KANGAROO COURTS ARE INSTITUTED IN AUSTRALIA

Prisoners at Botany Bay Said to Have Invented the Idea to Relieve the Monotony of Their Existence—Idea Spread Finally to the United States—These Unique Tribunes are Only Held in Gaol Prisons.

Kangaroo court is an expression which, however strange it may be to the layman, is familiar to most United States marshals, post office inspectors and the police forces of large cities, remarks a writer in the Detroit News. What it really stands for is explained by a post office inspector who has had much experience with offenders and criminals.

It appears that in a number of the larger prisons in this country the prisoners, from time to time, are accustomed to hold what they call kangaroo court, and that every notorious criminal in the United States is probably not only familiar with the term but has no doubt presided often enough as judge or prosecuting attorney in this relation, or perhaps has been tried for some of the numerous mock charges that are preferred against those who have the misfortune to be haled before such a tribunal.

Such a court is held only in the great prisons of the country, being entirely unknown in the country palls. The institution of kangaroo court seems to date back some 40 years in the United States.

In the days when Australia was a penal colony the convicts at Botany Bay, by way of amusing themselves and relieving the monotony of prison life, used to organize a sort of mock court at which the shrewdest and oft-

The Progress of Manitoba.

(1) On the left the Royal Alexandra Hotel, Winnipeg, and on the right a portion of the C. P. R. Station Building. (2) Fort Garry, Winnipeg.—A plate on the wall, presented by Winnipeg Canadian Club, tells its story.

There is an Indian legend of a race of people who dwelt upon the Canadian Prairies before the Red Men came, but why they vanished or who they were no man knows. Vanish they did and their place was taken by wandering tribes of Indians who hunted and fished, built their wigwams and their camp-fires, told their wild legends and smoked their peace-pipes for many a generation before the foot of the white men ever visited the plains that were their heritage.

The first discoverer of Manitoba was the ill-fated Henry Hudson, exactly 310 years ago. Others followed in his steps. Presently came the adventurer, de Grosseillier, who after spying out the land, went back to England, where, with Radisson, his companion, and under the auspices of Prince Rupert, he obtained large grants of land from Charles II. and formed that Hudson's Bay Company which was destined to play so great a part in the future history of Canada. During the one hundred odd years that intervened between that time and 1912, the story of the Hudson's Bay Company is the story of Manitoba. The years are filled with its treaties with the Indians, its feuds with rival companies and its usurpation of all the trade of the vast country over which it ruled, for the most part, beneficently. Of its rivals the most important was the North-West Fur Company. Bitter was the contest between these two companies and many a skirmish was fought between bands of their adherents, until about 1817 the two companies were united and peace followed.

Early in 1812, however, Lord Selkirk, after buying a controlling interest in the stock of the Hudson's Bay Company, obtained from it a grant in fee simple of 116,000 square miles of Red River territory, between the present international boundaries and Lakes Winnipeg and Winnipegosis. This land he proceeded to colonize with settlers from the Scottish Highlands. The Colony grew and flourished. About 1830 the population of Red River was 1,500. In 1835 the Council of Assiniboia was organized to govern the colony and Fort Garry (now Winnipeg) was built.

From this time on the history of Manitoba is one of growing prosperity, broken only by the Riel rebellions of 1869 and 1885. To Sir Edmund Head, Governor-General of Canada in 1861, is due the fact that Manitoba was confederated into the Dominion. In 1869 the Hudson's Bay Company, of which he was a director, transferred back to England, in consideration of a sum of £300,000, the lands which it had received from her some two hundred years before. England transferred the territories and the debt of $15,000,000 to the young Dominion of Canada and on June 17th, 1870, Manitoba became a Province of that Dominion, taking her place among her sisters under the Lieutenant-Governorship of Adams G. Archibald. In 1871 she elected her first Premier, Hon. H. J. Clarke.

Manitoba has always been a great cattle raising province. But besides this she possesses many other sources of wealth. In the valuable area now known as Northern Manitoba she has mineral deposits of great value, water powers to develop immense power, fisheries capable of yielding large returns, and bearing animals innumerable and much good land available for the harder crops. The climate in this northern part of Manitoba is extreme but healthy.

Up to 1870 the history of education in Manitoba is largely written in the heroic efforts of the Church, both Catholic and Protestant. In the beginning of the Provincial era there were 33 parish schools in operation, but in 1876 the number of schools had grown to 53. Last year there were 3,200 teachers and 115,000 pupils in the public and high schools of the Province.

It is a far cry from the old trading post of Fort Garry to the big, modern city of Winnipeg. Fifty years ago this city was a mere village of only a couple of hundred people. Main Street was only a prairie trail. There was no school, no railway or telegraph connection with the outer world; no banks, except that the Hudson's Bay Company accepted deposits and issued paper money of its own; and property owners paid no taxes. But after 1870 the place began to grow. Three years afterwards it had a population of over 2,000, and in 1874 it became an incorporated city, with F. E. Cornish, a lawyer, as first Mayor.

In 1880 the building of the C.P.R. east and west from Winnipeg was begun and in 1885 the first through train from Montreal arrived in the city. Now the C.P.R. freight yards at Winnipeg are the largest in the world. Winnipeg's growth became steady and solid. In the period just before the war Winnipeg's population had increased to 183,378 and her aggregate industrial production for the year 1918 was $62,000,000. She is now the third city in Canada and the little colony, begun by Radisson and his fellow adventurers, is now a great and flourishing part of the wide Dominion, whose confines stretch from sea to sea and "whose name is known in all lands."—From the Manitoba Free Press.

Our Travelling Salesmen Enjoy
Selling Red Rose Orange
Pekoe Tea

Travelling salesmen work very hard as a rule. They put in long hours, and the pleasure of travelling is not so great as to those of us who mostly live at home.

Naturally, therefore, these men must get a great deal of their pleasure and satisfaction from their work—they like to sell the finest of products and represent a good "house".

Our travelling salesmen are exceedingly critical of the products which they are asked to sell, and when we told them last January that we wanted them to sell a new tea of extra quality—much finer than has usually been sold in Canada—they were keenly interested, put the new tea to many tests amongst their friends, and gave it a lot of time and thought.

Having convinced themselves of the extra fine quality of Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea, they started on their trips full of enthusiasm.

Their satisfaction, however, has been much greater on their later trips, because of the splendid renewal orders which are following their first sales.

Like good merchants, our salesmen enjoy selling the very finest tea—Red Rose Orange Pekoe.

en the worst criminals of the lot presided as judge, while others acted as jurymen, prosecuting attorneys, bailiffs, criers and the like.

At such trials the prisoners were wont to take on recent arrivals from England on all manner of mock charges, such as snoring too loudly, washing their faces with soap, and so on. If it were that among the batch of new-comers, convicts just from the old country, there were several who possessed money, court was immediately convened and the ones suspected of having funds were haled up on the charge of having red hair or wearing box-toed shoes.

The trial was held with mock gravity and decorum, and in the end the prisoner would be found guilty and fined whatever amount he was known to have on his person for the offense charged. The money thus obtained would be divided among the old, long term convicts, who would buy tobacco and other luxuries with it, while the victim of this form of extortion would have no recourse except to await the time when he himself got a chance to preside as judge or sit on the jury at the trial of some new arrival.

It was called kangaroo court because in those days the Botany Bay convicts spoke of themselves as kangaroos, an animal very abundant, as everybody knows, in Australia.

The institution, as well as the term, traveled from Australia to England, whither it was brought by returning Botany Bay convicts whose terms had expired. It had a short life in England however, where it was speedily discovered by the jailers and turnkeys and broken up; but it was not long afterward that it found its way into the prisons of the United States where it has remained ever since.

AMHERST GIRL
SPIRITED AWAY

Amherst, Oct. 13.—Chief of Police Pickrem left last night on the Maritime Express for Montreal, where he will bring back to this town Frank Burdendy, who is now held by the Montreal police. Last Wednesday night Burdendy suddenly left town in company of an Amherst girl who is but seventeen years of age. The whereabouts of the two remained a mystery for several days, but from clues placed in the hands of the police Montreal was looked upon as the objective. The Montreal police were communicated with by Amherst, with the result that this morning the local chief received word that the couple had been located there. Just what charge will be preferred against Burdendy is not known.

The young woman concerned is, as stated, but seventeen years of age, and had been in the employ of the Highland View Hospital. On several occasions, it is alleged, she had met Burdendy, but upon learning that he was a married man repelled his affections. It is stated that on Wednesday night the girl motored to Sackville. There the Ocean Limited was boarded for Montreal.

The facts as revealed from witnesses show that the young woman spoke not a word while in the taxi enroute to Sackville. Furthermore, she left all her personal belongings save the everyday clothes she had on, in the hospital. As the facts of the case became known around town, there has developed feeling of much indignation, for the young woman, who is one of excellent reputation, is regarded as the victim of a preconceived plot. Burdendy is a married man, and has a wife living in this town. He is a Russian, who first came to Amherst with a battalion of the C. E. F.
