Some men are like the crawfish, set in their way when going the wrong way.

I am offering for sale twenty five pure bred Barred Plymouth Cockerels of high laying strain. These birds were imported as baby chicks from one of the largest poultry farms in the New England States. All are from trapped stock, having an egg record of from 230 to 250 eggs per year.

Remember, a high class pedigree male bird is fifty per cent of your flock. I have undoubtedly the finest poultry stock ever brought to Fredericton. One of these birds purchased across the line would undoubtedly cost from $8 to $10. I am selling them from $4 upwards.

Will be sold for immediate delivery or kept until September.

Book your orders at once as they are going fast.

AGRICULTURE IS MAKING SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS

Farming is Now a Business, Not a Sideline or an Experiment —Information from Practical Men is Welcomed by Farmers—All in the Community Benefit from the Prosperity of the Farm.

(Halifax Chronicle)

One of the most conspicuous and pleasing signs of the times, which now meets one everywhere in Nova Scotia, is abundant evidence of the rapid progress of agriculture. Districts which a generation ago were falling into apparent decay are blooming like a rose, and are replete with promise. It is the people who have changed—not the land. Nova Scotia was always a goodly country. The people are finding it out and beginning to do their part. It is amazing in view of the facts that even "political farmers" could have been found to oppose the Murray Government in the recent electoral campaign. We do not mean to say that Premier Murray and his administrative colleagues have wrought the great change although they have contributed so effectively and willingly to it but that they have been alive to the requirements of the hour. They have hearkened to the awaking voice of the farmers and have done everything possible to comply with its demands.

The College of Agriculture at Truro is perhaps the very greatest of all the public monuments which they have erected. Every practical and "non-political" farmer in Nova Scotia takes off his hat to it. It has taught him and his sons and daughters what farming really means and what its interests and possibilities are. It has given the countryside not only a new lease of life but a conception of the illimitable possibilities for the future. It has imparted vision and imagination to the people both old and young. Those who visit it come away inspired. Those who take its courses become missionaries to spread its gospel—"good news"—far and wide.

A Business Now

"Agricola" won local fame a century ago and well deserved it, by teaching the very rudiments of agriculture in Nova Scotia which every intelligent farmer and farmer's son now not only knows by heart, but puts to daily practice on the land. Farming has become a business, not a lottery or an experiment. The farmers want to learn still more. They are hungry for information and guidance, not from mere theorists, but from practical scientists. They realize that a scientist is not a man of fancy but one of experimental knowledge. They may well do so, for they have been convincingly taught by Principal Cumming, who has made the Provincial College and Farm at Truro the greatest of Nova Scotia's assets. It is safe to predict not only that it will endure, but that it will become more and more valuable as the years pass.

To our farmers themselves, and not to the politicians, this monument is due. It was they who asked for, and they who got it. To talk of farmers not having due influence in public affairs in view of the facts, is ridiculous. While the farmers were content to follow in the foot-steps of their grandfathers, those whom they elected as their representative, were content that they should do so, because they knew no better. When the farmers awoke, not to "politics" but to agriculture, the politicians were quickly aroused, and acted as desired. But this was long before the days of "farmer politics." It was a community movement, just as was the support given to fair and necessary labor demands. Ours has been a true democracy, in which all have been for each and each for all.

The attempted break-up into classes or groups is absolutely without justification, and can produce nothing but ill. It cannot but do peculiar harm as between the farmer and the community, because of their special relations.

When Ponzi gets loose again he should be brought down this way to put the black fox business back on the map.

Lima Beane says the names of flowers always bother him; he's forever getting petunias mixed with perunas and lydiapinkhams.

It may be true that the good die young, but it does not necessarily follow that the wicked who experiment in run-running will live to the sere and yellow leaf.

People who have insisted that skirts should remain below the knee and made a failure of their protest might see what they can do with an indignant demand that skirts shall come below the waist.

This is why we, and all thoughtful people, rejoice so sincerely in the growing prosperity of the farmers and the enlightened interest which they are taking in their vocation. Their progress means the progress and prosperity of the country. They wrong no one. Their hand is against none. No hand should be against theirs. They buy as well as sell in the open market. They have no combinations to force up prices unduly. The "cry" which has been heard against them as "profiteers," carries its refutation on its face. They are the friends of all and the foes of none. "Kenora" A Summer's Idyll

Regatta Day - Kenora

There are some places which never lose their charm as holiday resorts, and which as the seasons pass attract visitors as a magnet does the needle. Such may be claimed for Kenora and the Lake of the Woods. This lovely spot is within easy access to all situated as it is on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the beautiful Province of Ontario.

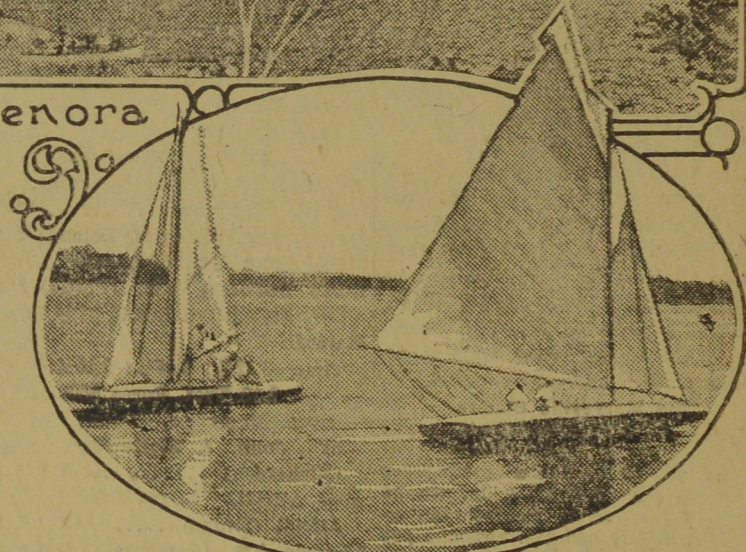

The Lake of the Woods is a perfect earthly Paradise, thronged in its thousands of islands most of which are owned by private Canadian citizens who spend their summers there leading the simple life.

A splendid way to see the beauties of the Lake of the Woods is to make a stay at Kenora and from there hire a motor launch and go sailing among the islands. The Lake is studded over by a perfect archipelago, the islands numbering several thousand, some mere islets of jagged rock, others being several miles in extent on which are built pretty bungalows and camps.

Most of the islands are thickly timbered, the trees growing to the water's edge, and in the early summer months water lilies, both golden yellow and pure white are found everywhere. Blueberries and other wild fruit also grow abundantly on most of the islands, hundreds of pounds being picked by the Indians and shipped to the different cities for consumption.

Kenora itself is a pretty little town built on the lake front, commanding a splendid view of the lake. It has a large number of stores, a Public Library, and is lit by electricity. The Tourist Hotel, in the Main Street, gives tourists every comfort.

There are camps on several of the larger islands run by the Y.M.C.A. and the M.L.A. of Winnipeg, where the tourist can have accommodation at reasonable rates, while on Coney Island there is a fine sandy bathing beach, and pavilion for dancing.

Happiness seems to be the dominant note at Kenora and its vicinity, everywhere one meets parties of young people on pleasure bent, boating, bathing, or picnicking, and the stillness of the air is broken only by merry laughter, or the song of the birds.

The district is much frequented by artists, photographers, and sportsmen, each finding a wide field for his particular bent. The lake is a perfect angler's Paradise, many a trout being landed before break of day to provide breakfast for the campers. Here too in their season are to be found moose and bear, as well as other big game.

A short distance out of Kenora is an Indian Reserve, which is a never failing source of interest to tourists who wish to see the Red Men in their native woods.

A few miles out of Kenora are the little towns of Norman and Keewatin, both of which are within walking distance, the road winding on the hillside affords an uninterrupted view of the lake, every bend opening up new beauty spots.

Who can ever forget the glorious moonlight on the Lake, the intense stillness broken only by the dip of an oar or the throb of a motor boat, when the shadows deepen on the islands, and "when the moon sees her unwrinkled face reflected" in the blue water? Kenora is redolent of romance, is indeed like a tone poem of perfect music where there is no discordant note, and where as each evening closes one can say, we have come to the end of a perfect day.
