AROUND THE TOWN

It may not be a matter of general knowledge, but Fredericton ranks high among the cities of the Maritime Provinces, and even Canada, in its consumption of coffee. A traveller for one of the largest coffee houses in the Dominion is the authority for the statement, and he bases his opinion upon his own experience and the size of the orders he takes from merchants in this place. The reason is hard to find, unless it is that there is a general highly developed taste for good coffee on the part of its citizens. St. John in proportion to population, does not consume as much coffee. With Halifax, it is different, the consumption there being high. A large steamer business is held responsible. Montreal is classed as a poor coffee city, the taste of the people in general being for tea.

The sounding of a fire alarm, or even the random sounding of the bells and whistles for a "ground," is a constant reminder that Fredericton is covered by a well located electric fire alarm system. The system is not yet twenty-five years old and the majority of citizens can remember when fire alarms were sounded by hand upon whatever information, often false, which might be given by word of mouth. At the time the system was installed, the telephone was not in general use as it is now, and it could not be used for "stills," as at the present time. Then the five wards of the city, naming from the west, Wellington, St. Ann's, Carleton, Queen's and King's, were designated in the alarm by a number running from one to five. The result was that frequently there was confusion with the various hose companies meeting one another in a search for a blaze which frequently did not exist. To make matters a little worse for the firemen, there were no motor trucks or horses for the Fire Department in those days, the hose carts and ladder truck being drawn by company members.

A citizen who placed his car at the disposal of the Entertainment Committee, which arranged the reception for the touring party of the National Editorial Association of the United States which visited Fredericton in June, "went after" the party of visitors which made use of his car, and under the circumstances, he was justified. Whether suffering from too rich a diet of historical references at some place visited before Fredericton was reached, or whether desirous of displaying republican contempt for things monarchical, the party was a trifle offensive. "Prince George planted that tree," said the only member pointing at any tree in sight. This bright remark would produce a big laugh on the part of the ladies. "Prince George planted that one, too," he would say. This delicious bit of wit would be followed by another guffaw. Again he would take a slam at the game, and more merry laughter would result. The lone Canuck who was driving the car, was rapidly losing "his goat." Fortunately, he had travelled extensively in New England and other States, where a dinky brass tablet is put up at every place where the late George Washington wiped his nose, or should have, and he finally came back. "These princes," said the humorist, "I pity them. They must have spent all their lives planting trees, but I suppose that was all they could do." "Yes, they had a hard time," said the local man. "They were just like George Washington. There is a tablet put up in the States at every bed he slept in. The poor fellow must have slept his life away, judging by the number of tablets." There were no more bright sallies from the visiting American. As an Irishman would say, there was nothing heard but the deepest silence.

A Fredericton merchant who drove odically to the West or any other distant number of the members of the Imperial Press Conference party about the city and environs last Saturday, had the British Empire well represented in his car. England, Ireland, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa were in the bunch. "Be careful of the British Empire," was the caution they gave the driver.

The harvesters' train which passed through Fredericton last evening, was a pretty good indication that Fredericton is on the railway map as a main-line point. With the building of a new bridge here and the inauguration of a through train service, trains of that type will not be unusual.

The fact that the number going on the excursion was smaller than it used to be was an indication that conditions in the East are such that now there is little surplus labor to be drained peritric.

Small towns argue that quality in population is better than quantity. But a town must have quality to attract quantity.

FREQUENT HEADACHES

A Sure Sign That the Blood is Water and Impure.

People with thin blood are much more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that afflicts growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbance of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this effectively and the rich red blood made by these pills will remove the headache.

More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition every symptom of the trouble will disappear. There are more people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than to any other medicine, and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"They're saying now-a-days that there's alcohol in buttermilk." Don't know about the alcohol, but to some there's a pain in it.
