PITY THE POOR RICH!
THEY HAVE NO VACATIONS

Armour, the Swifts, Merrick and Other Billionaires, Just Can't Knock Off—Only Employees Can Afford to Go Fishin' Nowadays, They Say—What's the Use of Having Millions? Says the Everyday Toiler.

When J. Pierpont Morgan frolicked off for Enrope on his first vacation in five years, as related in a recent Associated Press dispatch from New York, loop toilers riding home in the elevated cars read the news and smiled.

"My, my! snorted they. 'All that cash and can't afford a vacation! What's the use of having millions?' You may be startled to know that an investigation today showed that many of Chicago's millionaires, too have been traveling on high without vacations ever since the war started. And it's a fact; millionaires can't afford vacations today. Their hundreds of thousands of employees this summer went fishing, mosquito swatting, swimming, golfing, hunting, mountain climbing—but the big 'uns? Their hours were too rushed for rest.

"Can't Afford Vacations" Workingmen and $20 a week clerks can afford vacations—but business men can't," declared Harry H. Merrick, head of the Great Lakes Trust Company, and President of the Chicago Association of Commerce. "J. Pierpont Morgan's to be congratulated if he scraped together enough time to go on a vacation. I've had no vacation in seven years.

Most of the wealthy men in Chicago just simply haven't the time to go snoozing in a summer resort hammock. Very few Chicago factory owners, bankers and merchants feel justified now in taking a rest. The tremendous problems of railroad management, high living costs, and labor must first be solved, they say, before they run away to the seashore, mountains or Europe.

"Take J. Ogden Armour. To my knowledge he hasn't had a vacation since 1914. If there's a man in the city works harder than Mr. Armour, I don't know him."

"Bosh!" said Mr. Armour, when questioned at the Armour & Co. offices today. "I take a vacation every day."

"Yes, he calls riding home to Lake Forest in the evening a vacation," laughed Mr. Merrick. "Chances are, he's hard at work all during the ride, thinking over business problems."

Louis and Edward Swift, packers, have been on the job continuously since America entered the war in 1917. Other millionaire meat packers who have toiled day after day since '17 without vacations are Thomas E. Wilson, Edward Morris and Edward Cudahy.

Insull Finally Takes Rest

Samuel Insull, potentate over hundreds of millions of dollars in public service corporations, and head of the state council of defense during the war, has worked two years or more without a rest, according to Miss Ida Jorgensen, his secretary. He's now for a few weeks on the northern lakes. Henry M. Byllesby is a multi-millionaire, too. He is president of the National Security league. But he's had no relaxation since 1914.

Since they went into government service in 1917, there's been no summer resorting for Richard Aishton, middle western regional railroad director for the southern district.

GROCERIES AND FISH CHEAPER IN BOSTON

Investigation Shows Decline in Price of Some Staple Commodities—Sugar is Scarce There.

(Boston Globe, Tuesday)

Speaking in military terms of the war against the high cost of living the meat forces are holding their ground in spite of determined assaults, while fish and groceries are retreating slowly and stubbornly. An investigation of the prices charged yesterday at a large retail meat store, a busy fish market and a central dealer in groceries and canned goods is the basis for the above report.

Rump steak, be it said, is lower—by five cents. Where you could buy a juicy steak on this cut last Saturday for 80 cents a pound—not for the whole steak—you can get it now for 75. (Notice everybody stampeding to buy rump steak.)

Other cuts, however, are mostly fixed and determined, or higher. Porterhouse steak is still available at its former price, 75 cents a pound, top of round is 55, as last week, and sirloin steak is 75. Kidney lamb chops are five cents higher, at 60 cents a pound rib chops are 40, where they were, forequarters of lamb are 20 cents a pound instead of 18, pork loin is stationary at 48, while a leg of lamb is still 38 cents a pound.

Among the fishes, the price tags are most encouraging. Haddock and cod are unchanged at 8 cents a pound, but mackerel has dropped from 25 to 20, salmon is 25 to 30 instead of 35 to 40, halibut is 5 cents off at 30, smelts are 35 instead of 40, and flounders are 10

CLOSE VOTE ON DIRECT ACTION

Glasgow, Sept. 11.—By a comparatively close vote the Trades Union Congress in session here today voted down a resolution declaring against the principle of direct action. The vote was 2,255,000 against the resolution to 2,086,000 in its favor.

The vote was on a resolution of the labor member of the House of Commons for Preston, reading: "The Congress declares against the principle of direct action in purely political matters."

A GREAT REASON.

"Thankful! What have I to be thankful for? I can't pay my bills." "Then be thankful you are not one of our creditors."

ALREADY INFORMED.

Mr. Batz—You ought to brace up and show your wife who is running things at your house. Mr. Meek (sadly)—It isn't necessary—she knows.

cents a pound instead of 15. The grocery store also showed encouraging prices among certain articles, but the declines are mostly small. Flour is $1.75 a bag, instead of $1.83; sliced bacon is 49, instead of 53; strip bacon sells for 45, against 51 last week. Olive oil has dropped 15 cents a quart to $1.25, and 12 cents a pint, to 63 cents.

Sugar sells at 10½ cents, or would, if the store had any, but it hasn't. Lard is off one cent to 35 cents a pound, and the lard substitutes show proportionate recessions. Canned corn and peas remain unchanged, butter is the same, around 62, and eggs retail for about 63, while dry beans are ½ of a cent cheaper at 9½ cents a pound
