THE UNITED FARMERS

The Standard appears to be very much worried over the possibility of the members of the United Farmers party recently elected to the Legislature joining forces with the government. It thinks that as some of them were not opposed by Opposition candidates in the recent election it would be quite the proper thing for them to unite with Mr. Baxter if called upon to do so. The Standard is away off as usual. The Farmers are an independent party but it does not necessarily follow that they must sit in the cool shades of opposition in parliament. If the Standard wants a precedent it can be found in Ontario. In that province last year the United Farmers elected some forty five members to the Legislature. Many of their candidates were not opposed by Liberals, but they did not regard that as an obligation on their part to join with the Liberal forces after the election in taking over the government, and they did not do so. Being the strongest group returned at the polls they took over the reins of government themselves, the Labor men acting with them. Their administration has a majority of only one in a House of 111 members yet so far it has had no difficulty in carrying on. There is another little matter which the Standard has overlooked. The conventions which nominated United Farmer candidates all adopted the platform of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, which among other things calls for the ratification by parliament of the reciprocity treaty of 1911. Would Mr. Baxter and his dozen followers stand with the farmer members on this question? We hardly think so. They would have to swallow certain principles which they claim to prize very highly. The fact of the matter is that if a tariff resolution such as that adopted by the Saskatchewan Legislature and presented to the tariff commission by Attorney General Turgeon a few days ago, were proposed in the New Brunswick Legislature at the coming session Leader Baxter and every one of his twelve followers would vote against it. On the other hand it would undoubtedly have the whole hearted support of Premier Foster and his colleagues. It must be apparent to all sensible men that an alliance between the United Farmers with their free trade principles, and the apostles of high protection who follow Leader Baxter is simply out of the question.

The government candidates in Charlotte put up a magnificent fight and deserved to win. The county returned opposition candidates in 1917 by a majority of 500. In this contest, being afraid to face the people on their party's record they entered into a deal with the farmers and fishermen. Three have been elected by small majorities and the fourth is tied with Mr. J. W. Scovil, the head man on the Government ticket, and the latter may be given the seat by the returning officers casting vote. The Government candidates in Charlotte share the honors of the campaign with those in St. John and Kings.

Lord Beaverbrook who knows a little about New Brunswick politics, cabled his congratulations from London, England, to Hon. C. W. Robinson, Minister of Lands and Mines, on his success in Moncton. He declared that if he (Beaverbrook) had had a vote in the constituency Hon. Mr. Robinson's majority would have been increased by one. Lord Beaverbrook when he was a resident of New Brunswick was a Conservative in politics. Since going overseas he has evidently kept in touch with political conditions here.

Candidate Dickson led the poll in his home division of the City of Fredericton, Candidate Goburn had a big lead in his home parish of Manners-Sutton, Candidate Christie led the poll at Keswick Ridge and in Devon an Opposition stronghold Candidate Watson was beaten by only forty votes. In the case of the successful Opposition Candidates Messers Young and Richards were the only ones who secured a lead in their home districts.

The sugar market in Canada is becoming very shaky, despite the strenuous efforts of the refiners to keep up the price and avoid taking a loss. The consumers have been paying the piper for several years and it is about time now that they were given some relief. Should the refiners and others who have been speculating in sugar suffer a big loss there will not be much sympathy for them on the part of the general public.

Somebody has started a report that Mr. B. Frank Smith, ex-M.P. P. would come to York County and run for the Legislature in case Mr. Pinder, member elect, would make way for him. If Mr. Smith is well advised he will remain where he is. If York wants to be represented in the Legislature by played out politicians it has plenty of its own and does not need to have any truck with the rejected of Carleton.

Declaration proceedings took place at Woodstock yesterday and the three candidates of the United Farmers were declared elected. Mr. B. Frank Smith is naturally very sore over the result and announces that he will protest the election of Mr. Rennie Tracey, a former Liberal on the Farmers ticket who beat him by over 800 votes.

In looking over the election returns for York it must be apparent to all that the electors of Cork displayed a greater spirit of toleration than did those of Woodlands, a poll with about the same number of votes. In Woodlands the government candidates did not get a single vote while at Cork, the opposition vote ranged from 2 to 7.

There is talk of protesting the election in Restigouche on the ground that the two independent candidates in filing their papers did not comply with the law. Had there been a straight fight in that constituency Leader Baxter's candidates would have been snowed under.

Hon. W. E. Foster was placed at the head of the Government by the will of the people, and there he will remain.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Virtue and Vice wear the same kind of rouge.

The more affected a person the farther away he is from being what he pretends to be.

Lovers marry for better or for worse. There is no anti-fat proviso in the ritual.

A marriage license may be a mere scrap of paper or a piece of scrappy paper.

One kind of a snob is the man who makes you believe he throws his straw hat away at the end of the summer.

One gets the notion from observation, that old-fashioned happiness is about as good as the modern styles.

The Little Love God may be blind, but we hope he isn't deaf as well—if so he is missing a lot of fun eavesdropping at lovers' quarrels!

The people who have been complaining of summer and autumn heat are getting all tuned up to complain of the cold.

MY SOLDIER GIRL NOVEL AND ENTERTAINING

A tuneful musical comedy of fun and fashion best describes the latest version of the musical success "My Soldier Girl," coming to the Opera House, Monday, Thanksgiving Day, with its scenes laid in two novel acts. The first scene opens at Colonel Stone's home in Miami, Florida, overlooking Biscayne Bay. There is a lawn fete in progress in honor of boys and girls who the Colonel met in Europe during the recent struggle and to whom he extended an invitation to his home once they were back in America. Many clever professionals are among the invited guests and the night is one of gayest festivities.

The second act opens on the roof of a New York theatre, presenting a gorgeous production of the Follies in rehearsal. Colonel Stone is the producer and the scene as presented shows the big company in all its merry-making. There are many march and dance ensembles participated in by the excellent cast and big chorus who are responsible for the success of this big spectacle.

ATTRACTIONS AT THEATRES

The mid-week play at the Opera House is "The Confession" with Henry Walthall the featured player. "The Confession," which deals with the turbulent life of the north woods, is dramatic and affords good entertainment. Francis McDonald supports Henry Walthall in the production. The play at the Gaiety is "April Folly," with Marion Davies as star. It tells of a youthful writer and a romance with her publisher, although much of the film is devoted to the development of the novel which the girl wrote. The writer impersonates a patrician woman and on shipboard is saved from a bad situation through the timely efforts of a passenger. She is carrying a diamond to the aunt of the woman she is impersonating and a band of crooks make things rather unpleasant for her. As in regulation movies of popular appeal, she foils them in their game. Of course, the love interest is paramount. Marion Davies makes a pleasing heroine and her heralded beauty is a help in many ways. Conway Tearle has a good role as the hero, while Madalaine Marshall is the genuine lady of blue blood. The play has been beautifully mounted

MODERN DENTAL PARLOR

Dr. J. E. Sewell Has the Most Up-to-Date Equipment in This Section.

What is without doubt the most up-to-date dental parlor west of Montreal and possibly in any city of Canada with the same population as Fredericton is that of Dr. J. E. Sewell, Queen Street. His operating room is equipped with a Retter Unit in which is combined, ready-at-hand, all the instruments necessary to dental surgery and is not only the last word in compactness but is self-operating and self-sterilizing. This unit is the paramount creation of inventive genius along dental lines. The other office fixtures are also modern with the point of sanitation always in view.

Dr. Sewell has had, in a course at Tuft's College, two year's experience in Boston and a considerable time with the Canadian Army Dental Corps an experience which should, with his working facilities, bespeak for him a large measure of success in his profession.

NEW PHOTOGRAPHIC STUDIO

C. E. McLean Establishes Himself in Business at 352 Queen Street

C. E. McLean has opened a new photographic studio in the Howie Building, 352 Queen Street. This studio has newly renovated apartments, a photographic room with a northern aspect, ground work painted by Chicago artists, and electric drying and printing machines. Everything in this establishment is new and never before used in the business, except Mr. McLean. He has been a worker and practical student of photography for fifteen years, and is at present in an enviable position to solicit public patronage.
