A GERMAN WHO PREDICTS MORE BIG WARS

(By Viggo Teopler staff correspondent of the C. A. N. S.)

Berlin Sept. 15.—Three more big wars! That is what a German writer named Otto Autenrieth has prophesied—the greatest of all being between the white and the yellow races.

He foretells:
Separation of England from the Empire.
End of France, and Ascendancy of Germany.

"He shows how England," says an advertisement of his book published in the newspapers here, "to make sure of her world position, will be forced to separate from Japan and America, who are as her rivals more redoubtable than was Germany formerly."

"As a result of this breaking up and in an automatic manner, France will find herself on the rack."

"When Autenrieth shows the development of the next three wars he does not allow his desire to direct his thought. For, although he is a good patriot, he is above all a cold and clear-seeing calculator, and he is not trying to create an agitation."

Without misplaced optimism (continues the notice) but as a natural consequence of facts, he shows the rising again of Germany by work and her mission in the next great conflict, that between the white and the yellow races.

"He shows the road by which this recovery is attained, through united work and a wise utilization of the actual situation, which probably will establish itself sooner than the masses of people think."

"France must foresee the gnashing of teeth; he will see the day when, they having no further need of her, she will be thrown to one side and then crushed."

THE RUSSIAN ARMY HAS NO OFFICERS

By Cross-Atlantic Newspaper Service.
Berlin, Sept. 18.—How the Russian army is organized is described in an interesting dispatch from the war correspondent of the "Freiheit."

It appears there are no commissioned officers. A small or large platoon has a commander who is appointed if he shows ability, and degraded if he proves incompetent. His pay is 7000 roubles monthly, but a loaf of bread costs 700 roubles in Petrograd. Each unit has in addition to the Commander a political Commissaire that decides jointly with the Commander how principles and military measures are to be carried out. The commissaire also instructs the troops and explains political questions. Each unit owns a library, has a social evening once a week, and political meetings and sport meetings. The number of illiterate soldiers is said to have decreased from 80 to 40 per cent.

The correspondent adds that this statement must be accepted with a grain of salt. The spirit of the army is good and it cannot be denied that enthusiasm for its aims prevails. But the ignorance about general politics in Europe is astounding. Everyone asks when the great world revolution in the Western countries will begin. The lower political executive centres all its hopes on a "World Revolution."

MORE FARMERS WILL COME

London, Sept. 17.—Hon. J. A. Calder Canadian minister of immigration and colonization, who has just concluded investigating the immigration conditions of Great Britain, assures the people here that the prospects of farmers emigrating into Canada were never brighter. Women domestic workers and farm laborers, he said, are certain of good employment with the return of normal conditions.

Mr. Calder looks confidently for the British immigration into Canada again far exceeding that from all other countries.

A number of government conventions for the selection of candidates have already been called and it is expected by Saturday next there will be strong candidates in the field in every constituency in the province.

Forty-Eight Years in "Canada's Western Empire"

Colonel John S. Dennis, C. M. G., who rode the plains of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba 48 years ago, when Indians and buffalo were plentiful, knows more about "Canada's Western Empire" than any other man. He killed and ate the buffalo, narrowly escaped being scalped by Indians on at least one occasion, suggested and built in Alberta the largest irrigation system in North America, recruited thousands of British and Canadians in the United States during the recent war and not only volunteered for but saw service with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Siberia.

Now the four western provinces of Canada have a population of 2,500,000, the buffalo are to be found only in parks in the Canadian Rockies and the Indians are on reservations. There are nearly 20,000 miles of railway in the four provinces, or one mile for each 125 persons and of 225,000,000 acres of good agricultural land, but 35,000,000 acres are at present occupied and cultivated. Of the balance, 150,000,000 acres, some 30,000,000 acres lie within fifteen miles of these railway lines waiting for settlers. "Think of it," says Col. Dennis, "and the world crying out for food." His view is that while Canada has won a standing among the nations by her work in the recent war so that today the name "Canadian" is recognized as distinguishing a citizen of a progressive and virile country Canada's share in the great struggle has involved her in financial obligations which can only be met and discharged by increasing her population and developing her vast natural resources which, while ample security for many times her war debt, must be made productive of wealth through development.

Between 1905 and 1914 about 2,500,000 people settled in Canada, the largest proportion in the four western provinces. They left Great Britain, the United States and other countries for their new home, and Col. Dennis believes that 500,000 each year may follow them until these provinces have a total population of 10,000,000. Canada, he further believes, is destined to be "the keystone in the arch of the British Empire."
