OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

FILMY EVENING WRAPS IN VOGUE FOR SUMMER

The glowing mid-summer moon is looking down on wonderful designs in evening wraps these warm evenings. Filmy, gossamer fabrics, as sheer and fairy-like as the moonbeams themselves, are used to fashion the wraps which in truth are designed not for warmth, but to ensnare helpless masculinity.

Sweeping scarves of lace and more formal wraps of georgette and chiffon are seen frequently, but nothing has ever been created which won the instant popularity of the maline fantasia which is in vogue. Many strips of vari-colored tulle placed one upon the other and knotted softly in front is just the thing which each individual woman needs. To the debutante it gives an ingenious touch of sophistication which is piquant and for the older woman reveals a youthful charm which is most attractive.

FRENCH SPORT CLOTHES

Since tennis has been taken up with such enthusiasm in France we must look occasionally to the French women for suggestions in the way we dress for the court. Doubtless they could give us helpful points in the game as well, those roundly built, brown little women who seem to make up in agility what they lack in length of limb.

You may be sure they give some thought to the matter of their attire. For one thing they have taken a fancy to the slipover. Their sweaters are of the slipover that goes on over the skirt. A blouse that tucks under the skirt they dislike because it is so prone to miss connections. Their sweater is of the slipover model or it buttons securely up the middle of the front. It is usually rather short, terminating just about the hips. They find that the kimono sleeve sweaters is advisable only when the sleeves are very short. Otherwise this type of sleeve restrains the free action of the arms. If a long sleeve is made the arm hole is ample and the sleeve is made in a separate piece.

The French woman has, of course, given up petticoats for tennis, and for this reason she selects some material for her skirt that is not transparent. Under her skirt she has selected a little "pantelon" of satin or pongee on which the material of the skirt may slip about freely, there again doing away with any possible hindrance to the game.

You have heard perhaps that some times she wears bath shoes instead of regulation tennis shoes, and she seems to like them. Sometimes she goes bareheaded, as do most of our young tennis devotees. A fetching little hat just for tennis was made on the lines of a jockey cap, only slightly larger, the trim consisting of a brim in front that shapes off to nothing at the back. It is of cerise duvyn striped with bands of raffle of the same tone. The little brim is completely covered with the cerise rapvi.

Nearly Every Girl Can Make Herself Pretty and Attractive

EVERY GIRL SHOULD THINK ABOUT.

Probably you know just such a girl. Perhaps she is sixteen—good to look at, and pretty—quite interesting because she reflects the graces and charm that gives promise of happiness to herself and others. But she is not strong. The color in her cheeks, once so rosy, has faded away—her eyes are listless—the buoyancy of spirit and vigor she once possessed are sadly lacking. Parents, friends, this girl needs Ferrozone—needs it that her blood may be renewed—needs it to restore the nerve force that growth, study and the development of her fresh youth have exhausted. This girl will become queen with Ferrozone—which will restore her color—bring back her oldtime energy—give brightness to her eyes and vivacity to her spirits. In Ferrozone every girl finds strength—then she can do things. In Ferrozone there is endurance—that drives away morning tiredness and languor. For the girl or woman that wants to be happy, healthy, winning—who values rosy cheeks, laughing eyes and abundant good spirits, nothing can compare with Ferrozone. 50c. per box, or six for $2.50. AN AMERICAN EXPLORES THE UPPER REACHES OF THE THAMES

Calls it London's Pool of Siloam and Declares It is the Greatest Thing About the British Metropolis—Has Travelled Extensively, But Has Seen Nothing Like It.

(Special Correspondent of The Daily Mail. Copyright by Cross-Atlantic News Service, 1920.)

London, Aug. 2.—"I have just been exploring the upper reaches of the Thames," says an American. "Although I have ambled around the world for a good number of years, I have seen nothing like it anywhere."

"The greatest thing about London is its river. Take it from me that little streak of water is London's Pool of Siloam."

"We Americans are all energy and vitality on holiday, always pushing along somewhere somehow. We haven't got your old-world sense of repose. I have seen you English going good and strong at work and in sport, but when it comes to a holiday—up the river, at any rate—you idle like gentlemen.

"It was a revelation to me to see those thousands of sunny boys and girls idling so serenely in boats under willows, day-dreaming in garden hammocks, or drifting down stream forgetful of everything but their own pure enjoyment of the beauty around them."

"Then there is the simple, restful life in those many-colored dolls' houses the bungalows and houseboats—looking like real buildings reflected in miniature in a camera obscura. And in the cool evenings the tennis parties, the dances on the lawns, and the music in the moonlight."

"You English have a saying that 'marriages are made in heaven.' I'm mightily sure that a lot of those that take place in London section are made in the Upper Thames.

"It is the most romantic spot I've ever got into, and the Venetian lagoons and the carnivals of gondoliari are crude realities by comparison. The guide book accounts of the river haven't caught the spirit of it at all. I suppose they don't want to boost it up for fear it may get crowded out."

"They tell you a lot about the things you have to take with you to make bungalow and houseboat life, and camping-out afloat or ashore 'endurable,' as if it were some sort of hardship to live under these fairy-like conditions. They tell you how many locks there are between Kew and Oxford, the mileage from point to point, and dwell leisurely on the hospitable old inns that supply 'refreshment for man or beast.'

"But they don't tell you anything of the fascination the whole thing provided for me."

"I'm going back to America to tell my friends that I've found the sweetest and happiest bit of England. I'll give them three guesses, but I'll wager a thousand dollars that not a soul will ever suspect that I mean London's Enchanted River."
