MONTREAL CITY LEAGUE LOOKS GOOD JUST NOW

Montreal, Dec. 21.—That Montreal M. A. A. will be represented in the Montreal City Hockey League by one of the strongest clubs that has worn the red and blue in many years is the general belief of City League followers. The Winged Wheel team meets Frank Shaughnessy's strong McGill outfit when the League series opens at the arena a week from Monday, and by many are regarded as the team to beat.

The club, which is training diligently yesterday signed up the much sought after Harry Bell, brother of Billy Bell, who played professional with Wanderers. Harry Bell, is one of the best forwards in the city and played with M. A. A. a few years back, afterwards going to Sudbury. Jim Penny, Anderson, Herby Campbell, Devins and Josh Arnold, all former members of the champion St. Ann team, have thrown in their forces with the Winged Wheel, and in addition to these there are Walter Meldrum and Jupp, crack forwards of last season's club, Russell, Read, Allan, the two Sullivans, a Wes King and several other members of last season's team.

It is reported that both Vec Heney and Eric Parsons, as well as Anderson, will join forces with the Victorias, last year's champions, who have the club of last season intact. Parsons and Heney were two stars of last season's strong McGill club, but are not eligible to play with the collegians this season.

With Nationals and Shamrock, also far stronger than last season, and Loyola presenting a good club, competition is likely to be keener in the City League the coming season than ever before. Nationals have secured the two Lemarre boys, who formerly starred with Loyola, and Dave Laurendeau of last year's Laval team, as well as Dechenes.

This league produced contenders for the Allan Cup last season and should do better this.

'Tis said that thinking takes time. It's no wonder then that thinking is a lost art, for there's not enough time to think and go to the movies too.

Again among the old-fashioned men there was the fellow of whom it used to be said he didn't have but one shirt to his back. What has become of him?

IRISH EMMIGRATION IS STARTING UP AGAIN

Loss of Erin's Population During the Past Half Century Has Had a Depressing and Devitalizing Effect—Exodus Was Arrested by the Great War—Emigrants from That Country are Well Equipped.

Special to Daily Mail. Copyright 1920 By Cross Atlantic News Service (By Hugh Curran)

Dublin, Dec. 20.—Emigration used to be described as one of the new flourishing "industries" in Ireland. This was certainly true for half a century prior to the great war. Before the famine period of 1846-47 the population was 8,000,000. The last census showed 4,390,219. The next census is due next year, but it is not certain that it will be taken. In the present disturbed state of the country an accurate return would be impossible.

The loss of half of Ireland's population in almost half a century had a most depressing and devitalizing effect. The outgoing of the youth of the country, male and female, in those years had the effect of leaving behind only those who were old and incapable of great effort, while the best brains and brawn of the virile men and women went to build up the other countries to which they turned their faces—United States, Canada, and Australia.

The question of the moment is whether the process of "exporting" the population of Ireland, which was arrested by the war, is now to be resumed. The figures just now officially published are ominous. In the year 1900 emigration reached its high water mark of recent times when 45,288 persons left for various destinations abroad. In the year 1914 in which emigration was not interdicted, the number had gone down to 20,314. In 1915 it was 10,659, in 1916 7,302, in 1917 2,111, and in 1918, the lowest on record, it was 980. The figures for the past ten months of 1920 which are now available show that there is a distinct advance. In these ten months 12,752 persons have emigrated, and that in fact every emigrant must be provided with a passport and must pass through other tests before permission is given to leave the country, it will be seen that the emigration "habit" has not yet been eliminated. It must also be remembered that it is an essential part of the Sinn Fein policy that young Irishmen and women should remain at home and do their share in the great work of reconstruction which is to be begun when the present political tangle has been cleared up.

The present emigrants are of different types and vastly better equipped. They are better fed, better educated, accustomed to a very much higher standard of living and in every respect calculated to make better citizens of the country which they adopt as their future home. They are not for the most part emigrating in order to escape poverty at home. There is no poverty in Ireland in the sense that it was known fifty or even twenty years ago. Many are going out to friends and relatives who have "made good" in America or Australia and who have homes to give them and careers to place before them. In Ireland they see at the moment only chaos and disorder which may last for years, or until such time as statesmen both here and in England, arise and solve the difficulties which now hold the land in turmoil and disorder.

DEMPSEY NEEDS A SPECIALIST

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 21.—Jack Dempsey expected to visit a specialist at Niles, Mich., to have his left ear examined, but found the physician out of the city. The ear was injured in the bout with Brennan.
