like to see him with his crown on. The child's reply was, "Don't be silly."

Renamed St. Quentin

The station on the International Branch of the Canadian National Railways which originally was known as Anderson is now known as St. Quentin. The Roman Catholic parish church at that place is St. Quentin's Church and the name was selected for that reason. It also commemorates St. Quentin in France, where heavy fighting took place during the war just closed.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1918

NOTICE TO EMPLOYERS OF LABOR.

Whereas on the 17th day of April, A. D. 1919, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Council did by Order-in-Council bring within the scope of Part 1 of the "Workmen's Compensation Act, 1918," from and after August 1st, 1919, the following industries, viz.:

"Persons employed in the woods in logging, cutting of timber, pulpwood, firewood, railroad ties or sleepers, river driving, rafting, booming or the transportation of logs, timber pulpwood, firewood or railroad ties or sleepers."

Notice is hereby given that all persons engaged in any of the above mentioned industries are required to file a statement of their estimated payroll from August 1st, 1919, to December 31st, 1919, inclusive, with the said Board, on or before the 1st day of August, 1919.

And further notice, that any employer neglecting or refusing to furnish such estimate or information is liable to a penalty not exceeding $20.00 per day for each day of such default, and is further liable for damages, as provided by Part 2 of said Act, in respect of any injury to any workman in his employ during the period of such default.

Note.—Forms for furnishing such information will be supplied on application.

Also please take note of the following regulation passed by the Board and coming into force on the 1st day of August, 1919: First Aid Kit.—In an industry where ten or more persons are employed, it shall be the duty of the employer to provide a suitable FIRST AID KIT approved of by the Board and in charge of a suitable person.
