

Teeth Without Plates

Broken down teeth we restore to beauty and usefulness with crowns of porcelain and gold. Spaces from which one to ten teeth have been lost we replace with bridgework. It occupies just the same space and looks just like natural teeth. It is extremely durable and at our price is within the reach of all.

The right kind of dental work is the kind we do, at the right prices.

Why people suffer from bad teeth or go without teeth is a mystery only explained by ignorance of our painless methods.

Call and have your teeth examined and get our estimate before going elsewhere---it costs you nothing.

A woman is willing to admit a man's superiority when it comes to translating a railway time table.

There are a lot of sensible women in the world, but as a matter of fact they don't all seem to make a hit with the average man.

Our idea of an easy mark is a man who buys a bottle of hair tonic from a bald-headed barber.

Oh, if Central could get the right number with the promptness with which she can get the wrong one!

EXPLORER BATTLES WITH A TRIBE OF CANNIBALS

Dr. Rice Near Death from Arrows of the White Indians of the Orinoco, in South America — Several Giants Among the Slain Savages—Party Escapes in Canoes and Two Hundred Natives Pursue Them for Days.

(New York Sun)

Those "legendary white Indians" of the Orinoco the conquering savage mountaineers of South America who have been the terror of their copper-colored neighbors for centuries, have been found again, a whole tribe of them, all fit to be circus giants, by Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, famous for his explorations along the Amazon and its tributaries. He arrived yesterday from Para by the Booth liner Alban, with his wife, formerly Mrs. George D. Widener of Philadelphia. The discovery was made unexpectedly. The bleached savages found the Doctor about the same time he found them and for a few days he feared they might take back to the other tribes of their nation some fine American scalps.

Dr. Rice had left his wife and other members of the expedition at Esmeralda, its base, and with Chester H. Ober, of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, several natives and a Venezuelan, Lio Fuentes, had started up the river to map out a small island seven days from the base. They got to the island without misadventure and finished their work. One of the Indian guides chanced to look across the river, ninety feet wide at this point, and was scared almost as white as the big white Indians, to see one of them, stark naked scuttling into the jungle undergrowth.

Several shots were fired in the direction of the disappearing savage. A moment later the jungle was alive with yells and more than 200 fellows all big and some pretty close to seven feet in height rushed from the bushes. They were armed with bows and arrows spears and blowguns. The Doctor recognized them as the very fellows he had planned to discover, "cannibals of a mountain legion considered the most ferocious of all the savages in Venezuela, Colombia or Brazil."

The Doctor decided that if it were possible he would parley with the big "almost white" ones. All the Indian dialects known to the exploring party were used vainly on them. They apparently did not belong to any Orinoco literary society and responded to the attempts to get them to talk by yelling and rushing into the river holding their weapons above their heads. The explorers were unequipped for battle having only one revolver, one rifle and one shotgun. The savages came on impetuously and the three modern weapons popped and popped and after several of the giants had fallen dead in the stream and more had been wounded they lost their valor. The white man's method of killing at a distance awed them. Their own arrows could not do damage at the long distance. They retreated to the shore and twenty minutes later the explorers had packed their camp equipment and instruments into their canoes and started on the trip to Esmeralda.

But the cannibals would not let the explorers out of their sight and kept pace with them on the river bank. Dr. Rice said: "For four days and nights sleep was impossible. The savages apparently had no canoes being a mount ain tribe, and they ran along the bank shooting arrows in our direction. It seems miraculous that none of us were hurt. After the fourth day they became disheartened at their inability to capture us or even to inflict casualties and gave up the pursuit. In three more days we were safe at Esmeralda."

The doctor is confident he rediscovered the legendary white, or near white cannibals. He believes they were seen only once before and then by Ensign Bobadilla in 1763 during his explorations made under the Spanish Government. They are, Dr. Rice said, neighbors of the Marqui Ritaras tribe, who hold them in deadly terror.

Mrs. Rice in accompanying her husband on this expedition the seventh he has made in nineteen years has achieved the distinction of penetrating further into the Amazon wilderness than any other white woman, breaking the record previously made by Mrs. Louis Agassiz in 1869 when she was a member of a party headed by her husband and sent out by the Spanish Government. Others of Dr. Rice's party who got in by the Alban are John C. Couzens who was launch engineer in the sail up the Amazon; John W. Swanson, who had charge of the wireless equipment; Dr. Guy E. Byers of Roosevelt Hospital and James H. Mason, steward.
