VIENNA WOMEN BELIEVE IN PUTTING ON STYLE

Vienna Described as a City of Glad Rags—The Wealthy Classes Still are Squandering Fortunes on Fine Clothes—Many Fancy Costumes Were Shown During Fashion Week.

Special to Daily Mail. Copyright 1920 by Cross Atlantic News Service

Vienna, Oct. 5 (By mail).—Although miserable social conditions and hunger have forced thousands of Viennese women literally to sell themselves for a loaf of bread the wealthy classes still are squandering fortunes on clothes in order to maintain their reputation as "smart dressers".

Recently a "fashion week" was held here and an immense variety of the latest evening dresses of gold and silver brocade were shown. The colors included tile red, blue, green, moleskin gray, yellow, black and lavender. Some beautifully finished and artistic afternoon dresses included crepe Liberty, velour and chiffon and were decorated with fur and embroideries. Cloaks are fashionable now and are being made in tile red, light gray and beige and are of cape or kimono shape. Short sleeves and a deep decollete at the back are much in favor. A large display of smart hats, many of velvet, is being shown. Huge sums are being spent for these things by the wealthy, often in order to escape the new taxation and capital levies, but the masses walk about in rags.

City of Glad Rags

Vienna these days may truly be said to be a city of glad rags—and just rags. The only medium in apparel seems to be overalls. Those lucky people who can afford them wear beautiful clothes—the Viennese were always well dressed—and those who can't must choose between overalls and any old thing. A strong "overall" movement has been initiated among the new poor government officials, teachers, painters, musicians, actors, the middle class generally, are enrolling as members of the Overall Club and bearing the ridicule of the press.

In consequence of the miserable social conditions, the position of women has never been so bad in this city as now, many girls who are still merely children being seen on the streets. Many women out of sheer hunger sell themselves for a meal, and the evil has pervaded also the so-called "better classes", as they cannot earn sufficient by a decent profession to make even a scanty living.

Speculators and profiteers who have waxed exceeding fat, and the many thousand foreigners who live here at present, spend lavishly on all kinds of pleasures, and this luxury is a poignant contrast with the misery and starvation all around. The city is much better provisioned than even six months ago, but the masses can't afford it. He reports three successful cases, one middle-aged and two old men. The Professor has also experimented with much success on rats. On publication of his discovery he received thousands of letters, but he complains of not having any means at his disposal, no proper laboratory, no servants and no animals for experiment—hardly afford the prices.

Blood Transfusion

Several cases of blood transfusion have caused some talk in this city lately. A rich woman who had undergone a difficult operation was given a transfusion of half a tube of blood taken from a poor girl expecting a child at the same hospital. The girl, who received an insignificant reward, has accused the doctors of having deceived her and drawn her blood against her will.

A greater sensation has been caused by an alleged discovery by Professor Steinbach, who contends that by a certain operation, old and middle-aged people can regain part of their youthful strength and energy, and prolongments, and he hopes that in a more prosperous country such as America, his labors may be continued and profited by.

Theatrical life in Vienna has not suffered much by the war, except by continuous strikes of actors, actresses and musicians, and the impossibility of performing plays with large casts and elaborate mounting, as owing to the immense prices of costumes, scenery and material, the managers cannot raise the very high sums necessary. Naturally the prices of seats have risen accordingly. For Franz Lehar's melodious and very successful operetta "The Blue Mazur," half a million kronen (nominally $100,000) was spent. A large number of other operatic and musical comedy shows are running with titles such as: "Queen of the Air", "Little Dutch Women", "Love's Intoxication", "Love at First Sight", "Love on the Roof", "Miss Tuck", etc. According to the Russian pattern attempts have been made to "socialize" a theatre; but with what success remains to be seen.

A sad event was the suicide of Tilly Kutschera, one of Vienna's most popular young actresses, who played men's parts. She had fallen in love with a wealthy young man, who promised to marry her, but jilted her and married another actress at the same theatre. Strangely enough, she was invited to her rival's wedding, and brokenhearted, afterwards threw herself from a fifth floor window. She left a letter to her parents saying that she found it impossible to bear the burden of life any longer.

Now is the time of year when one begins to wonder if he has an overcoat for winter or whether the moths got away with it.

In the late election the government got a goose egg at Woodlands and the opposition picked up one at Howland Ridge.
