BILIOUSNESS

How to Prevent and Cure

Among the earliest symptoms are furrowed tongue and dull headache. Then come dizzy spells, bad taste, quick pulse, fever and cold sweats. Finally, sleeplessness and vomiting make the condition of the sufferer almost intolerable.

The root of biliousness is with the liver which is clogged and can't keep bile from getting into the blood.

Nothing works with the certainty of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they act directly on the liver, restore the bile to its proper course and prevent it from contaminating the vital fluid.

Of course, the bowels are ordered and relaxed by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, the kidneys receive new tonic, the blood is renovated, and the result is a renewal of good health.

No need for delay, the sooner you use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, the sooner you'll feel the brisk, keen satisfaction of a healthy, well-regulated system. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c

M. P. DIES AT THE CAPITAL

Capt. Joseph Read, of Summerside, Succumbs to an Attack of Pneumonia—Obituary.

Ottawa, April 6—Captain Joseph Read, M. P. for Prince, P. E. I., died here tonight of pneumonia. He had been ill only a few days and was not considered to be in danger until today when he took a turn for the worse and sank rapidly. His remains will be interred at Summerside, P. E. I. John E. Sinclair, will accompany them to the east tomorrow.

The late Capt. Read was a native of Summerside and was 69 years of age. He started going to sea when very young and when sixteen years he piloted a square rigged vessel across the Atlantic. He retired from the sea about twenty-five years ago and was for a time in business at Baltimore. Upon returning to Summerside, he engaged in the produce business and succeeded in carrying on a very large and profitable trade.

The deceased was for some years a member of the P. E. I. Legislature and was also a member of the local government. He was elected to the Federal Parliament at the last election as a supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. A man of superior intelligence, sound common sense and remarkably well informed on public affairs, took active part in the work of the House, and his speeches never failed to command attention. The deceased was at one time president of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Capt. John Read a son of the deceased M. P. won distinction during the war by piloting the ice breaker J. D. Hazen to Archangel, Russia. He now commands the car ferry operating between the Island and New Brunswick.

The Ancient Mariner

Ottawa, April 6—In the death of Captain Joseph Read, member of parliament for Prince Edward Island, in his seventieth year in St. Luke's Hospital from pneumonia tonight the house of commons loses a member universally beloved, and one who was regarded as one of the characters of the house. His long flowing beard, his venerable appearance, his twinkling humorous eyes, his broad shoulders and thick chest all made up a general ensemble which led his friends to dub him in a wholly affectionate manner, "the ancient mariner." This appellation was given as well because Captain Read was a master mariner, who commanded his own vessels in many parts of the seven seas, and who was able to enrich his occasional addresses in the house by appropriate yarns to illustrate almost any subject that might come up.

CANTEEN WORKERS NOT ALL ALIKE TO THIS SOLDIER

(Chicago News)

"I dropped in at the canteen this afternoon," said the returned soldier casually, "I had heard so much about you that I thought I'd take a look in."

"Why, did you?" the girl asked, surprised. "I didn't see you."

"You looked my way a lot of times," the young soldier said. "But you did not seem to see me."

"Why on earth didn't you come up and say howdy?" the girl asked indignantly. "You could see how to get to the kitchen from where you were, I think. I was too busy to look for possible acquaintances."

"I was there for a little observation," the soldier said. "You see, I had heard such a lot about Molly Spicer and the way she worked I wanted to see her."

"Oh," the girl said, "Molly is a very pretty girl."

"Yes she is, even when it isn't one's duty to say so," the soldier agreed comfortably. "Her mother and mine are old school friends and her mother told me how hard it has been for Molly to have to slave so at the canteen day after day."

"You see I've known Molly for a good while and have always liked her. However, I've been away from home for over two years now, and I didn't know but perhaps I might be mistaken. Her mother told my mother all about Molly's Red Cross work and this canteen laboring, and I was just curious to see in what way little Molly had changed. She seemed glad to see me but then she seems glad to see anybody."

"She has a great many friends," the soldier said. "She has a great many acquaintances," corrected the young man. "She is rather proud of being fickle, I believe. Her mother is what is known as a good publicity woman, and Molly gets good advertising continually."

"I knew she would be very popular when I went down to see her at the canteen. Her mother had said how she was. Of course she was real sweet about me and the welcome she gave me. She made the usual fuss over my wound stripe and the cross and all that. By the way, you haven't said much—about me—yet!"

"Who, me?" asked the girl carelessly. "Oh, of course, I am proud to know you."

"Well, anyhow," said the soldier settling back in his chair again, "she was nice and I appreciated it. When one has been endless time in the trenches it seems mighty nice to see a girl again, particularly one who is pleasant to dream about when the stars come out."

"I don't wonder you were glad to see her."

"She came and sat by me," the soldier went on. "The trouble was that from where we sat I could see you working like a slave, making sandwiches, washing tin cups, serving coffee, and tramping until your feet must have ached like the toothache. You didn't have time to see even me because all uniforms looked alike to you and each one was just another hungry fellow that it was up to you to feed."

"That was what I was there for."

"So was Molly," said the returned soldier. "But Molly had all the fun and you all the work. Molly's mother advertises well, but you know we advertisers realize we must show results."

"Oh, have you been given your old position again? I am so glad," the girl changed the subject. "That advertising firm was so fine."

"Yes, and my salary is raised," said the soldier. "So we can be married any day you say. The sooner the quicker."

"Oh," gasped the girl. "But you dreamed of Molly in the trenches."

"Indeed and I did not," the soldier contradicted gayly. "It was you every time."

STOMACH SO BAD THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE CAN EAT ANYTHING NOW

But for indigestion and dyspepsia, many a life might be a pleasant one. The misery which stomach troubles cause the sufferer knows only too well and any one who has suffered knows what joy it would give to be able to eat three good meals a day and not be punished for it after.

Nearly everything that enters a weak stomach acts as an irritant, and even the little that is eaten causes such torture and is digested so imperfectly that it does little good.

Before you can eat heartily, and not pick and choose your food, you must put your stomach right so that it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and permanently curing severe cases of indigestion and dyspepsia that other remedies were powerless to reach.

Mr. H. L. Fairweather, Cumberland Bay, N. B. writes: "I was troubled with my stomach for two years and sometimes was so bad I thought I would die. I tried everything I ever heard tell of, and had medicine from three doctors, but continued to grow worse. One day I read of some wonderful cures made with Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles, I could eat any kind of food without any bad effects, and by the time I had taken four I was in perfect health."

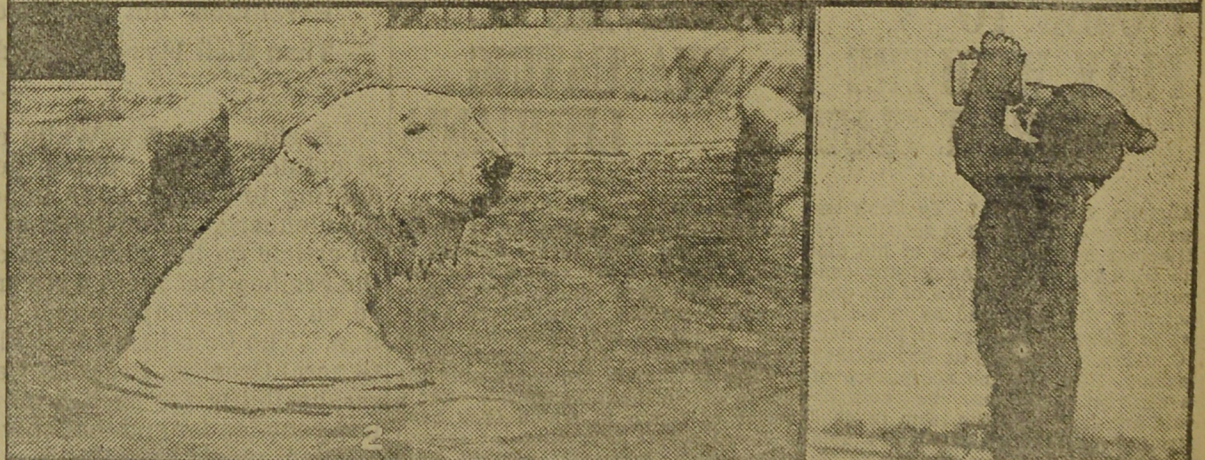

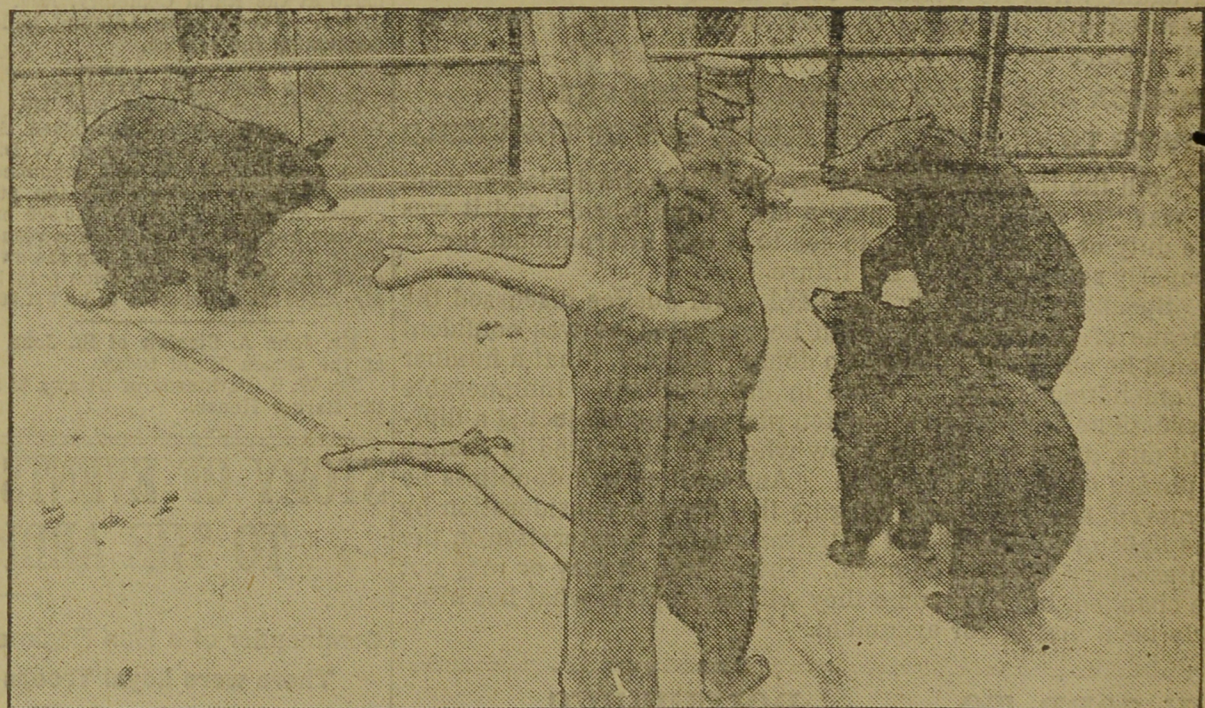

the following statement in its news columns regarding the coming balloting on prohibition in Ontario:

"Sir William Hearst and the members of the government are preserving a Sphinx-like attitude upon the referendum proposals to be submitted to the people in the latter part of September next, but with the secret in the possession of some eighty members enough has leaked out to make it fairly certain that when the referendum finally is framed, it will exact from the people a definite verdict upon these four questions:

1. The repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act.
2. The sale of light beer in sealed packages and under government control.
3. The sale of light beer over the bars.
4. The restricted sale of spirituous liquors generally, under government control.

CANADA AS A BEAR LAND

(1) Grizzly bear at Banff,

CANADA grows bears as well as grains and fruits and other products of the soil.

Bruin is to be found in every province, but it is in the mountain region of British Columbia that he flourishes. There one will find grizzlies and silver tips, browns and blacks and grays, and all the sub-varieties in between, including Teddy and Johnny cubs, among the children. All of these specimens may be seen in the interesting Zoological gardens at Banff, where they are lined up like soldiers on parade, in front of their cages—especially as dinner time nears!

But it is more interesting and exciting too, to see bruin as he runs wild in the woods. One day while following a narrow mountain trail in the Rockies, I was surprised to see a few yards ahead, what seemed like a piece of the trail move to one side.

(2) Polar bear in Banff Zoo.

It was a half-grown black bear. Our surprise was mutual, as we unanimously voted to separate. Or, on another occasion in Muskoka, when we almost walked on a big shaggy specimen enjoying a supper of wild berries. Here, too, we apologized for disturbing him at his meal, and gracefully and quickly withdrew.

On yet another occasion we came upon bear footprints on a snowfield in the Rockies in the Ptarmigan Pass, north of Lake Louise. They were freshly made on new fallen snow. "He's a whopper," remarked our guide, as the toe marks were studied, "and somewhere near too—an old grizzly I guess."

That led to some great bear stories that night around the camp-fire by our guide, who is a hunter as well as a prospector and mountaineer. One especially gave us lively nightmares, of a long struggle he had, alone and single-handed, with a monster grizzly, who, when he stood upright towered above his human foe. It was literally a fight to the death, with the grizzly the loser.—F. Y.
