

EASES A COLD WITH ONE DOSE

"Pape's Cold Compound" Then
Breaks Up a Cold in a Few Hours.

Relief comes instantly. A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a severe cold and eases all the grippe misery.

The very first dose opens your clogged up nostrils and the air passages in the head, stops nose running, relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and sniffing! Clear your congested head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice no quinine—insist upon Pape's!

Big question of the day: Will the coal pile shrink faster than the days grow warmer?

It is said there never was a better time to save money than right now. If the easiest time to spend money is the best time to save it, then the logic is good.

ENORMOUS MAN REDUCED WEIGHT

New York, March 1.—Emory Titman, who weighed 668 pounds and was so huge that he could not be wedged through a jail door when involved in a suit over an $11,000 wager on a horse race, has been reduced to a mere shell of his former self. He now weighs but 440 and expects to reduce 40 lbs. more by July. He has done it by labor in a laundry and a Turkish bath house in only a few short months, and physicians say his health is not affected.

THE GIRL WALLINGFORD ASTONISHES THE POLICE

ploy of the leather firm which charged the embezzlement.

She said she had become bored with her humble existence and with the toll it took to earn bread. She lived with her mother a white-haired trusting woman in a cottage. Life seemed hard. She longed for luxury and the life of ease and social distinction. She read the society columns assiduously, she said and started thinking—thinking. Then the ghost of a chance came, and she took it. For a while the way seemed clear. But listen to "Monda Rose's" own story. She said when arrested in Winnipeg, and has reiterated it since:

"I have lived my life and am not sorry. It was so slow to be the dutiful, obedient cashier and book-keeper but it was just the opposite to be liked by the best people and told their secrets, and I loved the two extremes. I loved to blend the two lives in one experience. It was like a wild romance.

Lived at Night

"By day life was a dull round of figures, shorthand notes and tyrannical bossing. It was after 5.30 o'clock in the evening that I began to live. I expect I was a social climber, as they say at first; but I had studied during those long years to be perfect in all games of etiquette and I won out. Motoring, horseback riding and feasting was in my scheme of things. I had a wonderfully strong constitution and my combination of day work and night life sapped my strength, but never tired me to the point of fatigue.

"I learned to speak correctly and write in a terse, correct style of English. My gowns were chosen with delicacy and care. I always paid my modiste's bills and was a model customer. Moonlight boating parties with the elite and fancy balls were not uncommon in my life. I lived—I lived!

"The taste of champagne was a droll antithesis to the humble tea that I drank for luncheon. Capon and quail game and fish, viands fit for royalty were mine at night. At noon it was often rolls and coffee or tea. Funny, isn't it? I hardly understand it myself sometimes.

Grew Fond of Life

"Edgewater did not know I worked. I did not want them to know, of course. I wanted to keep it to myself and did so. Society accepted me, and I found they were indeed human beings. Candidly I grew so fond of the social whirl that I almost decided to cease being the working Rose and become Rosa Monda altogether.

"When I arrived in Winnipeg I selected a suite at the Fort Garry Hotel and paid for it in cash. I remained there but a few hours. With nearly $2,000 in my purse I started on a shopping tour and purchased a new seal coat. Some feeling akin to intuition told me that it was the beginning of the end.

She Was Shadowed

"I felt shadowed as though something were closing in on me, something that would lay rude hands on the social butterfly and crush its pretty wings. It was a weird sensation. But I determined to carry it out to the last fling. I was laying my last cards on the table and was waiting to see what luck I would have with my final wager.

"Late the same day I took a room in a fairly exclusive residential section and paid a month's rent in advance. At any rate I would have a home until found by the police. I was in front of the general delivery department of the Post Office when a hand was laid on my shoulder. I didn't need to turn. I knew the jig was up. It was a detective.

"My horse I thought of him, a fine blooded animal, that I had left at a riding school in Chicago. My canary and my dogs. But just then my thoughts were mostly on Rose, the girl with two lives. And it has been on Rose much of the time since, I do not know what they are going to do with me and neither do I care much."

CAMOUFLAGE DOCTOR LOST HIS NERVE

Detroit, Mich., March 1.—With a complete kit of surgeon's tools and a professional air, "Dr." Earl W. Collard, thirty years old, asked permission to witness an unusual operation at Ann Arbor Medical School the other day, and then dropped in a dead faint as the surgeons' knives cut deep into the flesh of the patient on the operating table.

Collard came to Detroit recently and represented himself to physicians here as a Harvard medical graduate looking for a location. His apparent social position, together with a knowledge of medical phraseology, completely fooled the medical men and when he suggested he was interested in laparotomy, he was invited to attend a clinic at Michigan University. Dressed in the usual long white gown and cap, "Dr." Collard entered the operating room in the wake of the surgeons.

He looked interested while the anesthetic was being administered, but was observed to turn deathly white as the enarrows steel knife made the preliminary incision. A moment later he started to walk from the room, but fell in a dead faint before crossing the threshold. He was later arrested for stealing a gold watch and chain and a $600 diamond ring from an Ann Arbor surgeon.

ASK FOR A QUARTER OUNCE OF FREEZONE

Any corn will dry up and lift out, says a Cincinnati authority.

Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this authority.

He says that a few drops of a drug called freezone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is said to simply shrivel up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue.

It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce obtained at any drug store will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Cut this out, especially if you are a woman reader who wears high heels.

A Voice From Western Canada

(1) Sheep grazing on uncultivated land in the Brooks District.

(2) A part of the Brooks Aqueduct showing one end of the syphon where it goes under the C. P. R. Main Line.

(3) A first year's crop of wheat in the Brooks District. The house was erected under the C. P. R. Loan Policy.

At Cassils, Alberta, 73 miles west of Medicine Hat, and 103 miles east of Calgary, on the coast-to-coast line of the Canadian Pacific Railway an area of land was taken up this year by a colony of Seventh Day Adventists from Washington and Oregon. They certainly made up a splendid community. To my great surprise, most of them are taking up farming for the first time. There are professional men, business men, clerks, teachers, music teachers, nurses, mechanics, carpenters and representatives of several lines of work. A desire for healthful occupation, together with the necessary ambition to make money, has led them to settle in this country.

The climate is delightful, the intense heat being usually tempered by cooling breezes. Though the summers are short, the long daylight hours with continuous sunshine, force the crop to early maturity.

I have seen thousands of sheep grazing in the prairies, the huge herds of cattle and horses ranging everywhere and the golden harvests as far as the eye could reach. Huge tractors do all the heavy work.

On account of the drought this year, the crops on dry land in this section have been almost a total failure. But on the irrigated land, they have surpassed all expectations. This particular community has just been holding its agricultural fair at Brooks, six miles east of here. The exhibit of cattle, horses, sheep, grains, alfalfa and vegetables was certainly far above the average. This is especially surprising, as it represents the first attempt at farming in this section of the country.

The water supply for irrigating alfalfa here comes from the Rockies, about 150 miles west through the Bow River. At Bassano there is an immense dam, costing three and one-half millions. From this dam, the water is conveyed through large main canals to the smaller ones. Each quarter section has a headgate or weir where the water is measured to the farmer. Then the farmer has to build a main ditch with many laterals, to get the water spread over his land. The "ditch-riders" regulate the amount of water that each farmer shall have. They oversee six miles of ditch. The farmer pays the Canadian Government $1.25 an acre per year for the use of the water.

The flume at Brooks, a great piece of engineering work, is about four miles long and 300 feet high. It carries the water from one hill to the other, a distance of about four miles. The structure of re-enforced concrete cost over two million dollars. Over twenty millions have been spent on this irrigation system and as much again will be spent before it is completed.

A short distance east of Cassils is the soldier colony; 50 ready-made farms fenced, with necessary buildings, and 50 acres of land broken. These farms are sold to returned soldiers on long term easy payments. To the south is Taylor's sheep ranch where they have over 25,000 head of sheep. This is only one of the many large sheep ranches in this section. Near Brooks is the farm belonging to the Duke of Sutherland—a farm of 7,500 acres. This year they have 3,000 acres in wheat, and 500 acres in alfalfa. Some of the land produced 3½ tons of alfalfa to the acre. They have had three cuttings this year. There is so little rain here that there is no difficulty in curing the hay. Twelve miles south of here is Lake Newell, the fishing ground for everybody. Wherever there is any water, there are thousands of ducks and geese. The duck hunting season has just opened and we have been well supplied. Flax is a good crop. The seed is used for linseed oil, the stalk, which is very tough, for linen fiber. It now brings $4.92 a bushel. Wheat and oats are usually put in for the first crop.
