Let's not jump to any rash conclusions because some of the German people seem to want the old Kaiser back home. They may desire to throw decayed vegetables at him.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

COTTON FOR BEST.

Within the Last Few Years Cottons Have Been Produced in all Attractive Designs as Silks or Woollen Fabrics.

The fact that cottons were cheaper has kept manufacturers from thinking it worth while employing high priced designers in producing new and attractive designs. So from year to year our gingham and calicoes have been printed and woven in much the same way, and it is only when we bought silk that we got the most attractive designs. This is still the case to a certain extent, for there is still much to be done in this matter of making cottons more attractive.

Still, we can get cotton fabrics that are immensely satisfactory and we no longer feel that we must don silk or woolen if we would be suitably dressed for the street or for formal occasions. Evening gowns that are immensely attractive are made of organdies and voiles of cotton, and street gowns that are appropriate for any sort of occasion are made in cotton foulards and other cotton fabrics.

If you can make your own frocks, then you can have all sorts of attractive frocks at comparatively small expense. But even if you have to buy them they are not prohibitive, for despite the high cost of labor the manufacturers are managing to put out good frocks of cotton at a reasonable price.

One attractive frock that is put out by one of the manufacturers that would be suitable for any sort of street wear is of cotton foulard with long bell sleeves and a round neck with a collar of white organdie.

For the busy housewife there is always wisdom in selecting a house frock that has short sleeves, for the task of unbuttoning long sleeves and properly folding them back whenever one has to go about any housework, is not worth the advantage of having long sleeves. And in the new frocks shown this spring there are many that have short sleeves.

FIGURED PONGEE.

Figured pongee has been made into some charming new blouses. It shows scrawling designs in blue—a soft blue. The designs are not so bold and striking as those in the new foulards, neither are they so dainty and flowerlike as foulards and pongees used to be. The blouses are made usually with tan or ecru net in the form of little vestees and collars and sometimes frills at the arms.

WITH A LOAF OF BREAD.

It sounds complicated and elaborate to have croustades filled with creamed chicken or meat or fish; but in reality these croustades are the most useful of all things for serving of left-overs. To make them you take slices of bread about three inches thick and cut them into rounds with a biscuit cutter; on top you mark a smaller circle. Dip each one in milk, then drop into hot fat and let get a golden brown. Fill the small circle with creamed peas or fish, or chicken. A round loaf of bread can be hollowed out and turned into a shell by removing the soft part. Then butter the inside and brown in the oven. After which fill with creamed salmon or oysters.

LOCATED.

"What has become of the old-fashioned man who used to push a perambulator about the sidewalks?"
"I saw him the other day."
"What was he doing?"
"He was cranking his flyver while his wife held the twins."

HUN OFFICERS DYING FOR THE EX-KAISER

Geneva, July 9.—Suicides among the German officers are increasing alarmingly, especially in Prussia, where the number of suicides is thirty-eight per cent more than before it became known that former Emperor William was to be placed on trial by the Allies, according to Munich newspapers.

The wives of officers are also reported to be taking their own lives. The increase in the number of suicides is attributed not only to patriotic despair, but to the loss of the officers' past social positions.

For that matter, it looked like the beginning of the end when those Turkish delegates took a bath.

Sometimes it looks as if the farmer would like to be considered downtrodden, according to tradition. But it is not easy to create that impression now. Adversity is a hard tune to play on an auto horn.
