INDUSTRY AND LABOR.

British labor leaders are opposing "direct action" and exposing the fallacy of under-production. Speaking before the Industrial League of Birmingham recently on "Labor in its relation to industry," Mr. J. R. Clynes, M. P., urged the employment of constitutional methods in industrial disputes and warned workers that they could make no more grave mistake than to encourage under-production. Scarcity of commodities, he said, was the opportunity of the profiteer. Scarcity might cause some little inconvenience to the rich, but it could cause real and continued privation to the masses of people whose purchasing power was limited. Some forms of profiteering could be punished by the law, but workmen who deliberately restricted output, or who failed to accept any form of industrial development which could make their labor more productive, were punishing themselves and their class without knowing it. If profiteering was conscious pilfering, "ca' canny" was an ignorant act which deprived many people of their real needs. It inflicted no loss upon the favored class, which, wherever it was practiced, it might be designed to punish. It was a sentence passed upon the innocent by those who might not know they were guilty of a wrong. Lessened production meant the greater prospect of unemployment. It impeded recovery from the industrial dislocation which the war inevitably caused. It kept up prices and lowered nothing but the workman's standard of existence. It was in the highest degree harmful to the general public interest, but in a special degree under-production was the enemy of the masses whose pressing needs required more abundant supply of all forms of material for house-building, for food production, the manufacture of every kind of house requisite, clothing and the common daily needs of existence.

The folly of "ca' canny" was also emphasized by the British Prime Minister in his recent declaration of government policy. He declared that "there never was a more fatal error, a more fatal fallacy" than labor's belief that "the less you work the more work there will be for others."

"You have only got to look at the coal trade," he said. "The reduction in the output of coal is at the present moment depriving people of employment. If it goes on, it will throw hundreds of thousands out of employment in the country. You have only got to work it out to its inevitable consequence and you will find that deliberately to reduce output means in the end all-round unemployment on a gigantic scale."

"It is important, therefore, that that fallacy should be exploded, especially by those who speak with authority to labor. It is a very dangerous policy to pursue and encourage, and a disastrous one to labor. The price of food and the cost of material will go up, and, what is still worse, we will not get food for this country because you cannot live forever on borrowed food. You will not get raw material to the country. There will be no work for those who manipulate and transform and transfigure it into the beautiful things that British hands can transfigure any material into. It is a disastrous policy for all classes. That is why I appeal to employers and to workmen to get rid of this ruinous fallacy, which seems to possess the minds of hundreds of thousands at the present time."

COST OF STRIKES.

Taking the average wage at $3 per day, strikes have cost the workers of Canada over $44,800,000 in the last eighteen years and a half, or an average of approximately $2,425,000 a year. A revised summary of industrial disputes from January 1, 1901, to June 30, 1919, as issued by the Department of Labor at Ottawa, shows that there were 2,127 disputes during the period, involving 620,235 employees, and that there was a time loss of no less than 14,937,229 working days. PAINFUL RHEUMATISM

May be Driven Out of the System by Enriching the Blood.

In the days of our fathers and grandfathers rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. Medical science did not understand the trouble—did not know that it was rooted in the blood. It was thought that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief, but did not cure the trouble. In those days there were thousands of rheumatic cripples. Now, medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good, rich, red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism can be cured by killing the poison in the blood which causes it. There are many elderly people who have felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood making blood enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and it is the more general use of these pills that has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. At the first sign of poor blood, which is shown by loss of appetite, palpitations, dull skin and dim eyes, protect yourself against the further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have cured thousands of people—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

January 1 and June 30, 1919, there were 139 disputes involving 105,026 employees and a loss of 2,118,379 working days. During this six months' period the average wage would not be less than $3.50 a day at a conservative estimate, so that the monetary loss to the employees directly involved was at least $7,500,000. Scores of millions of dollars would be required to meet the indirect cost of these strikes. In some cases, as in Winnipeg, there has been marked dislocation of general industrial life, loss of output to factories affected by the disputes, loss to general commercial interests through cessation of orders, and loss to the community through business stagnation.

The prediction that the Fredericton 1919 Exhibition would be "the greatest ever" has come true. All attendance records have been broken and the show is still going on. Those who have not yet seen the Exhibition should make it a point to be there this afternoon and evening. Every department will be kept running full blast up to 10.30 o'clock this evening.

The city has been crowded with visitors during the week and the hotel men and merchants have had an exceedingly busy time of it. As a business promoter there is nothing to beat the old time fall fair.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

None but the brave should brave the fair.

Now—altogether—It's always Fair weather, etc."

And now we want someone to tell us how to be happy though fairless.

Habit is stronger than either judgment or passion.

What some men don't know they are always talking about.

Our idea of a hopeless liar is a person who says he never makes mistakes.

The experience we buy on the Midway don't seem to last through the next fair.

The great trouble with easy-going people is that it is always so difficult to get them started.

How many do you know who allow their religion to interfere with their business?

Easy going men are apt to spend too much time up in the clouds looking for the silver lining.

One of the most difficult things in the world is for a girl who weighs 200 pounds to look cute.

Many a man spends half the time anticipating tomorrow and the other in regretting yesterday.

Our idea of a pleasing conversationalist is one who possesses the faculty of making a long story short.

Lots of men seem to think there is a patent on honest labor and they don't want to risk being infringers.

Incubation in Action.

Poultry Superintendent McCulloch has had an incubator in operation in the poultry building at the Fredericton Exhibition. Yesterday it brought out fifty Barred Plymouth Rock chicks. The little fellows naturally attracted much attention.

RESTAURANT KEEPERS NEXT

Ottawa, Sept. 19.—Two important announcements were made today by W. F. O'Connor, vice-chairman of the Canadian Board of Commerce, in connection with the fight against the high cost of living. The first, that the prices of all foodstuffs in restaurants will be the subject of an investigation. For this purpose the services of local police and special officers will be enlisted. The other is that the order passed in Toronto prohibiting an increase in the price of milk for forty days is effective throughout the whole province.

J. J. TURNER & SONS

The J. J. Turner & Sons Limited, The Tent and Awning people of Peterborough, Ont., have a very interesting booth in the Transportation Building. Mr. C. E. Leonard of Hampton, N. B., the Maritime representative is in charge. This firm manufactures everything made of canvas, including folding chairs and tables. They are the largest manufacturers of flags in Canada. They also make tents, awnings, snow-shoes, toboggans, rubber coats and caps, blankets and robes. The exhibit is a very interesting one and well worthy of a visit.

Going to Chatham.

Much of the live stock and poultry on exhibition here this week will be forwarded to Chatham on Sunday. The C. N. R. authorities have arranged for a special freight train to leave here late in the afternoon on Sunday. Quite a number of citizens plan to go to Chatham next week to attend the fair.

Have you forgotten anything in the line of toilet articles, sundries, and household needs? We carry a full line of your wants.

The Exhibition Lodging and Information Bureau is at our store and we will be only too pleased to accommodate you.
