OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

MOTHER YEARS.

Things the Children Said Started Her Thinking.

"Where's mother?" demanded the small boy, bursting in after school.

"Gone to a meeting," replied The Family, laconically. The boy's face fell.

"But," added the family, noting his disappointment, "she has gone to tell them she won't be the president of the club for another year!"

"Thank goodness!" cried the seven-year-old profoundly.

When the club mother was told of this incident it surprised her. Indeed, it did more; it moved her to an unwanted thoughtfulness.

Had she really been so much away from home that the boy—such a young boy at that—would notice it, and would care? She had not thought she was neglecting anything at home. She did her marketing and knew about the welfare of the children. She was sure they were all right, even if she wasn't always there with them. To be sure, the club had absorbed her. She had worked like a Trojan to make it a success under her leadership. It was always on her mind, and when there were no meetings there was much writing to be done. She realized that. But the children seemed all right, nevertheless and things went on quite smoothly in the home. What was it the boy missed that made him "thank goodness" she was going to be free of these outside demands?

Finally, it dawned upon her: "A mind at leisure from itself to soothe and sympathize." This business of mothering, it has a brooding element in it that somehow the very young have a right to demand and expect. "As a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings"—a simile the Master used. Was it fair to a young child in these tender brooding years to have a distracted mother attendant upon it, with wings ever adflutted to be off and no leisure of soul?

Children are very sensitive to atmosphere; when it is electrically charged with over-wrought nerves, they feel it. When they turn to one whose mind is not with them and is impatient of their small and pressing demands, they are rebuffed. Where shall a child turn in the loneliness of immature life whose mother has no leisure—ample leisure—to unfold it in those soft wings and give it the comforting quiet of an undivided mind?

It seemed to this club mother, as she thought of it in the light of her legislative committees and sociology departments, that there might well come a time when the State would step in and apportion a certain number of years of a woman's life entirely to her young family, neither requiring nor allowing her to mix in the outside things of life while her children needed this mothering quiet. Of course, later, as the children grow older and go out into the world of action and learning, it will behoove the mother to keep pace with them, for undoubtedly there does come a time when, as a college daughter bluntly put it, a child has more respect for (perhaps she meant comradeship with) a parent who is living her own life brainily and is not always around home "under foot."

The great thing for mothers to know is just when this gentle withdrawal

HOW SALLOW SKIN CAN BE CHANGED TO ROSY COMPLEXION

Every woman with pale cheeks and poor complexion needs medicine—needs a potent tonic to regulate her system.

To touch up the stomach—to insure good digestion—to give new life and vitality to the whole system—where is there a remedy like Dr. Hamilton's Pills?

Dr. Hamilton's Pills enable you to eat what you like—they correct constipation—make nourishing blood—instill force and vim into a run-down system.

If nervous and can't sleep your remedy is Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they search out the cause of your condition and you rise in the morning refreshed, strong, vigorous, ready for the day's work.

Their effects upon insomnia and languor is marvellous. Hundreds declare they soothe and quiet the nerves so that a good night's rest always follows their use.

To look well, to feel well, to keep well, to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are mild, cleansing, strengthening—good for the young or old. Sold by all dealers in 25c boxes.

BRIEF BUT USEFUL RECIPES.

Restore Gut Frames.—Rub with a sponge moistened with turpentine.

Drive Away Aars.—A little quick lime placed in the infested places.

Remove Tar from Cloth.—Rub it well with turpentine till every trace is removed.

Make Leather Waterproof.—Saturate it with castor oil; to stop shoes squeaking, drive a peg into the middle of the sole.

Clean the Hair.—Wash well with a mixture of soft water, 1 pint; sal soda 1 ounce; cream tartar ¼ ounce.

Egg Stains on Spoons.—Rub with common salt.

Clean Gloves.—Pour a little benzine into a basin and wash the gloves in it, rubbing and squeezing them until clean. If much soiled, they must be washed again through clean benzine and rinsed in a fresh supply.

Clean Hair Brushes.—Dissolve a little soda in warm water and pour in a small amount of ammonia. Hold the brushes with the bristles downward and avoid wetting the back as far as possible; shake until the grease is removed; then rinse in cold water and put in the air to dry.

Remove Mildew from Cloth.—Put a teaspoonful of chloride of lime into a quart of water, strain it twice, then dip the mildewed places in this weak solution and lay in the sun. If not effective the first time repeat.

How to Remove a Rusty Screw.—Apply a red hot iron to the head for a short time, the screw-driver being applied immediately while the screw is hot.

Cure Mosquito Bites.—Put ten drops of refined carbolic acid into an ounce of rose water; shake well and apply. (If you hold your breath while a mosquito has its bill in you it cannot withdraw it until you breathe again).

There comes a time when common sense should be sent in to bat for human selfishness.

should begin—just that psychological moment when a child is no longer a child to be led by the hand, but has become another human being like oneself, to walk beside one as a comrade in life. The patience and wisdom of Moses and Solomon both, mothers need.

HOME LIFE IS NOT ALWAYS ONE OF GREAT EASE

(Toledo Blade)

There's a superstition that most women secretly enjoy the glory of martyrdom. However that may be, there's always a mild little feud between the business women and the home bodies over which set has the busiest and hardest existence.

But it doesn't pay to waste any hearaches on envying the person who seems to have picked off all the peculiarly soft jobs in life. You never can tell.

"Going for a ride in the middle of the afternoon with the children, is my idea of something pretty soft," exclaimed the business woman who always insisted that having a home and being able to stay in it was the last word in elegant leisure.

But the morning mail contained disturbing evidence to the contrary.

"Here's a letter," she said "from one of those prosperous married friends of mine, the kind who has a nice home, well to do, motor car and all that.

"I've been getting along with one maid this year," she writes, "and having a woman in two or three days a week. Today, Alice, the maid was going out, so I encouraged her to go early as the day was fine and she needed a little more time than usual for some special errands. So she departed about ten and I washed the baby's flannels hung 'em up, made beds, did dishes (dish washer out of order), got lunch, after a fashion, got three goops, woman and self fed, left luncheon for absent husband who was working on his beloved boat on the river, Elizabeth called up, cleaned up kitchen, bathed three children, man came to repair the dishwasher, (one youngster was in the tub), shampooed two, pared apples for two, oh yes, did the marketing this morning, got some kind of a dinner together, put the baby to bed and came up here to the library to write to you—heard the washer going, went down stairs and spanked one goop who was raising Cain—now here I am again, let me see where was I?"

"And yet they call us the untrained workers," exclaimed the married one as she folded up her letter, "and you business women who board, and who can actually come home and take a nap before dinner, weep around because you haven't got all the comforts of home."
