OUR WATER POWERS

Canada occupies an outstanding position in regard to water-power wealth, not only with respect to the aggregate power at sites already developed and in use, but even more so to that awaiting development. The total of our potential load-water, 24-hour power is estimated at some 19,000,000 horse-power.

Although the greater amount of power is produced in large and efficient small plants. Each of these plants, however, is valuable as a producer of energy and, owing to the number the aggregate amount of power they represent is considerable; moreover, these smaller plants are usually situated in the more thickly populated areas, where power is at a premium.

It is interesting to note says L. G. Denis in Conservation, how conditions in some of the small plants can be improved at a relatively low cost, as illustrated by the reconstruction of a small hydro-electric plant of some 400 h. p., operating under a head of 14 feet.

The original plant was destroyed by a washout, and in the design of the new plant, all modern and efficient practice and methods were utilized. The new plant is showing marked increase in efficiency over the old, due to the increased efficiency of the units and of the method of operation. The plant has carried for the past two years more than twice the load that the old plant normally handled and has not yet experienced the shortage of water which formerly occurred each year in the late summer and winter months. The results at this plant illustrate what reconstruction can accomplish for small plants operating wastefully, either through antiquated equipment, leaky dams or other inefficient works.

ABOUT BACHELORS

Not many years ago a man astounded the world by writing a song of tenderness in honor of fathers. Prior to that achievement even the direct troubles of the person known to fame as the Old Man were supposed to be somehow humorous. Something of the inspiration that caused a poet to speak out in behalf of the lowliest member of the family seems to have reappeared in the will of Marcus L. Ward, of Newark, son of the Civil War governor of New Jersey, who in valiant defiance of public opinion left a thumping sum of money to establish a home for aged bachelors.

Until now a bachelor was never publicly friended or admired. He is viewed with mingled envy and suspicion by the married world, which imagines him forever irresponsible and at ease. Yet if he has troubles he has to tell them to a policeman. If he is ill he must depend upon the ministrations of a janitor. A home for him ought to be a heaven of pipes and poker decks. But fancy calling it a home! Was there a twist of irony in the gift that would let bachelors into a place of real comfort just when they are too late to make the best of it?

Newspaper men throughout Canada should be delighted to know that the Federal government in imposing its luxury taxes, did not overlook that greatest of all luxuries—newsprint. The price of this commodity is now $110 per ton with a decided upward tendency and the government, being afraid that the publishers might amass wealth altogether too rapidly has decreed that they must assist the poor down trodden manufacturers to the extent of one per cent in addition to the price.

Rev. Dr. John Forrest, President emeritus of Dalhousie University and one of the most distinguished educationalists in Canada, passed away at Halifax on Wednesday. He was a native of New Glasgow, N. S. and was seventy eight years of age. Deceased was a former moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Rev. C. P. Carleton Improving
 Rev. C. P. Carleton, Silver Falls, who has been in a New York hospital for some time, continues to improve. One day recently, when the elevator was not running, he was able to walk downstairs to the garden. His brother William T. of New York, who is spending his vacation at home, calls every afternoon. A most enjoyable surprise was the visit on Sunday of His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc, who was looking very well after his arrival from Rome on the previous day. Rev. Father Carleton formerly was at Pater'sville and included Oromocto in his parish.

STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLE

One can kiss but it takes two to make up.

What has become of the old-fashioned honest firm of Supply & Demand?

Any mean things you may have said about June should be taken back and apologies made.

It is not easy to apply the Golden Rule in the case of the neighbors' chickens.

Why is it that when a housewife wants to economize she begins on her husband's meals?

It seems that the attitude toward some seemingly objectionable feminine fashions is first to endure and then embrace.

There is little hope for the man who gets worse after he has reached the period where he knows enough to know better.

"It isn't fair," remarked the Man on the Car, "to measure people by their faults and overlook their virtues."

Many of the season's straw hats are new, some have been used and others misused. All of which is none of our business. We're simply telling you.

A bridegroom at a wedding may appear misplaced in the group of girls hovering around the bride, but he's an essential feature.

TREATMENT OF BROODY HENS

There often is a large and altogether unnecessary loss in the summer production of the farm flock, due to the idleness of numbers of broody hens which are permitted to remain on the nests indefinitely and so are unproductive for many weeks. If such hens are removed from the nest as soon as broodiness develops, are placed in a comfortable coop and well fed and watered, they can be broken up promptly.

Any sort of pen that will prevent or discourage sitting will answer the purpose, but it is true economy to provide well-constructed coops capable of accommodating three or four hens or more supplying enough of these so that all "broodies" can be taken care of without delay.

As good a plan as any is to make coops with slatted fronts and bottoms wide well-constructed coops capable of them on legs or trestles two or three feet off the ground and locating them in the shade of a tree. The slatted floors compel the hens to stand, which helps greatly in discouraging broodiness. These coops, if constructed as here described, will serve a double purpose, as they can be used to good advantage later in special-fattening fowls for table use.

Do not mistreat broody hens by the abusive methods so often recommended, but make them comfortable, feed them well, and keep them supplied with water. If so treated they will begin laying within a very short time after they get over being broody, whereas, if they are starved and mistreated, it may be weeks before they will become productive again.

MILLIONS FOR FARM RELIEF

Moose Jaw, June 22.—The Government of Saskatchewan spent $3,000,000 during the past winter on relief work in the Southern and Western portions of the province, where there were almost total crop failures last year. This statement was made by Premier W. M. Martin, speaking at the banquet of the Saskatchewan Retail Merchants' Association here.

The Premier stated that there was every cause for optimism as to the crop prospects this year. He had visited every part of the areas that had a poor crop a year ago, during the past month and everywhere he went he found that people were very hopeful as to the outlook. "If, however we should not get a good crop I do not know what will be the outcome," said the Premier, adding that that was all that was needed to put business where it should be and to place the farmers on their feet.

In the course of an outline of the resources of the province, the Premier stated that he thought that Northern Saskatchewan in the days to come would produce greater wealth than the southern parts, where development has hitherto been confined. That was because the north, with its greater amount of shelter and of water, was more adapted for mixed farming.

Lightning never strikes twice in the same place because once is enough.

Don't forget that when you confide in a married woman you are probably confiding in her husband, also.

The New Process Oil Cook Stoves

MORE HEAT LESS CARE

The day is past when it is necessary to shovel ashes, poke slow fires and bother with dampers. The kitchen of today contains the NEW PROCESS Oil Cook Stove. It burns kerosene. Powerful burners direct an intensely hot, clean fire close up under the cooking utensil. The heat control is handy; simply turn up or down the wick. You can see your oil supply and also look right in your oven, for it has a glass door. We are selling these stoves every day for they save you money, time and labor. Our prices are right, and it will pay you to call in and let us demonstrate the New Process Stove to you. It is the best stove on the market.

Be sure and see the New Process Oil Cook Stove in operation in our window. Call this week. Do not delay.
