PLOT TO STEAL BONDS HAS CREATED EXCITEMENT

Officials of the New York Stock Exchange are Taking a Hand in the Investigation—A Prominent Politician Said to be Involved in the Affair—Detectives Now Searching for an Out of Town Broker.

New York, Feb. 14—A committee from the New York Stock Exchange has pledged its fullest aid to the Police Department in the sifting of reports which involve a prominent politician of this city in the scheme by which certain criminals intended to steal in the downtown financial district in one day upward of $5,000,000 in securities.

This committee, which was named some time ago to take up the matter of repeated bond thefts below the Fulton street dead line, also has offered to furnish to Commissioner Enright and Second Deputy Commissioner Lahey head of the Detective Bureau all of the aid in its power in cleaning the Wall Street district of fences and in locating large quantities of stolen securities which it is thought are reposing in safe deposit vaults here.

They will aid in the hunt for a number of downtown business men who are suspected of knowingly having taken some of the stocks and bonds that the two Gluck brothers, Irving and Joseph, admit having stolen from runners for various brokerage houses.

The exact status of the prominent politician in the case is apparently a mystery, even to the detectives who had certain of the bond thieves under observation for nearly a month before their arrest. All that is known definitely of his connection seems to be that he talked with "Big Eddie" Furey the "master mind" of the group now under arrest, and that "Big Eddie" is alleged to have told his associates that this politician would use his influence to protect them from arrest.

Seek Out of Town Broker

Several detectives left town yesterday to locate certain persons who have been named in confessions of three of the six men under arrest for complicity in the plot. One of the men they are after is said to be a wealthy broker of a distant city who was to have disposed of quantities of the bonds.

The police have been informed that a number of brokers in cities scattered from Florida to the other side of the Canadian border have been in touch with bond thieves of this city, and that some of them have done little else than deal in purloined securities.

Bolder "fences" however are said to have adopted the simple method of asking loans from legitimate banking institutions, offering the stolen securities as collateral. In this way they obtained excellent value.

The police also have learned that neglect to register great quantities of securities have made it next to impossible to trace many of the papers that have been snatched from messengers or obtained by conspiracy.

Harry Wolf the merchant of 910 Prospect avenue, The Bronx who was arrested Wednesday on a charge of having received stolen securities was held yesterday by Magistrate Harris in the Tombs Court in $20,000 bail. This is only one-fifth of the sum fixed the day before as bail for the five men under arrest for actual participation in the plot. Wolf will be given a hearing tomorrow with the other prisoners.

Benjamin Wallach a young messenger who is alleged to have attempted to steal $1406 worth of securities from Prince & Whitely, brokers of 52 Broadway on Wednesday was arraigned before Magistrate Harris on a short affidavit and held in $1000 bail.

Worked Only Three Hours

According to Detectives Mergenlo and Gillfillan of the Old Slip Station, who arrested Wallach on Wednesday night, he had obtained employment from the brokers early in the afternoon and three hours later was reported missing with stocks and cash. He was taken in his home, 3 Rutgers place.

Furey in his cell in the Tombs maintains his attitude of defiance toward the authorities and refuses to make any revelations such as the other prisoners have made. His wife, who is standing by him is a professional wrestler. She is living at the Argonne Hotel in West Forty-seventh street temporarily, having come "in from the road" when she learned of "Big Eddie's" arrest. Ordinarily she spends her time filling theatrical engagements and giving wrestling exhibitions before clubs.

Passed the Buck

It is now said that the high rate of exchange was responsible for the boosting of rents in some cases in the city. Several of the largest property owners live in the United States, and have found that the exchange rate has materially reduced their incomes. The rate of exchange is now about sixteen per cent, but this has more than been made good by the latest boost in rents. It seems to have been a case of passing the buck to the tenants.
