GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS WILL LOSE JOBS

(New York Herald.)

One of the plans for national economy calls for the dismissal of 250,000 of the 700,000 Government employees. Most of the persons who will be let go are clerks. Their discharge will mean a saving of nearly half a billion dollars a year to the nation.

The taxpayers naturally will be glad to hear that placeholders are to be reduced in number. Most of the clerks who are to be discharged ought to be glad too. They may not think so, but every young man who is put out of a Federal clerkship will owe the Government a debt of gratitude.

Washington, where the Government clerk is seen at his best and his worst as the tomb of thousands of possible young men. It has been one of the traditions, surviving from a lost past, that a Government clerkship was a fine thing. The clerk had steady pay, little work and short hours. Once in Washington the doors of the future closed on the appointee. He became a machine, usually an utterly unintelligent one. The easiness of the job softened him; his leisure bored him. He lost contact with his old home.

Even the member who had his appointed forgot him. And every additional month he stayed in Washington made it so much more impossible for him to return to his old business, whatever that was.

Nearly 100,000 Federal employees are now in Washington treading the mill that grinds ambition to shreds. About one-fourth of these will be set free under the proposed programme of economy. They will go back from Pennsylvania avenue to Main street. The Federal bureau will hear no more the lazy scratch of their pens. The Washington boarding houses will hear no more their little stories of how they came to be appointed. They will not spend their summer afternoons watching Walter Johnson pitch; some will be pitching hay themselves.

But every one of the fired clerks, if he amounts to anything, will in his gray hairs bless the day when Uncle Sam voted him, as George Ade puts it, the hardware.

A PEACH TREE.

"All those sisters are very attractive aren't they?"

"Yes. Their family tree certainly must be a peach."

"Are John and Mary engaged?"

"No—not since Mary started giving him lessons in golf."

All danger of a return of hoop skirts seems to have been obliterated. There is nothing left to go over them.

THANKSGIVING DAY RIOT IN NEW YORK

There is only one way in which right thinking Americans can regard the outrageous mob attack on the Union Club in Fifth avenue on Thanksgiving Day. No other view of the incident is possible than that which separates it from all other considerations and distinguishes clearly between the order of law and the violence of mob frenzy.

This mob of men and women, presumably for the most part American citizens, were impelled to their hatred of a foreign flag, decently and rightfully displayed, at the Union Club, along with the French emblem and the Stars and Stripes, in honor of memories running back three centuries and wholly disconnected from the national or international politics of the present day, to attack the clubhouse, to invade it and to destroy its property, producing such a spectacle of turbulence as that part of New York had not witnessed since the draft riots of 1863.

That the provocative flag was a British flag makes no difference. If it had been Italian, or French or Japanese or Greek the criminal responsibility of the disturbers of the peace would have been the same. Sympathy for these rioters, these lawbreakers, is not sympathy for the cause suggesting their hysterical performance. It is sympathy for anarchy—that and nothing less or more.

Somewhat more than a hundred million Americans were thanking Heaven on Thursday for the blessings of liberty and personal security under an ordered reign of law. This country is not going to permit any faction of its citizenship, whatever its dimensions, however it may be hyphenated or self-described, to fight out here the fight of alien interest or to assail unchecked the very foundation of the State's existence.

NO DUDES NOW IN PICCADILLY

London, Nov. 30.—The white-spatted and monocled man who yesteryear gave color and excitement to the West End of London has vanished.

There is an air of languor in the quiet grays and chaste browns of the suits worn by London's young men today. Mostly coats wrinkle and trousers sag. Handkerchiefs and socks, once so passionately lurid, have sunk into somnolent shades. The erstwhile dazzle dude is now but a blur on the landscape—but only during the day.

At night the dull chrysalis turns into a brilliant butterfly. Inquiries made at the best known London hostlers elicited the information that while the bright hued handkerchiefs, socks and ties are a drug on the market, it is exactly the reverse in the matter of pajamas.

The Friendly Smoke

THERE is something mighty comforting and satisfying about "OLD CHUM" Tobacco; a sort of soothing restfulness that pipe smokers have come to associate with this friendly smoke.

"OLD CHUM" is an old, old chum with all pipe smokers.

It has the perfect tobacco taste—the mellow richness—and men know that they can be chummy with "OLD CHUM" all day long and that the "good night pipeful" will be as sweet and cool as the one enjoyed just after breakfast.

For years and years "OLD CHUM" has been Canada's favourite pipe tobacco and today is more popular than ever.

SCOTLAND'S DRY LEADER NOT A FANATIC OR BULLY

A Good Word for the Brains Behind the Dry Movement in Auld Scotia—Is Fighting for What He Believes to be a Patriotic Cause—Does Not Want an American to Run Things on That Side of the Water.

Special to Daily Mail. Copyright 1920 by Cross Atlantic News Service (By James Hodson)

Glasgow, Nov. 15—"Come in and warm your toes at the fire," said a hearty voice, and a big hand reached forward. The voice and the hand belonged to a broad, big man of 57, bald on top with black-gray, wiry hair at the sides and a short-clipped moustache. A rather heavy face enlivened by twinkling, brownish-gray eyes broke into a smile when he spoke. The place was the office of the National Citizens' Council, 121 St. Vincent St., Glasgow, the "dry" G. H. Q., and the man was Lieut.-Col. Robert Kyle, C. M. G., D. S. O., the "brain" behind the movement. Put a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles on him and you would catch a distinct resemblance to "Pussyfoot" Johnson.

For 16 years as solicitor to the Glasgow Citizens' Vigilance Association, Col. Kyle has fought the liquor trade, opposing every new license and striving to get others withdrawn.

Last year, when the National Citizens' Council was formed to operate the local option clauses he was appointed general secretary. The council will go out of existence when Scotland is "dry," within—in Col. Kyle's opinion—5 years' time. He controls a staff of 30, and, indirectly, thousands of workers throughout Scotland.

Not a typical lawyer and hardly a typical soldier, though he started as a bugler in the Lennox Rifles in Volunteer days and commanded the 16th Highland Light Infantry at the front from the Somme days till 1919, his charming manners and engaging frankness cloak a stubborn fighter and a quick decision.

When I mentioned "Pussyfoot" Johnson, the Colonel fired out: "I'm too much of a Scot to want an American running things."

Humor flashes from him like sparks from a tramway rail. I referred to his speeches. "I'm talking too much. I get up at half past six and never go to bed that day. I used to sell the Trade. 'We are really doing your job, wiping out the badly run slum drinking dens. Not a fanatic but terribly sincere; not a bully but a man who knows what he wants; not a time-waster but a man of rare courtesy—such is 'the Colonel,' as his friends call him. 'If I can't win, honest and straight, with all my cards on the table, I don't want to win,' he told me. It was easy to believe him.

A SURPRISE FOR BACHELORS

(Montreal Star.)

An unpleasant surprise has been received by a number of bachelors in the city during the last few days, in the form of a lawyer's letter drawing their attention to the pains and penalties to which they are exposed through their neglect to carry out their obligations towards the city.

respect of the Bachelors' tax. This letter points out that legal proceedings will follow if the tax is not paid in due course.

Asked whether this was an indication that the city was taking up seriously the question of collecting this tax, A. Bienvenue, Superintendent of the License and Privilege Department replied that the city had been proceeding with the matter in all seriousness from the start. Considerable delay however was inevitable, as complete statistics had to be prepared before any action could be taken, and many of the people from whom information was asked were rather slow in furnishing it, so that the compiling of these statistics was no easy matter. The information is now fairly complete, however, Mr. Bienvenue states, and the city is prepared to go right through with the matter.

If the required payments are not forthcoming therefore, legal proceedings against the debtors will follow in the ordinary course.

While fully alive to the possibilities of the situation, the Bachelors' League it is understood is not taking any steps at the present juncture.

Amongst the particularly unfortunate cases which the lawyers' letter above mentioned has brought to light, are a number of erstwhile bachelors who have contracted matrimony since the imposition of the tax, and who now find their dream of immunity rudely shattered and a bill for unpaid bachelors' tax adding to their conjugal budget.
