PLAN TO BE PRESENT

REPORT WAS UNFOUNDED

Washington, Aug. 31—Before the Senate Committee investigating campaign funds this afternoon, Fred A. Britten, Illinois congressman, failed to produce any evidence to support his recent charge that $87,000 appropriated by the British government for "entertainment purposes", at the British Embassy in Washington had found its way into the Democratic national committee's fund. He admitted he had no facts to support his charge and that it was only his "personal idea."

Some of us are so old that we remember back to the time when a campaign orator talked so well and so earnestly that his hearers got the impression that he meant what he said.

Automobile drivers have made pedestrians at street crossings quake in their boots but they haven't been able yet to frighten the trains at railroad crossings.

A boy doesn't pay much attention to porch swings until after he gets into his first pair of long pants and begins to realize his chums have sisters.

CROWN PRINCE OF ROMANIA GETS A COCKTAIL SHAKER

(New York Sun)

Crown Prince Carol wouldn't say whether he intended to out them in a museum in Rumania, or just use them. One of his American friends told him confidently that the "Bartenders' Guide" would be worth at least 50,000 dwats ten years from now. And the cocktail shaker would be worth its weight in platinum.

The idea was that Col. Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, who didn't know exactly what to give Prince Carol as a bon voyage gift. Col. Anderson has been one of the Prince's entertainers in this city. The Prince, being a prince, has not been bounded on the north, south, east and west by the Eighteenth Amendment.

He has, in fact, met the American cocktail in its native lair. So the Col. evolved the happy thought of presenting the Prince with a cocktail shaker instead of a bouquet of roses or some such on the occasion of the royal visitor's departure for Europe today.

He bore the shiny, nickel object to the Waldorf this morning and presented it proudly to His Royal Highness. The Prince expressed himself as delighted. Then somebody began to wonder if His Royal Highness would know how to use it properly.

"You know, you take a third of gin, a third of Italian vermouth," instructed one of the party.

"French vermouth," corrected another.

"Italian!"

"I say French!"

Colonel Henry Anderson saw there was but one thing to be done.

"Boy," he called, "get me a Bartenders' Guide. If this cocktail shaker is going to be of any use in Rumania, the Prince must have a Bartenders' Guide."

Easier said than done. Bartenders' Guides don't grow on bushes any more. The musty records of the Waldorf bar were searched in vain. Vicinity emporiums of the 275 were appealed to, in vain. Nobody and a Bartenders' Guide.

"Go over," some one finally suggested, naming a Fifth avenue bookstore. "They have every book under the sun there."

The bell hop came back in fifteen minutes with a Bartenders' Guide. The general manager at the store had tucked it away in the archives, and

TORY EX-M. P. WANTS ELECTION

The following letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, ex-M. P. of Peterboro, appears in the St. John Telegraph:

To the Editor of The Telegraph: Sir,—I was amazed to read in the Toronto Mail and Empire a verbatim report of Mr. Meighen's speech at Truro, N. S., in which he said that the record of the government was worthy of every Canadian's approval. "And now," said the premier, "after all we have done we are opposed in this constituency in the name of progress."

This attempt to make it appear that the present government is merely the Union government continued is an astounding moral lapse. My resignation was due to those who elected me as a Union government supporter for the period of the war. When that government ceased to exist then by all the laws of decency I was compelled to hand back the trust handed to me. It has been held recently by the highest legal authority in Canada that the Union government ceased to exist when Sir Robert Borden and his cabinet resigned. The parliamentary under-secretaries appointed for the period of the war had to resign. The auditor-general would not pay them. And yet Mr. Meighen says that this government is a continuance of the old. The truth is that if such a performance as that going on at Ottawa in the name of government can continue with the sanction of the people of Canada then the country is at the mercy of any clique of adventurers who may come along and run off with the car.

I speak from a sense of duty and I resigned much to my inconvenience and loss for the same reason. Mr. Wigmore and Mr. McCurdy, both good men should do likewise. It is a dangerous thing to have the people of Canada lose respect for government.

track, where the games will be run off, is given as Fifth avenue to Ninth street to Lafayette, to Canal, to Manhattan Bridge, to Flatbush avenue extension to Flatbush.

The long line of automobiles is expected to get away from the starting place at shortly after 1 o'clock, but may be somewhat delayed as it is believed that the Governor will deliver a short speech there from his automobile to the crowds expected to gather to see him.

A Line of Introduction.

If everything moves on scheduled time the Cox party will reach the track at 1.30 o'clock. There Police Commissioner Enright will open the games by introducing Mayor Hylan, who in turn will introduce Gov. Smith, Gov. Smith will make a short speech introducing Gov. Cox.

During his address, when he is expected to speak to more than 150,000 people, Mr. Cox will speak from the reviewing stand. His voice will be carried to all parts of the field by use of the Magnavox, which is a telephone combination scheme used successfully

Before departing for Columbus tomorrow, Mr. Cox is expected to attend the Sunday services at St. Paul's Episcopal Church at Terrace and St. Paul's places. He will have luncheon with the newspaper men at the Fitzgerald home.

Forty-Eight Years in "Canada's Western Empire"

Colonel John S. Dennis, C. M. G., who rode the plains of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba 48 years ago, when Indians and buffalo were plentiful, knows more about "Canada's Western Empire" than any other man. He killed and ate the buffalo, narrowly escaped being scalped by Indians on at least one occasion, suggested and built in Alberta the largest irrigation system in North America, recruited thousands of British and Canadians in the United States during the recent war and not only volunteered for but saw service with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Siberia. Now the four western provinces of Canada have a population of 2,500,000, the buffalo are to be found only in parks in the Canadian Rockies and the Indians are on reservations. There are nearly 20,000 miles of railway in the four provinces, or one mile for each 125 persons and of 225,000,000 acres of good agricultural land, but 35,000,000 acres are at present occupied and cultivated. Of the balance, 190,000,000 acres, some 30,000,000 acres lie within fifteen miles of these railway lines waiting for settlers. "Think of it," says Col. Dennis, "and the world crying out for food." His view is that while Canada has won a standing among the nations by her work in the recent war so that today the name "Canadian" is recognized as distinguishing a citizen of a progressive and virile country, Canada's share in the great struggle has involved her in financial obli-tions which can only be met and discharged by increasing her population and developing her vast natural resources which, while ample security for many times her war debt, must be made productive of wealth through development.

Between 1905 and 1914 about 2,500,000 people settled in Canada, the largest proportion in the four western provinces. They left Great Britain, the United States and other countries for their new home, and Col. Dennis believes that 500,000 each year may follow them until these provinces have a total population of 10,000,000. Canada, he further believes, is destined to be "the keystone in the arch of the British Empire."
