OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

USES FOR BREAD LEFTOVERS.

The question of stale bread is worthy of an article by itself. The oldest form of use is probably as a dressing for meat, and in that way alone what possibilities it suggests! When the writer was a child, she remembers distinctly the happy thrill she felt when helping grandmother prepare turkey dressing, the soft wet bread pulp pressing through her hands, the savory, sage and pungent celery, the breathless moment when it was all tucked into the turkey and miraculously sewed into place, the delicious odors of the roasting meat, and at last the reward of the wonderful dressing. This was a treat coming only on Thanksgiving or Christmas, and strangely enough in most country communities, the same conditions exist today—simply bread dressing being a luxury to be anticipated. Of all simple adjuncts to an otherwise insipid meat, dressing offers the greatest possibilities. With stuffed snoulder of veal; with a boned and rolled fore-quarter of mutton; with a rolled flank of beef, stuffed into the beef's heart; or with fresh spare-ribs, it is the agent that lifts the dish from gray monotony to unexpected deliciousness.

The old fashioned method of preparing dry bread for crumbs by rolling it on a board is enough to discourage any woman, and almost justifies the garbage can. The only fit utensil for preparing crumbs is the food chopper. When the bread is dry it may be ground by the second sized knife into a paper bag; the work is quickly done no crumbs are scattered over the room and they are then ready to store. Buttered toast or biscuits with a buttery crust should not be included with plain bread, but rather ground separately, and used at once, as otherwise the butter becomes rancid and spoils the crumbs. Prepared in this way, crumbs may be used for griddle cakes steamed pudding, baked puddings, to "crumb" croquettes, patties and fish-balls, and as a thickening for soups and gravies. If stored in a dry place the crumbs will keep indefinitely.

MADE-OVER HATS.

A very good idea for the woman who dresses on a small amount is to have her last years hat or hats made over at once so that she can have something to use as a substitute for her new hat or hats right from the start.

In fact, if you must be very economical it is well to take the old hat to the milliner at once. It may be that it looks so well that you will not need any new hat at the outset.

There is no very radical or essential change in the hats this year. To be sure there are some new shapes and some of last year's shapes are no more. But in general there is a similarity about the head size and the proportions. The trimming is rather differently placed in the season's advanced models from anything we have seen in several seasons. It is usually so arranged as to bring it downward rather than upward. Not infrequently when possible it is placed on the underside of the brim. You seldom see elaborate trimming placed on the crown.

AN OLD FASHIONED PIE

Stewed Apple Custard Pie (in one crust)—Have the shell ready and make the filling. Take one cupful of stewed tart apple and stir in one cupful of sugar while apple is still hot add the beaten yolks of two eggs, one cupful of cream and a bit of nutmeg. Mix thoroughly and bake. If the stewed apples is strained it will give a finer grained filling. One egg may be omitted and a Boston cracker rolled fine instead. Make meringue with whites of the eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a bit of salt. This makes a very deep pie.

DID THEY KISS?

During the showing of a film in Pittsburgh recently the following announcement was flashed on the screen: "All sweethearts are entitled to one kiss directly after this side and while the house is dark." The house was darkened for five seconds while the orchestra played "Kiss Me." When there was light again the audience applauded with great gusto. All were pleased.

"Holding a Husband" is having a long serial run. It's our opinion that the husband ought to hold the wife awhile, changing her from one knee to the other for occasional rests.

TAKING ALL PRECAUTIONS

(Special to the Daily Mail. Copyright 1920 by Cross-Atlantic News Service.) London, Sept. 25th—British authorities are taking precautions against a repetition here of the bomb outrages in New York and Genoa, and extra guards have been placed at the Bank of England and in the financial district. All well known extremists are under close surveillance.

THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY

(Extract from Premier Foster's Manifesto to the Electors.)

To sum up very briefly the Government, when returned to power proposes:

To give the greatest possible assistance to agriculture in every shape and form.

To lend most vigorous support to hydro-electric development and to further the same by using the credit and resources of the province in order that the people may have the cheapest power and light for their use.

To continue our policy for the improvement of all the roads of the province, back roads as well as front, farmers' roads as well as those for the use of automobiles, giving an equal policy for fair play to everybody, no matter where they live.

To give further encouragement to education, not only in the common schools of the province, but to vocational education, so that the young people of New Brunswick will have equal opportunities with the youth of any other province.

To provide such labor legislation within provincial jurisdiction as may be called for by the findings of the national industrial conference and the international labor conference.

To conserve energetically and carefully our timber resources and to give every encouragement to the development of mining areas.

To continue our policy of protection of public health and give such assistance as we can to hospitals and institutions necessary to provide for those unable to care for themselves.

To guard the interests of the people at all times.

To maintain provincial rights.

To inquire into the best methods of inducing immigration to the province and to make such arrangements with the other Maritime Provinces as will be conducive to this.

Chicago, Sept. 25—"I'll tell you how it was Judge," began Charles Wallace a target setter at Camp Logan, arraigned in the Court of Domestic Relations today charged with not supporting his wife and two children. "It was this way. I left my wife and joined the army because she wouldn't kiss me. She didn't have any affection in her at all."

"Have you any excuse to offer for not kissing your husband?" asked Judge Samuel H. Trude of Mrs. Anna Wallace. "Sure, I wouldn't kiss him when he came in from work with his face all dirty," his wife replied. "I'd kiss him if he washed his face and hands."

"Perfectly reasonable," ruled the Judge. "That's no excuse for leaving your wife, Charles."

An order was entered providing that Wallace should send his wife $50 a month for her support.
