THE CANADIAN NAVY

The City of Halifax extended a warm welcome on Tuesday to the three warships presented by Great Britain to Canada and which are to form the nucleus of a Canadian Navy. The three ships now at Halifax consist of a light cruiser, a torpedo boat destroyer and a submarine. All are of the most modern type and served in the North Sea during the great war.

The Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada was a visitor to Halifax last week and in an address before the Canadian Club made the following reference to the new Canadian Navy:

"That navy, true to the very best traditions of that great service, the British navy, to which the world owed a debt which it could never repay, would neither be provocative nor aggressive. Certainly, in the maintenance of the navy we had never had the slightest wish or intention, in fact very much the reverse, of being in any way a menace or a threat to any country. Our one wish is to live in peace and amity with the rest of the great nations of the world."

"It is essential for us to preserve our lines of communication, even when there are no prospects of isolation, and at a time when we ought to be and are endeavoring to practice the closest economy we should be failing in our duty if we did not take the necessary precautions and have the necessary nucleus—it is no more—of the creation of a fleet, if, and when the occasion arose. We shall welcome them as a means of giving us still greater security and confidence in the solution of those problems that confront us. We can only make the proper use of the assets we have in Canada if, and only if, we can secure for all time the means of being able to dispose of them according to our requirements. It is confidence and security that we require."

The Duke of Devonshire's views are quite in harmony with those put forward by Sir Wilfred Laurier, Hon. Dr. Pugsley and other Liberal statesmen when the question of naval defence was before Parliament a few years ago. The Conservatives led by Sir Robert Borden, in order to curry favor with the Quebec Nationalists placed themselves on record as being opposed to a purely Canadian navy. They wanted to donate three dreadnoughts to the British admiralty and actually forced legislation through the House with that end in view, only to have it thrown out by the Senate, where the Liberals were in a majority. Time has completely vindicated the naval policy put forward by that farsighted statesman, Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

IN NEED OF FRIENDS

Three West Orange, N. J. boys of 10 to 12 years, were accused of breaking into a school house and stealing pencils and money from the teacher's desk. Another offense they were charged with having committed was that of tinkering a preacher's automobile, tinkering it so maliciously that he was unable, after service, to start the thing.

Now the hand of the law, which misses profiteers grafters and government crooks, has fallen heavily upon these lads—fallen upon the hearts of them instead of striking the traditional vulnerable anatomical sections of them. The city recorder has imposed this fearful sentence. They cannot receive any holiday presents, they must take no part in any Christmas festivities, and they are compelled to go to bed at 6.30 every evening for a month, including Christmas eve.

Notwithstanding the severity of their punishment, every boy lover will hope that these lads may emerge from the dungeon of despair into which they have been cast with manly ambitions, their souls still free of bitterness toward the world.

Cartoonist Briggs' familiar line, "When a feller needs a friend," is applicable to any boy who has had Christmas taken out of his life.

Halifax Chronicle: Some American newspapers are pointing out that this is a very menacing proposal for the United States, which sells Canada all most twice as much as she buys from this country. Whether these warnings are heeded or not, at all events we are given an idea of what the Republican policy of "adequate protection" may mean. It is another sharp reminder of the great advantage which Canada lost when the splendid Reciprocity Agreement, negotiated by Hon. W. S. Fielding in 1910, was rejected. We may pay the penalty for that huge blunder in increasing costs in the years to come.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Perhaps in all the civic employments there is no man who is so constantly placed under temptations as the policeman. A momentary weakness may set him in the hands of sinister powers and the one false step may force him to continue in a crooked course. Man at best has the human failings and, realizing the evil forces brought to bear upon the police as individuals, it is our duty to them personally as well as to the public they are employed to serve to encourage them and to develop their power of resistance.

Detroit News: There is great satisfaction to the normal, humane person to know that in his city no real destitution can exist unrelieved; that no child will be permitted to beg in the streets for food and shelter and kindly care; that any young man or woman who takes a wrong step and repents can find advice and assistance and saving guidance, and that in general the emergencies which arise through misfortune or misconduct will be met by experts who have funds and facilities to make the best of the situation.

The public will be very pleased to welcome the reduction in freight and passenger rates pronounced for January 1st. On the lines east of Fort William freight rates are to be lowered five per cent and passenger rates are to come down to the extent of ten per cent. In July next there will be another ten per cent reduction in passenger rates which will restore them to the old figure.

Los Angeles Times: The professor of mathematics at the Keeley Institute figures that at the rate the buzz wagons are demolishing the human race in 296 years and three weeks there won't be any people left to kill. It's a pity some of us can't be here to watch the last man trying to run himself down.

I have always thought of Christmas as a good time; a kind, forgiving, generous, pleasant time; a time when men and women seem by one consent to open their hearts freely and so I say God Bless Christmas.—Dickens.

One smart Skirt belongs in every winter wardrobe.

Under the heavy coat, to wear with odd blouses and for general utility purposes, nothing takes the place of a separate Skirt. We have a fine collection just now, new, everyone of them, and abounding in the dash of plaids, panels, stitching or plaids now so popular. Especially fine also for winter sports wear.
