NEW RULE IN EFFECT

Chicago, June 24—A change in the base ball rules governing balls hit out of the playing fields will go into effect tomorrow, it was announced tonight by American League Headquarters. The rule in question is covered by paragraph 48 of the rule book and at present provides that a ball shall be judged fair or foul "according to where it passes over the boundary line of the actual playing field."

The new wording will be the same as in 1919, which says that when a "batted ball passes outside the ground or into the stands the umpire shall judge it fair or foul according to where it disappears from the umpire's view."

The latter interpretation of the rule would have robbed Babe Ruth of at least two home runs this year, baseball officials said, because there are two instances on record where he hit balls into the stands which landed in foul territory but were called fair because they passed over the fence fair and curved into foul ground.

Under the new ruling, if an umpire sees a ball land foul it must be called foul regardless of whether it passed over the boundary fence fair. The change applies to both major leagues.

The man is on his knees.
The man has a knife in his hand.
The man is digging up something—
The man is digging up dandelions—
The man is digging up a drink.

A GOOD BAND IS AN ASSET

In speaking about bands and town bands in particular, we sometimes hear people carelessly say "What good is a band in a town anyway?" Well, first take inventory of the fellow who makes the remark. You may have reasons to let the silly question go unanswered. But regarding the remark more seriously, let us say that a good band is one of the most useful things a town or community can possess. It is one of the best advertisements a town can have. Emerson says something about the world being a beaten path. Well, a good band will make all the roads leading to the town beaten paths, even though the town's other attractions be not enormous, every merchant is benefited by a good band. Many people come to town to attend the delightful entertainments, and they combine shopping with this pleasure. The promoters of business and musical enterprises always have the satisfaction of knowing that their civic demonstrations from time to time will be successful, because they have a first-class band to lead the parade and attract the crowd. A band composed of able players is a tower of strength to any town or section of country. It cultivates the public ear to a high class of music, it does it right at your door too. Every enterprising citizen will boost the band wherever he goes.

SHAD RUN HAS FALLEN OFF IN ST. JOHN WATERS

Salmon Run About the Same as Last Year—Fishery Prosecutions in Three Counties.

Fishery Inspector H. E. Harrison returned Thursday night from a nine day's trip of inspection of the St. John Kennebecasis, Bellisle, Washademoak and other waters in the southern part of the province. As a result information has been laid in seven different cases, one in Queen's county and six in King's County. One of these cases is on a charge of illegally fishing for shad and the other are for pollution of water with sawdust and mill refuse.

The salmon-run this year in the lower part of the river is about the same as that of last year, while the run of shad, as evidenced by those caught in legally set salmon nets is much smaller than that of previous years.

According to the law passed two years ago, fishing for shad will not be allowed till 1922. Yesterday word was received by Mr. Harrison from Overseer W. L. Mersereau of Woodstock that information had been laid in Carleton County against the operators of two mills for pollution of waters. All these cases will probably be tried next month.

ELEPHANT FIGHT IS GRAPHICALLY DESCRIBED

"There is something stupendous about a fight between elephants," says a traveller who spent some years in India in his country's service. "It is a very usual form of entertainment for rajahs to offer their guests on great occasions. Picture a deep court yard among the outlying walls of a native palace. The tops of the walls all around are lined with a crowd of onlookers in the brightest of garments. The arena is simply an earth-floored courtyard with a small mound at one end. The mound is just large enough for an elephant to stand on. It is the 'sacuary.' The animals understand that when one of them takes refuge here he must not be attacked. He has acknowledged defeat.

"Presently the great doors are opened and a dirty gray monster comes shambling in, flapping his ears and moving about in an undecided, leisurely way across the court. Then a second combatant comes shuffling into the ring. Wagging and nodding their heavy heads, the two elephants approach each other at a shambling run until they collide in the middle of the ring, forehead against forehead, with a mighty thud.

Broken Tusk an Advantage

"For a minute or so they push and heave; each tries to shove the other backward, and their respective trunks twist around constantly in the effort to get a grip on the other's neck or foreleg. Then they draw back a pace and hurl themselves forward in another dull and heavy shock. Both have tusks that have been cut off to about two feet and furred with ornamental metal work. In the crash of the collision a great chunk of ivory flies off one of the tusks, and it is soon evident that the elephant who has suffered the loss recognizes its benefit to him. He has now a sharp jagged end to his tusk and he does all he can to take advantage of it. Beating down his trunk any attempt to 'clinch' he tries hard to stab his enemy with the new weapon of offence.

"The other quickly appreciates the danger, ducks his head down and round and does all he can to grip the aggressor in order to save himself. In a few minutes dark streaks glisten wetly on his face; his head is gasped and bleeding from the assault. He presently gets a firm hold on the opponent's neck, and, lowering himself to his knees by sheer weight drags the other down also. The fight then becomes a wrestling match between two monsters locked tightly in each other's trunks, each endeavoring to twist the other off his balance.

Sharp Tusk Wins

"For ten minutes the mighty struggle goes on between the Titans, now on their feet and now on their knees. Then they break away for a minute with lowered heads; Sharp-tusk again lunges forward, and Blunt-tusk, turning his head, to avoid more gushing, receives the charge sideways, and gets partly swung around. His enemy is quick to follow up his advantage and lunges into him again. He gives ground, staggering just to save himself from falling; but he feels that he has had enough. He shambles off toward the sanctuary and clambors wearily on it.

"The fight is over, the gates are opened and a crowd of men armed with flaming torches and long spears come in and drive both elephants close against the wall of the arena.

LOOKS BAD FOR REPUBLICANS

Chicago, June 25—Attorney Gen. Palmer passed through Chicago today on his way to the Democratic National convention and made some rosy forecasts of Democratic victory in November.

"The Republicans are in a bad way to enter a campaign," he said. "Their convention did not produce a platform or a ticket to meet with popular response from the members of the party. There is no dissension in the Democratic party and none is expected. All is harmony."

Mr. Palmer did not wish to speak of his own candidacy, but Warren Van Dyke of Harrisburg, secretary of the State committee, said Palmer will have 400 votes on the first rollcall.

Mr. Palmer said he could not tell whether President Wilson would be up for a third term or whether he would accept a nomination if proffered.

"If the President wanted a third term," Mr. Palmer said, "he would have stated so before this time."

From the top of the wall two mahouts step lightly down on the backs of their respective animals. The moment they have got astride their elephants' necks all possibility of trouble is over the great beasts are at once amenable to reason, and shuffle demurely off to their stables."

CHILD HAS A BIG APPETITE

Eccentricities of Diet and Their Effect on the Digestion" was the subject of a lecture delivered at the Institute of Hygiene by Dr. Saltan Fenwick. The physician mentioned people who can never eat enough; who have an insatiable hunger. In appearance they are lean, feeble, ill-favored, and they have carnivorous appetites. However much they eat they are none the better for it.

One little girl of eight had a special keeper to prevent her from eating the household goods. She would cheerfully devour seven times as much as any other member of the family, and escaping from her attendant one day for a few minutes enjoyed a meal beginning with an entire raw cod, two pounds of kitchen candles and several pounds of butter. She was fortunately found before she got further than these hors d'oeuvres.

A girl was locked in a little walled garden for two or three hours. During that time she ate every leaf she could lay hands on, most of the small twigs on shrubs and was discovered in the act of gnawing a bough.

One boy ate the whole of his clothing. A young woman invaded a dairy ate 29 unboiled eggs, six pounds of butter five loaves, and drank three pints of milk and two bottles of wine; after which, providentially for the dairy keeper, she fell asleep.

HEART SO BAD

Was Not Safe to Leave Her Alone.

Miss Eva F. Yaloman, Krugersdorf, Ont., writes: "I feel that I must write and tell you of the great benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About four years ago I was taken terribly bad with my heart nerves and fainting spells, and was down in bed for about six months. I doctored with two different doctors and seemed to get better, although the fainting spells would not leave me. I would take each terrible fall, wherever I was, that it was not safe to leave me alone at any time. At last I decided to resort to proprietary medicines and took several different kinds, but seemed to receive but little benefit from them. One day noticing the advertisement of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I decided to try them, and before I had taken more than two boxes I could see they were helping me. I have taken about ten boxes, and am almost cured of those terrible spells. I sincerely feel that your medicine has proved a blessing to me, and I advise any one troubled with their heart to try them, as I am confident they will find relief."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are sent on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Toronto, Ont.
