BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

The New York Sun, a leading American newspaper, published recently a symposium in regard to Canada's future to which a number of well known Canadians contributed.

E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, in suggesting a policy of thrift for the New Year, declared that Canada, as well as the United States, had sinned greatly in the direction of extravagance during the year past. The foreign exchange situation, so far as these two countries were concerned, he attributed to the uncurbed purchases by Canadians of luxuries made in the United States.

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, saw cause for serious thought in the fact that while the United States had already reduced its war-time expenditures by about $800,000,000, Canada confronted an increase of 600,000,000 during the current year. He, however, said that he faced the future with optimism.

W. L. Mackenzie King expressed the hope that the new year and the future would see even better relations existing between Canada and the United States. The hope of the future lay, he believed, in the production of greater goodwill in industrial and international relations, and the world looked to America to realize this ideal.

Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said that there were only two remedies for the Canadian-United States exchange situation. The United States must buy more in Canada, or Canada less in the United States. So far as Canada's immediate future was concerned, Sir Edmund declared that extravagance, both private and public, must be discouraged, and that in the coming year labor and capital must work hand in hand, as they did during the war.

D. C. Macarow, general manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, regarded Canada's future as exceptionally bright. A large degree of co-operative effort would have to be realized, however, if the possibilities of the future were to be materialized. Canada, Mr. Macarow declared, offered every opportunity for American corporations contemplating establishing any branch plants.

THE NEW WARDEN.

In unanimously electing Councillor Tabor C. Everett of Kingsclear yesterday to the important office of Warden the Municipal Council of York honored one of its most useful and deserving members and at the same time honored itself. Warden Everett is beyond a doubt the leading agriculturist in the county of York, and there are few if any in the province who rank ahead of him as a successful tiller of the soil. He operates a large, and well located farm at Kingsclear, follows up to date methods and has achieved wonderful success. He has been a member of the County Council for a number of years and is recognized as one of its most useful members. A man of sterling honesty and marked business ability, he has performed good work not only in the Council, but as a member of important committees on which he has served from time to time. In the spring of 1918 he served as chairman of the committee which looked after the distribution of seed grain supplied by the provincial government, and was warmly complimented on the success of his work. Warden Everett's name is synonymous with honesty and integrity, and his many friends throughout the city and county will be delighted to hear of his appointment to the highest office in the gift of our municipal legislators.

The death here this morning of Mr. Robert D. Wilmot, ex-M. P. for Sunbury and Queens, will be learned of with deep regret by the people of New Brunswick. The late Mr. Wilmot belonged to a family which had been prominent in the public life of the province for half a century. He represented Sunbury in parliament for many years and was later on elected for the united counties of Sunbury and Queens. Although a strong Conservative in politics, his many excellent qualities won for him the esteem of both friends and opponents. A man of the strictest honesty and highest integrity, he occupied a position of influence in parliament and was able to render good service to the country.

Toronto Globe: Sir Robert Borden, after a brief sojourn in Canada, has once more gone abroad in search of health. But what has Canada done to her peregrinating Premier that he should put Sir George Foster in charge at Ottawa? The proper place for the Minister of Trade and Commerce is that to which the Sage of the Grange was wont to refer as "the armchair of old age." Sir George is not too old physically for the acting premiership—he is only in his seventy-third year—but his mind has become fossilized by too much contemplation of the past.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Present prices make one wonder what has become of the old-fashioned man who used to suck eggs.

There's one thing about drinking wood alcohol: it doesn't become a habit.

Had the world come to an end last month the wets would have blamed the dries for it.

Now a London clergyman says the world is coming to an end within a year. They're bound to keep us nervous.

The thornless rose has at last been evolved by Burbank, and however practical and desirable it may be, it's going to put the kibosh on a fine line of poetry.

"A pleasure may be like a pipe," says a western journal. "It may be a solace to no man and a nuisance to another." The same may be said of olive oil, talking machines, a burdock leaf under the straw hat or a horse chestnut for rheumatism.

Mrs. Belmont wonders why women don't add more to their field of endeavor. A mere man thinks that if woman would let go of her husband's ear she would have two hands to work with, increasing results amazingly.

R. D. WILMOT, EX-M. P., DIED THIS MORNING

ered defeat at the hands of the present Senator King. The latter retired soon afterwards to provide a seat for the late Hon. A. G. Blair, who had been called to the Laurier cabinet, and at the by-election which followed Mr. Wilmot was his unsuccessful opponent. At the general election in 1900 Mr. Wilmot was returned for the united counties and he was again successful in 1904. In the election of 1908 he was again a candidate but suffered defeat at the hands of General H. H. McLean, M. P. and soon afterwards retired from public life.

Mr. Wilmot was a staunch Conservative in politics and in religion was an Anglican. He was widely known throughout the river counties and was held in the highest esteem.

Applications More Numerous

The applications to Mr. R. H. Simonds for allotments from the fund for unemployed returned soldiers are becoming more numerous. Up to today at noon he had received thirty-one. Many of the applicants have been turned down as it was discovered that it was through fault of their own that they were unemployed. The Employment Service of Canada recommends the applicants and is able to ascertain who are bona-fide and who are not. One man applied who was receiving $3.25 per day with a whole winter's work before him. Needless to say he was turned down.

Death at Brighton

Mrs. J. Fraser Richardson of Lower Brighton died very suddenly on Monday evening last spring she was operated on for cancer and had been in fair health sitting up all day on the day to her death. She expired immediately on going to bed with no word of illness. Besides her husband she is survived by four daughters Mrs. Harry Sewell and Mrs. Marshall Chase of Lower Brighton, Mrs. Chas. Lee and Mrs. Wm. Clark of Lowell. The husband of the deceased lumbered in the Miramichi woods in the old days and is well remembered in this section.
