WAS WAITING FOR A SIGN

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—Refusal to work for the support of his family because "he was waiting for a sign from the Lord telling him when to begin," cost the "Rev." Frank M. Rhoads of the "Holy Roller's" his wife.

Mrs. Holma A. Rhoads was granted a divorce by Superior Judge Flood this morning on the grounds of failure to provide. She said their larder grew empty and the assertion of her husband that "the Lord will provide" was without foundation in fact.

She was awarded $50 a month alimony for the support of herself and child.

"Rev." Rhoads has secured a job at the Union Iron works.

VALUE OF A HUMAN LIFE

What is a man's value to his country in times of peace compared with wartime? In statistical circles this problem was reasoned along the following lines: The U. S. Government stood ready to insure every man in the service for $10,000; and 90 per cent. took out policies for an average sum exceeding $8,000. Deaths computed in blocks of 100,000 would mean an insurance loss of $720,000,000. Compensation to the wounded called for additional payments of nearly $2,000,000,000. Peace time statistics, however, rate American soldiers or sailors worth more than $10,000. The general age of men in uniform being about 25 years, they would have at least 30 years of producing capacity ahead of them as workers in civil life. Earnings average about $1,000 a year, with here and there a $5,000 or $50,000 man. But on the basis of 30 years' working

DEATH BEFORE DROUGHT

Los Angeles, Aug. 1.—"I would rather die than to live to see this country dry."

This statement was made today to police and surgeons at the Receiving Hospital by E. H. Perry, 26 years old, after he had attempted to end his life.

Perry swallowed poison and was found by his father in a dying condition. Antidotes were administered and the young man is reported out of danger.

CAUGHT THE FEVER.

New York, Aug. 1.—Magistrate Mancuso's car was halted thrice by motor cops as he rushed to court to try a big haul of speeders. It was an emergency call.

life at $1,000 a year, each man in the service would be worth $30,000 in terms of money. Thus, by the quick termination of the war $3,000,000,000 worth of man-power was saved to the Government.

From Fighting to Farming.

(1) A Soldier and His Family on a C. P. R. Colony Farm. (2) A Soldier Seeding the Soil. (3) A Typical Colony Farmstead.

Not many months ago two men were in the same battalion in France—the one an officer, the other a private. They both were in at the end and in the short interval since the armistice was signed have come back to Western Canada, received their discharge from the army, and are now occupying neighboring farms in one of the farm colonies prepared for returned soldiers by the Canadian Pacific Railway in Southern Alberta.

Here in these colonies are soldiers of all ranks, a number of whom were in the firing line up to the signing of the armistice. What surprises one most is that so many of them have so soon got back to practical work again and the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be congratulated on having had the foresight to adopt a practical scheme which has made it possible for a large number of men to begin farming on their own account in so short a space of time after their release from military duties. But this company has a reputation for making it easy for the right kind of men to get a start at farming, and its soldiers' settlement scheme is only an elaboration of its original "Ready Made Farm" and settlement plans, by means of which many of Western Canada's most prosperous farmers were enabled to begin farming in a new country under most favourable circumstances and which has contributed in no small measure to their present success.

The soldier settler in these farm colonies has an unusual opportunity to make good. He finds on the farm a comfortable house ready for him to move into with his family and effects. There is a good barn for his horses and cows, his water supply is provided for, his farm is fenced, and he has forty acres of land broken and ready for crop which will bring him a revenue during his first season. For this farm he is not required to pay anything for three years; time enough to give a man an opportunity to bring his farm to a fine state of development and with average luck to have acquired a fair sized bank account as well.

Moreover, if he is unable to purchase live stock, farm implements and seed, he is provided with a team of horses and harness, two cows, a few, some poultry, some necessary implements and small tools and seed for his forty acres, for which payment is to be made under an agreement entered into for the purpose.

Some of the larger implements are available for use by the colonists in common, a set being allotted to every three farms and use by them in turn under the direction of the colony superintendent. A fixed charge per day is made for the use of these implements.

The colony superintendent is an expert agriculturist and it is his duty to assist the colonists with advice as to the best manner of conducting their farming operations. His headquarters is the central control farm, a farm somewhat larger than the rest of the farms in the colony, which is used largely for demonstration purposes, and among other functions, serves as a supply depot for male live stock. The central control farm is situated at a point most conveniently reached by all the settlers in the colony and will no doubt become their chief meeting place.

A more enthusiastic community of farmers will be hard to find anywhere than those in process of formation in these veterans' colonies in Alberta. To see the men at work, for themselves, on their own farms, after what they have gone through is an inspiring sight. The spirit of mutual help and comradeship that is everywhere evident, speaks well for the success of the venture. These farm colonies are sure to become centres of considerable agricultural activity.
