YOUNG FOLKS ON THE FARM.

As a result of a new poultry law in Oklahoma, mongrel chickens are rapidly disappearing from that young giant among new states. Pure-bred poultry is replacing the old kind because of the spread of sound informa tion on the subject and the encouragement of the best methods of active since" Miss ANNIE WARD, operations, beginning with children of school age, who are found to take a keen interest in the movement. In each school district is now held an an nual poultry show with numerous Fifteen thousand children have been organized in poultry clubs and the youthful members know why pure-bred stock is better than the old scrub stocks. The financial difference is marked and the children have become familiar with the practical details. At the school district exhibitions the display entered for prizes is fine and attracts spectators of all ages. If any of an older generation continue to mainatin that a chicken is a chicken, they are silenced by the comparisons in sight and beyond dispute.

Pure-bred animals of all kinds would be worth a vast sum to thise engaged in agriculture and to the country as wel. The juvenile clubs are a decidedly important help. The corn clubs, pig clubs, canning clubs and others of a similar nature are vigorously alive, and they are multiplying fast. And the children are allowed due consideration as business partners. The righteous Standard is much worried because the clerk assistant of the Legislature was appointed by order-in-council, and expressed surprise that the members of the opposition did not raise an objection when the matter came before the House for confirmation. The silence of the opposition on the subject may have been due to the act that when in power they appointed not one, but two offi thereby taking the matter out of the ands of the Legislature. It was done to head off a troublesome applicant for the position, and no doubt the Standard editor will readily recall the oc
