

THE LAST CHANCE

I have still a few imported Barred Rock Cockerels of high laying strain, which may be seen at my yards, corner of Brunswick and Northumberland streets. These birds come from the best bred-to-day stock in New England and are possibly the best ever brought into this province. They were hatched on May 4th and some of the pullets in the flock started laying on November 6th. One of them laid six eggs during the first seven days, beating all the birds in the egg-laying contest at the Fredericton Experimental Farm.

BEWARE OF BRONCHITIS

Bronchitis is generally caused by neglecting a cold, or exposure to wet and inclement weather. It begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty in breathing, and a wheezing sound comes from the lungs. There is a raising of phlegm, especially the first thing in the morning. This is at first white, but later becomes of a greenish or yellowish color and is occasionally streaked with blood.

On the first sign of bronchitis you should check it immediately by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, thereby prevent it becoming chronic, and perhaps developing into some more serious lung trouble.

Mrs. Brice Culham, Sheffield, Ont., writes: "In December, 1919, I was very sick with bronchitis, and had to stay in the house all winter. One day I saw Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup advertised, so I got a small bottle which helped me very much; I then got a 60c. size, and it completely relieved me. I cannot praise 'Dr. Wood's' enough for what it did. Two of my neighbors are now using it for colds."

Don't accept a substitute for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and the genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 35c. and 60c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

A N.Y. RAFFLES OUTDOES
FICTION IN A BIG THEFT

Robbers Took Possession of the Home of Mrs. K. Palmer, a Former Actress—Owner and Occupants Were Kept Prisoners a Whole Night—Mrs. Palmer and Servants Shut Up in Closet.

New York, Nov. 18—The police and private detectives working for an insurance company are face to face with a jewel robbery in which the loss is said to be between $200,000 and half a million, but a robbery so inextricably entangled in weird and peculiar circumstances that those charged with it—a sort of French Raffles and two low-brows, strong-arm assistants—are still enjoying their liberty.

The victim of the robbery is Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer, former actress and the divorced wife of James C. Parish, Jr., a broker. For some time she has lived alone at 59 East 90th street, where the theft took place.

Mrs. Palmer's Story

According to the story Mrs. Palmer told the police the robbery lasted from 9 o'clock Monday night until 5.30 o'clock Tuesday morning. During this period Mrs. Palmer and two servants were bound and gagged and the supposed Frenchman and his confederates ransacked the house from cellar to garret in search of a diamond collar of fabulous value, which they did not find because as Mrs. Palmer admits it was a myth. However from Mrs. Palmer Raffles and Company took according to Mrs. Palmer, a pearl necklace which was insured for $40,000 a diamond studded bracelet a horseshoe pin with diamonds and sapphires in it, two hairpins with diamond tops, a gold mesh bag with a sapphire clasp, a mesh purse, a gold pencil, two gold clocks, four pieces of fur and a sable stole nearly five yards long.

Mrs. Palmer says she left the house at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon to dine with Mrs. Sidney Drew. The 90th street house was left in the care of her two servants a Philippine cook and butler named Sazon and a white woman, Margaret, who acted as her maid. They have been in her employ only since last Wednesday.

At nine o'clock the bell went. Sazon stepped into the basement hall to answer it. There, he told the police he was confronted by three men who wore black soft hats and false moustaches. One spoke with a French accent. Sazon was immediately seized he insists, bound, gagged, blindfolded, and thrown into a closet. Enter Margaret. She was similarly treated. Half an hour later both were carefully carried to the top floor and gently placed in closets there.

A Lively Home-Coming

At 1.30 o'clock in the morning, Mrs. Palmer arrived home by automobile.

She went on up to her room on the second floor of the house and noticed at once upon entering it that the pillows upon her bed were in disarray.

A moment afterward two men stepped from behind a portiere, and informing her that they were policemen told her she was not to move or utter a sound. She turned and ran for the staircase. It had been her intention to run down the stairs to the street and scream for help. But here Mrs. Palmer reckoned without her high heels. One of them caught at the stair-case top and she slid and fell by turns to the drawing room floor, giving her ankle a bad twist. While she sat moaning the burglars caught up with her.

Pierre Was a Gentleman

To leave as little choice with her as possible in this respect, Pierre, the leader for all his solicitous manner, put a gag into her mouth and with one of his mates bore her to the top floor, where he placed her in a closet, and, explaining again that she must not scream wound a blanket about her.

She was not to know until breakfast time that her two servants were in closets hard by her. Mrs. Palmer agrees with Sazon that the burglars were three in number and that they all wore mustaches (false) and soft hats pulled down in the best bravado manner. Taking from her as soon as they had made her comfortable, all the jewellery she was wearing, two of them, leaving her under guard of Pierre went down and ransacked the house.

It was when the two returned for the first time that Pierre proved the quality that is in him. The returning two asked gruffly for the diamond collar which Mrs. Palmer says she never owned but which they, for some reason they did not give, were certain was about the place. She told them she did not have such an object and instantly they mentioned violence, but Pierre reminded them that they were talking to a lady and, accept her word, at least once. Seeing the inexorable reasoning of this they went downstairs again.

Raffles' Courtesy Outdone

After they had gone Pierre offered Mrs. Palmer a drink from a silver flask. She refused it and he suggested a cigarette. This also she would not have, and, removing her gag and telling her that she could speak if she didn't speak too loudly, he said that it was only fair she have some small comfort in her situation and begged her to say what it would be. She did not have to think, for she had been thinking of two things for a long while one was her bottle of smelling salts and the other a throat spray she uses. Pierre fetched them forthwith.

The two men desisted from their search for it toward daybreak, and shortly after that, and for the fifth time, Pierre sprayed Mrs. Palmer's throat and gave her a pastille or lozenge for her cough.

"And now," he said, getting up to go, "it will be well if no outcry is made until we have gone, say, half an hour."

It was about 7.30 on Tuesday morning, Mrs. Palmer said, when she regained her liberty again. Her servants worked themselves loose and released her.

HOLDING OUT
OLIVE BRANCH TO QUEBEC

Ottawa, Nov. 19—Somewhat of a flurry in political circles was caused today by a report from Montreal that Joseph Gauthier, Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe is to enter the Dominion government and that he was to be sworn in tomorrow. While the story is exaggerated and premature it is not without foundation. The government has long been desirous of patching up its political fences in Quebec but the trouble is that outside of cabinet ministers, there is but one party from the province in the house. For the last month or two negotiations of one kind and another have been in progress but they are of that unofficial character which usually precedes any definite action. It is said here that the general question of cabinet reconstruction will receive the attention of Premier Meighen when he returns and that, in that connection, the Quebec situation will come in for its share of attention. There has been some talk and rumor but things have not proceeded very far beyond that stage nor could they in the absence of the premier.

It is believed that Hon. C. C. Balantyne has had his finger in the pie and that if anything comes out of the situation it will be in large measure due to his instrumentality. The attention that Quebec has been receiving in the last year is most striking. The tributes to its stability and industry are many and varied, coming from unexpected sources. The province is supposed to incline to protection, though the members presented by the Quebec farmers to the tariff committee of the cabinet went about as far as any in the west.

The government is doing its best and its friends are keeping in the endeavor to line up Quebec behind the break in the ranks of the Liberal opposition might be effective, especially if a new minister could succeed in getting elected. Many in closest touch with the province scout the suggestion that any Liberals of prominence in the house will be induced to enter the cabinet or break away from the party, but it will not be for lack of well directed effort. Nothing definite will be known for a few days.

BEEF PRICES
DOWN A LITTLE

Montreal, Nov. 20—A considerable drop in the price of beef and a downward trend in the retail quotations of pork are reported this week at the Bonsecours market. Within the last ten days sirloin steak is reported to have come down five cents a pound, and pork shoulder has been reduced a couple of cents owing to a slow demand. The smoked products are following more slowly as there is a considerable amount of old stock left on hand bought some time ago at high prices. With the advent of winter there is less variety of fruits and vegetables, blue grapes having disappeared from the market this week. Large quantities of Nova Scotia apples are to be seen, No. 3 selling at $4.00 a barrel.
