

DETROIT HAS LIFTED BOOZE LID PARTIALLY

DETROIT, Feb. 19.—The Dixie highway between Toledo and Detroit is now rum runners' paradise. Tonight hundreds of automobiles and trucks are dashing back and forward carrying thousands of quarts of whisky and hurrying back to the Ohio border for another load.

By the edict of the Supreme Court in Lansing the possession of liquor in this State is not illegal; the Act, 161 of the prohibition law, relative to search and seizure, is invalid; all the agencies which have been fighting the booze smugglers are removed from authority.

Col. R. C. Vandercrook head of the State Police, hearing of the Supreme Court's action, immediately ordered all troopers to stop halting or searching cars. Scout cars of the rum runners mockingly tooted their horns in front of the State police headquarters. Crowds gathered and hooted the troopers and the food and drug inspectors.

Soon scores of automobiles left Detroit and in a few hours high-powered cars began to come up the Dixie highway from Toledo. Men known to the

Sat Up in Bed To Get Her Breath

Palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, inability to lie on the left side, feelings as if smothering, oppressed feeling in the chest, dizzy and faint spells, tired, weak, worn out feeling, involuntary twitching of the muscles, sleeplessness, restlessness, etc., all point to the fact that either the heart or nerves, or both, are not what they should be. Any of these conditions should be remedied immediately so as to avoid a complete breakdown of the whole system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will bring energy to the weakened constitution, strengthen and regulate the heart, and tone up the tired, overstrained nerves.

Mrs. William Steeves, Chemical Road, N. B., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart, which was so bad I had to sit straight up in bed to get my breath. I could not lie on my left side at all. I tried doctor after doctor, also several different remedies but got no help from them. My mother insisted on me trying Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. By the time I had used one box, I was feeling very much better. I took in all three boxes, and now I am in perfect health and can enjoy a good sound sleep, and can lie on my left side without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

State police as flagrant whisky smugglers laughed as they passed the troopers. Interurban cars from Detroit to Toledo were jammed to the guards.

Lawyers called on for advice almost without exception have replied it was all right to "go ahead."

Scores of downtown restaurants with jazz orchestras for dancing were jammed to the towers tonight.

Prices have dropped nearly 100 percent. Liquor that sold for from $60 to $72 a case in Detroit Tuesday is selling at from $38 to $42. This is liquor that sells in Toledo at from $21 to $23 a case. Individual drinks that have sold at from 35 to 50 cents are selling at 25 cents.

Truckloads of beer are passing through Monroe for Detroit from Toledo.

Judge Dingman issued an order for the release of 50 men in the Detroit House of Correction, committed for having liquor in their possession. A blanket release for 50 others now out on bail was also issued.

REPATRIATION PROBLEMS OF A DIFFERENT NATURE

Returned Soldiers are Looking for Something a Little Better Than They Were Accustomed to Before the War—Their Horizon Has Been Widened by Experience—Hon. Mr. Calder Gives His Views on a Matter of Great Importance at the Present Time.

(Montreal Gazette)

When Hon. J. A. Calder says that the soldiers who are coming back to Canada "are looking for something a little better than they were accustomed to before the war," he puts his finger upon one of the most perplexing of the many difficulties entering into the problem of repatriation. It is a phase of the problem of which very little has been said by public men in discussing repatriation, but it has become a lively and general topic of conversation among those included under the general description of "the man on the street." Mr. Calder thinks that this attitude on the part of the soldier is not to be wondered at. "Their horizon has been widened, and you must not blame them if, when they come back, they are just a little ambitious." No one is disposed to disagree with Mr. Calder in that. Ambition is the foundation of progress. The disturbing feature of this situation is not the presence of an ambition depending chiefly upon the initiative of the individual for its fulfilment, but an apparently fixed idea on the part of many returned men that the country owes them a comfortable living rather than the opportunity to earn a comfortable living. It is not the idea of the majority, and probably it is not the idea of those whose service entitles them to the highest measure of their country's gratitude. It does seem, however, to be the notion of a very large number. It has been fostered by a disposition on the part of civilians and civilian societies to coddle the soldier, overlooking the somewhat important fact that those who served their country as soldiers in the war did what was their plain duty; and would have incurred shame and reproach had they not so served. The soldier who return to Canada must not be encouraged to think that, being fit, he can avoid service in the hardest battle of all, which is the battle of life.

The duty which devolves upon the state is that of pointing the way, and to some extent, where necessary, providing the means, where fit men are concerned. A greater responsibility, yet one which the people of Canada will never regard as a burden, rests upon the Government in connection with the care, the re-education and employment of the wounded and the sick.

These responsibilities the Government has readily assumed and is endeavoring to discharge. The results, as stated by Mr. Calder, include the provision of hospitals and kindred institutions, through which two thousand men have passed, while some 3,500 are still under treatment and 7,000 are availing themselves of the facilities provided for vocational training. Eight hundred returned soldiers have taken up land under the Government's land settlement scheme, and Mr. Calder promises, it may be optimistically that this number will be increased to "thousands upon thousands," of whom a few will fail, while the majority will be successful. The Government some time ago announced a plan of inspection under which soldiers of non-agricultural experience would be prepared for life on the land. Presumably this plan is in operation, as without it the mere setting apart of land areas for settlement by soldiers would no more than be a half measure and the wrong half. As intimated previously the State is to buy back for settlement by soldiers lands situated within easy distances of settlement centres. This means that there will be made available lands within convenient reach of the railways, and it is important feature of the land settlement policy.

Mr. Calder in the course of his admirable survey, has attempted to set the public right upon matters in regard to which misconceptions have arisen. He claims as he has a right to claim, the help of all the people in the performance of a national task. He points out that reconstruction is a matter, not of a day or a month, but of years, and that cooperation is more helpful than criticism. If this prediction that there is to be more public attention to public affairs in the future is realized, it will not be a bad thing for the country, or for any Government honestly engaged in the intelligent direction of the country's affairs.

An old-fashioned young man is thoroughly likeable, though he is apt to be pretty stubborn.

HAPPY RESULTS OF OPTIMISM WHEN YOU WORK IT ALL THE TIME

(Chicago News.)

"Optimism is all right if you know how to work it," declared the argumentative boarder. "Why, I know a fellow who optimized the gas company out of $.75 and I guess that proves it."

"Willoughby Pinkbubble is the only optimist I know who works at it all the time. Most others are fair weather optimists. But this fellow is always optimistic and it doesn't make any difference to him how fast the troubles come; he can optimize them all, just like the champion hitter lams the good ones that come over the plate. When Will opens up his mail you can't tell whether its remittances or bills he is getting."

"He is as proud of a light bill as if it were an appointment an indorsement or something. He carries it around and shows it to everybody."

"Say, look here!" he bubbles. "If this ain't the greatest luck! I have my light bill here and it's only $9! Say, can you beat it! I had all the light I wanted."

"You may not believe it, but that bird wasn't satisfied with bragging about his low gas bill around the office, and at his club and on the street car and at social functions, where his wife took him, but he actually went meowing around the gas company's office with it. He lined up in the kicker's line, and began that infernal junk of his about how nicely the gas company was treating him, and how he would have quite a surplus of cash this month. In consequence the bunch in the line thought he was speaking sarcastically and did nothing to him."

"But the man behind the counter saw that Will was sincere about it and was really pleased with his bill. The gas man didn't know what to say, as he had no instructions covering such a contingency, and had to go back and ask the main guy in the office what to do with a guy palavering about his low gas bill.

"The main guy decided to go out and let the optimist kiss his hand. Willoughby grasped the hand and wrung it."

"I want to express my appreciation of your considerate bill," he said.

"The man from the back office got all flustered and puffed up and swelled by the compliment. It turned his head completely. It made him want to go still further with his nonpareil generosity, so he went back to look over the meter readings, and he came back and told Will that there had been an error. Will for a moment was almost sorry he had not kept quiet, but what that main guy did to that bill was to knock off $4.75. No one but a prize optimist could ever pull that stunt with a light company."
