MALE BIRD SHOULD BE ELIMINATED

The presence of male birds in the flock during the summer months has a decidedly detrimental effect upon the quality of eggs and poultry producers lose many thousands of dollars annually through the presence of partially incubated and bad eggs in the produce they market. Reports are now being received from all parts of the country of the number of partially incubated eggs appearing in current receipts. Producers do not realize that it is unnecessary for a fertile egg to be placed under a broody hen to cause the germ to grow; a temperature of seventy degrees is sufficient to start incubation. If the heat is constant the development of the chick will continue, but if it ceases or is intermittent, putrefaction at once sets in and the egg becomes bad. Such eggs have no place or value in shipments, and should they get to the consumer the consumptive demand immediately falls off.

The male bird is not essential in egg production, his usefulness is over when the supply of fertile eggs for the season has been secured. The hens will lay just as many eggs when the male bird has been removed and the eggs will be more suitable for consumption, packing or storing. Further, there is a distinct financial gain to the producer who markets infertile eggs, because the best trade in many cities offers a premium of from one to five cents a dozen for infertile eggs.

Then there is the question of feed. It costs money to feed poultry, and with feed at its present value, the consumption of feed by males kept for no particular purpose is a serious economic waste. The reason for this is that the best prices for live and dressed fowl prevail in the spring and early summer. During the summer the price declines, and by the early fall when many producers decide to market their male birds, a lower price than prevailed in the spring has to be accepted; the producer thus losing the amount per pound the market has declined, plus the value of the feed consumed by the birds during the summer months. This financial loss takes on a more serious aspect when it is coupled with the amount charged back by the wholesaler for the bad and partially incubated eggs that have been marketed.

Farmers and others selling eggs for market should therefore, need no urging to kill off, dispose of, or at least remove the male birds from the flock after the breeding season.

MARK YOUR BALLOT THIS WAY JULY 10

Remember to Place the Cross in the First and Last Spaces and Help Make New Brunswick a Better Place to Live In.

This is the form of the ballot upon which the voters of New Brunswick will record their views on prohibition on July 10. The specimen shown is marked as it is confidently expected the majority of the men and women of the province will mark theirs—for the provincial prohibitory act and against the sale of light wines and beers. Here it is.

The second question is as important as the first. A return to the sale of beer and wine means a return to more open intemperance, with all the evils which accompany it. They are intoxicating and they are dangerous to the community. The fact that, even

| FOR Provincial Prohibition Act | X |
| AGAINST Provincial Prohibition Act | |
| FOR Sale of Light Wines and Beers under Government Control | |
| AGAINST Sale of Light Wines and Beers. | X |

if a majority were given for their sale it would only be permitted under government supervision, is sufficient indication that the government realizes fully the danger which lurks in the beer and wine bottles.

No sober man will admit that he cannot get along without beer and wine as well as without stronger drinks. The average man can do so, and he will be willing to do so when he realizes that any other course would be a long step in the wrong direction. The issue is not personal liberty but public spirit. The present prohibitory law may not be perfect, but it is far better than a return to the conditions which preceded it or anything which would tend in that direction.

BORDEN GOVT. CONDEMNED

Toronto July 3—An enthusiastic meeting of the Centre Toronto Liberal Association was held last night at Foresters' Hall, College street. A large and representative gathering was present. Dr. J. H. Cascardi presided and Frank Regan acted as Secretary. R. D. Ross called attention to what he said

GET READY FOR BIG SHOW ON JULY 15

"Hold your horses, the elephants are coming" can no longer be the cry to penetrate the air on circus day and no doubt will have to be changed to "Park your car, the elephants are coming."

No longer are the horses tied about the circus lot while their owners enjoy the spasms of mirth afforded by a visit inside the big tent, but in their places can be found lines of automobiles.

Time certainly has changed Old Man Custom and with the change outside the big top, there are the many changes inside. When the majestic

Hagenbeek-Wallace Circus pitches its tents here Thursday, July 15th, there is promised to be proven that the time-worn phrase, "Every circus is alike," cannot be implied to this show, for much money and efforts have been used in creating new features and novelties for this season.

Expenses are declared not to have been spared in the preparing of the trained animal acts. The best of trainers were obtained and their skill is denoted through the feats being performed by the beasts. And many wild animals have been added to the big menagerie that now ranks among the largest in the world.

Careful choosing of equestrian acts is said to be repaid by the success they are meeting in every city and among these features are to be found famous performers of Europe and this continent.

A downtown ticket office will be opened during the show's stay here for the convenience of the public at Wilkes' Confectionery Store, 554 Queen St., where the same price will be charged as on the show grounds.

A BIGAMIST TO SUPPORT TWO FAMILIES

New York, July 3—Instead of going to jail for bigamy Daniel Domb will support two families, thereby keeping his freedom, in a manner of speaking and at the same time preventing the children of the two women whom he married from becoming public charges. Judge Wadhams in General Sessions asked Domb, who is a painter, if he thought he could contribute $15 a week to the support of his two families, and Domb said that while it would require some terrific painting, he could do it.

Domb is 32 years old and married his first wife in Poland in 1909. The couple had one child. He came to America and failed to write to her, but as soon as the war was over she came here and located him, only to find that on March 10, 1918, he was married again and now has two children by his second wife.

"If you go to jail," said Judge Wadhams to Domb, "your wife and her child, as well as the two children by the second woman, will have to be supported by the public. You are responsible for the support of all of them, for you told the second woman that you were single. It has been suggested that you be deported, but I am suspending sentence, because in no other way can your children be cared for."

When old men refuse to accept money because it carries germs young men will quit kissing the girls because it isn't healthful.

were the disgraceful actions of the Borden Government in its relation to the Board of Commerce, and the recent exposures in this connection called for an immediate appeal to the people.

Other speakers, including Messrs. Hogg, Judge and Thomas, all dwelt on the shortcomings of the Union Government, declaring that it had lost the confidence of the electorate, and that when the next election was held there would not be a single member returned from Toronto to support it.

It was decided to hold a monster picnic during the present summer, and it is intended to have the Leader of the Opposition at Ottawa, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, and other big guns of Liberalism throughout Canada present.

A VETERAN SHEEP SHEARER

Cobourg, July 3—Mr. S. Dusenbury of Morganston, who has passed the four-score milestone, is stated to have sheared 657 sheep this season, using for the operation the old-fashioned sheep shears. Mr. Dusenbury's work will make quite a contribution to this country's wool supply.

There is just one question that a wife asks oftener than "Where have you been?" and that is, "What shall I wear?" Many a prospective bride believes that all she needs to know in order to be a successful housekeeper is how to make a variety of salads.
