

MOTHERS! NEVER NEGLECT WHOOPIING COUGH

Many mothers make the mistake of thinking that whooping cough is not of serious importance, but unfortunately this mistake often leads to the neglect of this dangerous child's disease.

Never neglect whooping cough, for it may be followed by some serious lung trouble.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is highly recommended by mothers every "whoop" which brings the so-much-wanted relief of this trouble. It will clear the clogged up air passage of the mucous and phlegm that has collected, and in this way bring on the sought-for relief.

Mrs. Francis Burlingham, New Gate, B.C., writes: "This spring three of my children took the whooping cough, and they had it so bad I thought they would choke. I was getting pretty worried when my sister wrote me, telling me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I sent for some right away, and believe me, I will never forget how it house."

There are many imitations of Dr. Wood's on the market. Get the genuine when you ask for it. It will pay in the end. Put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pines trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WIDOW MUST PAY $50,000

New York April 1—A jury before Supreme Court Justice Ford decided yesterday that Dr. Joseph A. McPhillips must pay Mrs. Alice W. N. Moore of 151 West Ninety-fourth street $30,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage and for money advanced.

Dr. McPhillips admitted that Mrs. Moore, a wealthy widow, had given expensive presents to him, but denied that he had made love to her or that he had promised to marry her.

WIFE'S SPIRIT HAUNTED HIM

New York April 1—The ghost of his departed wife warning him not to remarry is said to have prompted Samuel Regal, vice-president of the American Fashion Company to jilt Mrs. Cecelia Rosenthal of 570 West 165th street. Mrs. Rosenthal brought her $50,000 damage action against Regal to trial yesterday before Justice Platzeck and a jury.

Mrs. Rosenthal, who is a sister-in-law of the defendant, took to court many letters she said Regal had written to her. After their engagement had been announced, she said Regal told her his wife's spirit had appeared to him nightly, and that in the circumstances he did not wish to marry her.

Regal denies the promise to wed. The trial of the case will be continued today.

HIS LIFE RUINED BY DYSPEPSIA

Until He Tried "FRUIT-A-TIVES"
The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

MR. FRANK HALL

Wyevale, Ontario.

"For some two years, I was a sufferer from Chronic Constipation and Dyspepsia.

I tried every remedy I heard of without any success, until the wife of a local merchant recommended 'Fruit-a-tives'.

I procured a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and began the treatment, and my condition commenced to improve immediately.

The Dyspepsia ceased to be the burden of my life as it had been, and I was freed of Constipation.

I feel that I owe a great debt to 'Fruit-a-tives' for the benefit I derived from them."

RESTIGOUCHE MEMBER ENLIVENS THE DEBATE

Following is the synoptic report of the speeches contributed to the budget debate in the House on Wednesday last by Mr. LeBlanc of Restigouche and Mr. Peck of Albert.

MR. LEBLANC said that it was not without a slight feeling of embarrassment that he arose to say a word in defence of the administration in view of the severe attack which had been made by the hon. leader of the opposition. He would say that they were not greatly worried because of the deficit incurred by the government in 1919, as they knew that it had been honestly incurred in the interests of the people. The deficit could be satisfactorily explained and could be easily refuted before an impartial tribunal. He would congratulate the hon. leader of the opposition on having been confirmed or reinstated in his position. An hon. member for St. John had painted a picture of a would-be leader, and in that picture they could almost see the person of the Chief Whip. There had been several aspirants for that position, but the one chosen was not of the stamp which the Chief Whip had in his mind. Another aspirant for the leadership was his hon. friend Mr. Tilley. That hon. member had been making ready for the change and had been almost ready to say "Veni Vidi Vici," to his friends. But the hon. ex-attorney general in his stentorian tones had informed the hon. member that he had been weighed in the balance and found wanting.

The hon. member (Tilley) had been put forward as the financial critic of the opposition and as such deserved to be congratulated. In his speech he had complained that the hon. premier had not given him and his two colleagues credit for their independent stand. He (LeBlanc) had been ready to applaud their action but regretted to say they had not followed it up. After trying to unhorse their leader, they presented the illogical spectacle of allowing themselves to be whipped back into line. He could not help likening them to The Three Musketeers.

It had been charged that the hon. minister of public works was spending all the money on the great roads to the neglect of the bye-roads. He (LeBlanc) wished to say that such was not the case in the county of Restigouche.

There had been criticism with reference to the administration of the Intoxicating Liquor Act. The hon. member for Carleton had complained of the cost of administering the Act. He (LeBlanc) would point out in the first place that the government was not responsible for the Act whether it was good or bad. In the second place its administration had been almost taken out of the hands of the government. The Chief Inspector had what might be termed carte blanc in making his appointments. If hon. members opposite had criticism to offer they should endeavor to show that there had been misappropriation of public money on the part of the Chief Inspector. If there was a balance shown on the right side of the ledger the Chief Inspector was to be congratulated. The Act had been enforced by money derived from it and if the two sides balanced the Opposition should have no cause for criticism.

Reminder of Daggett

The hon. leader of the opposition had spoken of the marvelous work of the agricultural department under the old administration. He (LeBlanc) wondered what his understanding was of a Deputy Minister, who instead of attending to his duties in exchange for his salary, had spent his time in electioneering. He had been sent over to Restigouche to campaign against the candidates of the present administration. The same gentleman had agreed before a Royal Commissioner and had sworn by all the gods that he would have nothing further to do with politics. Was it good business to have him drawing a salary from the province while engaged in stump speaking on the North Shore? He would repudiate the statement that the hon. minister of public works was building up the trunk roads at the expense of the back roads. There had been $19,622.83 expended on the ordinary roads in Restigouche, and with the exception of $5,360.21 every cent had been expended on the back roads. His hon. friends opposite were trying to camouflage the good farmers of the country by saying that all the money was being spent on the trunk roads. So far as Restigouche was concerned he could say that such a charge was without foundation. The phrase "permanent" roads had originated with the hon. member for Carleton, but the present government felt they had a right to use it. Whether the roads were permanent or not they were better today than ever before. Prior to the last election the then minister of public works had embarked on a permanent road campaign in Restigouche. The roads had been neglected and with an election in sight he had felt that the time was ripe for action. One could have thought they would have gone to a "boggy" place to bring about an improvement, but they had chosen the dryest hill in the whole county. He was bound to say that a good piece of road was the result. It was a permanent road, located on a hill and it was God Almighty who had made it permanent. They had paid men at the rate of $1.50 per day and double teams had been engaged for $3.50 and $4. They built about 3/4 of a mile of road at a cost in the vicinity of $8,000 or $9,000.

MEMBER ENLIVENS THE DEBATE

MR. SMITH (Carleton) Would you like to say those figures were accurate?

Restigouche's Boulevard

MR. LEBLANC said that they might not be strictly accurate—there had been some blasting done, but the road was only three quarters of a mile long and he understood that the total cost was between eight and nine thousand. Taking into consideration the difference in the cost of labor he would say that the work done since 1916 compared most favorably with that performed by the old administration. The road they had started had since been finished and he would say that it was a credit to New Brunswick. Last year they had expended in Restigouche $10,000 on permanent roads, some of which almost deserved the name of boulevard. They had built 5 1/2 miles at a cost of $10,000, and he thought even the Ex-Attorney General would bear him out in the statement that a good job had been done. If hon. members cared to visit the county of Restigouche he would show them a piece of road and if it did not bear out his statements, he would promise them never to speak on the subject again in the House.

Game Protection

The Department of Lands and Mines needed no defence at his hands. So far as Game Protection was concerned he could say that the work was being well performed in the county of Restigouche. The Game Wardens were also Forest Rangers and were appointed after an examination. During 1919 there had been 95 convictions for violation of the Game Laws, which he thought would compare favorably with previous records. Under the present administration there was a law which compelled lumbermen to take the tops out of the woods and pay stumpage on the same. They were also compelled to clear away the slash, always a source of danger. Before hon. members indulged in criticism they should go to the North Shore where real lumbering was carried on. The lumbermen there were not friends of the administration and except in one instance all had voted for hon. members opposite at the last election. Yet those lumbermen would say that operations were carried on today better than ever before. The hon. leader of the opposition had denied that the Order in Council fixing the rate of stumpage at $1.50 had been passed in return for political support. In saying that he was simply playing on words.

MR. MURRAY (Kings) said that no such promise had been made with his knowledge or consent, or of any member of the then government.

MR. LEBLANC said that the hon. member may not have known of it prior to the election but would he state that he did not know of it after the election.

MR. MURRAY (Kings) said he had known nothing about it either prior to or after the election.

MR. LEBLANC said he had every respect for the hon. member and must accept his word but in justice to the House and the people he represented he would say that in view of certain answers which the hon. member had made when a Minister in response to enquiries, his words might not carry the weight they otherwise would.

MR. MURRAY (Kings) said he had denied any knowledge of the matter either before or after election and the hon. member must accept his statement.

MR. LEBLANC said he wished to inform the House that there was need of a great bridge over the Restigouche river to connect Campbellton with

It dissolves the lime and acid accumulation in the muscles and joints so these deposits can be expelled, thus relieving pain and soreness. the Province of Quebec. They wanted that bridge and had a promise from the Hon. Minister of Public Works, that if aid was forthcoming from the federal and Quebec governments the province of New Brunswick would do its share. They also wanted a trunk road between the towns of Campbellton and Eldon. The people did not object to reasonable expenditure but wanted value for it. He wanted to point out that Restigouche contributed one-fourth of the territorial revenue and one-third of the stumpage collected. It was therefore with a degree of assurance that they asked that some of that money be expended in their county. When the time came and they asked that $100,000 be expended on a bridge and $50,000 on a permanent road, he hoped his hon. friend from St. John would not be astounded.

In conclusion he said that it was gratifying in these strenuous times when thrones were tottering to note that the greatest Empire that ever existed was as solid and firm as ever. It was because of that Empire they enjoyed freedom of speech for the humblest as well as the mighty. It had been said that too much time was spent by hon. members in speech-making. He hoped they would always retain the right to speak. He also hoped that time-honored customs of speaking on the address and the budget would never be done away with.

Mr. Peck's Speech.

MR. PECK said that since occupying a seat in the House he had used his influence on behalf of the county of Albert. The hon. premier had said that a lot of time had been wasted in speeches on the address, yet he had read newspaper clippings and had himself taken up a lot of time. The hon. provincial secretary had made an onslaught on him (Peck) because of a reference which he had made to a sale of bonds. In 1918 he had pointed out that $1,000,000 of bonds which the government had sold at 96 had afterwards been turned over at 106.

The next issue was at the rate of 6 per cent and had been disposed of at par. It was only after criticism by the opposition that the second loan had been placed on the market and taken up by the small investors. The government was seeking authority to sell bonds to the amount of $650,000 for permanent bridges. He believed those bonds should be in small denominations and sold to the farmers and the small investors of the province. As it was not a party question every hon. member should take hold and help. The hon. minister of lands and mines should commend those bonds to the lumbermen who would have plenty of money in the fall. The hon. minister of agriculture might persuade the farmers to purchase them. With reference to the hon. minister of public works, the general impression prevailed that he was the spendthrift of the administration. He (Peck) claimed that the government had made a bungle in selling bonds to the value of $2,283,000 payable in New York, at a time when the exchange rate was rising against Canada. Those bonds had been bought up quickly at 96, and had drifted into American hands while the door was open. He claimed that $200,000 had been lost on that transaction. A practical bond dealer had informed him that he was absolutely correct in his statements. He had purchased one bond at 99 1/2 and had afterwards sold it for $100 in American funds. He had deposited the money in the bank and had got a premium of 1 1/2 per cent. Had the government taken the same course they would have made $450,000 on the transaction. He had the coupon and the bank receipt, which he could produce in support of his statement. The hon. provincial secretary had made an attack on him and he thought at the time that he was trying to intimidate a young member of the House. Undignified language had been made use of by the hon. provincial secretary. He (Peck) had been referred to as a "wizard" and a "sucker." At a time when hon. Mr. Speaker was doing his best to raise the tone of the debate the hon. provincial secretary was lowering the dignity of the House. It was no wonder that the report went broadcast that the Foster government was weak when it was composed of such material. The hon. provincial secretary had not spoken but had read his speech. On one occasion he had soared off and had thrown across the floors of the house an insinuation concerning Patriotic Potatoes. He (Peck) had heard a discussion on Patriotic Potatoes during the last session, and had concluded that there was nothing in it. Certainly it had not been shown that any hon. member had benefited from the transaction. The hon. member for Westmorland had stated on that occasion that 50,000 eyes in his county were watching him. An hon. member for Northumberland had spoken with such a sad face that he (Peck) would also have become sad had not the hon. member for York informed him that the other hon. member was playing politics. Other hon. members had expressed their views, the curtain went down, and the matter had not been heard from again until mentioned by the hon. provincial secretary. In regard to the patriotic fund tax of $118,000 he said that it had been assumed by the province, and he told how the money had been disposed of. He would like to remind him that in 1918 the Westmorland county council had refused to pay its share and had not yet paid it. That being so he would like the hon. minister to state where he had obtained that $118,000 which he claimed was put into current assets. He (Peck) had been told if he had any charges to make they would be investigated. He knew something of the history of past investigations. They had put thousands of dollars into the pockets of friends of the Foster administration. There would be no investigation for him. In regard to the Currie investigation the province owed a debt to the ex-Attorney General, as the charges had been proved.

MR. LE BLANC—"Does my hon. friend say that the charges against Mr. Currie had been proven? He was absolutely misinformed. The first word of the Commissioner's Report stated that Murchie was lying."

MR. PECK, continuing, said he would leave the hon. provincial secretary to tell the House what a goose knew about geometry, as he was better adapted for that than for the duties of provincial secretary.

The hon. minister of public works was spending a lot of money on the roads although he was doing some good work. The rural roads in some parts were in a bad state, and the farmers talked of abandoning their farms and moving out to the auto roads. He regretted that he hon. minister had not been able to persuade the Federal government to take over the wharves as had been done by British Columbia. The finances of the provinces were in an alarming state and the debt now totalled $22,000,000. He had a suggestion to offer which he thought the government should act upon. Nine tenths of the stockholders of banks doing business in the province lived outside. The banks paid 3 per cent on deposits. He believed they should be compelled by law to carry a certain amount of the bonds of the province and allow interest at the rate of 5 per cent. The government had a deficit in 1919 of $327,686 and strange to say were showing it on the books as an asset.

The matters he had referred to were of a kind upon which all could unite. It was an age of reconstruction. In New Brunswick development of Water Powers was the most important question of the day and should not be a matter of party politics. He recently had been in Ottawa and had observed the wonderful results of the application of hydro-electric development. The reference which had been made to water power development in connection with the introduction of the Water Power Bill, he agreed with, but he regretted that no reference had been made to the great dam at Hopewell Cape and the possibilities of developing power in that section of the Country. Another matter of importance was that of St. John Harbour development. Lumber destined for overseas was held up there is considerable quantities by lack of facilities. If there were not an improvement this lumber must go elsewhere. Even at the present time some lumber was being shipped to England by way of Boston. The Federal Subsidy was another matter of importance and it was a fact recognized by all that New Brunswick had not received her full share of the value of the northwest lands. In connection with this matter he had a word of advice to give to the Premier and that was the next time he went to Ottawa as a member of a Better Term Delegation, not to rush at first into a Liberal Convention and have the word sent out that that was what he went for. If he received the same treatment there which he gave to his opponents this Province would get very little. The Premier was a young business man who should be of value whether in opposition or in the Government. What he should do, however, was to gather about him the best men obtainable, shake off the barnacles and get new cabinet timber.

MR. DYSART moved the adjournment of the Debate.

MR. BAXTER moved that a bill for police protection for the County of St. John be referred back to the Municipalities Committee to permit of a further expression of opinion.

The House adjourned at 10.20 p. m.

MISS LADERONT SAYS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS HELPED HER KIDNEY DISEASE.

Bigwood Lady Points the Way to Health to the Weak, Weary, Nervous, Run-down Women of Canada. Bigwood, Ont., April 2nd (Special)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills relieved me of kidney disease."

That is the statement of Miss Laurance Laderont, a highly esteemed lady living here. It is short and to the point. There can be no misunderstanding of its meaning. It is a clear and ringing message to women all over Canada. It tells them where they, too, may find relief.

For ninety per cent of the ills from which women suffer come from weak or diseased kidneys. They are the organs that strain all the impurities all the seeds of disease out of the blood. If they fail in this work the impurities remain in the blood and are deposited all over the body. The results show themselves in weakness, weariness, nervousness, headaches, backache, dropsy and rheumatism.

Ask your neighbor if all these diseases cannot be avoided by using Dodd's Kidney Pills to strengthen the kidneys.

St. John Times: Hon. James A. Murray's criticisms of the Foster government are to be read in connection with his own record and that of his administration. He is a poor a critic as he was an administrator.

JOY AND GLADNESS FOR THE CHILDREN

Every child—whether it be poor or rich is entitled to joy and gladness. Health is the birthright of all and there is absolutely no doubt that the healthy baby is a happy baby. It is the baby's nature to be happy—not cross. Only the sickly baby is cross. The well child is a joy to the home—it is a laughing, gurgling, happy little piece of humanity which drives dull care from the household. The sickly baby is the opposite—he is cross and peevish; cries a great deal and is a source of constant worry to the mother. But mothers there is no need of your little ones being sickly. Regulate the baby's bowels and sweeten his stomach with a gentle but thorough laxative and baby will soon be well and happy again. Thousands of mothers have proved this through their use of Baby's Own Tablets—there is a smile in every dose of the Tablets. Give them to your baby and make him happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
