

ONE GREAT ESSENTIAL TO A WOMAN'S HEALTH IS HER NERVES

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy as the day is long, instead of being sick and wretched. But how can any woman be healthy and happy when the whole nervous system is unstrung. The trouble is they pay more attention to their social and household duties than they do their health. Is it any wonder then that they become irritable and nervous, have hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, smothering and sinking spells, become weak and nervous, and everything in life becomes dark and gloomy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the very remedy that nervous, tired-out, weary women need to restore them to the blessings of good health.

Mrs. P. H. Ryan, Sand Point, N.S., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles. I was so weak and nervous I could not sleep at night, and my appetite was very poor. I could not walk across the floor without trembling. I had hot flushes and fainting spells. When I was on my second box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I began to feel better and kept on until I had used six boxes when I felt like a different person. I am never without them in the house and recommend them to all who suffer with their nerves."

Mr. Dysart of Kent contributed an excellent speech to the budget debate in the House yesterday. Mr. Dysart although one of the youngest members of the House has a good grasp of provincial affairs and is always listened to with interest. He undoubtedly has a great future before him in the public life of the country. Strange as it may appear to some, it is a fact that all of the young men of the province in the present House sit on the right of the speaker.

It wouldn't be so bad when a woman borrows trouble if she didn't generally insist on returning it.

Power Bill was one of the most advanced species of legislation, and in connection with its introduction he had been particularly pleased with the notice given by the Hon. Premier to promoters. The Province was to be congratulated upon having at its head a man who was not afraid to lay down a line and keep to it. The question of Maritime Union so far had been entirely academic. He did not wish to "knock" the scheme knowing as he did the keen interest displayed in it by his hon. friend from Westmorland (Mabee). He considered the suggestion to have gatherings of the representatives of the Maritime Provinces at Ottawa to discuss matters of common interest when they may arise, an excellent one. It was the proper line to follow. Reference had been made to school teachers and their salaries. The schools comprised one of the most important features of any modern community. As far as the salaries of teachers are concerned the schools had been neglected for many years. He believed that proper steps were being taken to remedy this neglect. In conclusion he would say that petty animosities should be forgotten and all should remember that they were New Brunswickers and try to place New Brunswick in the position which she should occupy in the Canadian Confederation.

MR. CAMPBELL said he had listened with interest to the remarks of the hon. member for Kent, and for a time had hoped that they would not raise these animosities which the hon. member had professed to fear. He must say, however, that he believed the remarks would produce not only animosities but trouble, for he had made very grave charges against the hon. member on the opposition side of the House. The hon. member for Kent had expressed admirable sentiments at first concerning the tone of debates, but had not maintained that high level during the entire course of his remarks.

The hon. Premier had expressed pleasure because the House had met once again with few members absent. On his (Campbell's) side of the House they could not forget that they had a vacant chair which showed that one of the most important counties of the Province was disenfranchised. Personally he could not see how a Government claiming to conduct the affairs of the Province in a business-like manner could sit by and realize that one of the most important constituencies was without its full representation. Hon. members attended sessions to criticize acts of the Government and pass upon items of business. Sometimes he believed that it was almost useless to come. The House considered various matters and dealt generously with the departments, only to find it the next session that in one department for permanent roads alone there had been huge expenditures made under special warrants. What was the object in lopping off small items in the estimates if this course could be pursued? Was it fair to the hon. members? This was what produced the deficits. The hon. member for Kent had said that the deficits were bad and such a remark from the Government side was encouraging. New Brunswick had a fair domain good climate and intelligent people and yet her debt was piling up and her influence in Canadian affairs not increasing. The hon. Provincial Secretary had informed the House that deficits were incurred because the people wanted the money spent. He did not believe that. The people did not want money squandered, and when an election should come around the Government would be confronted by a serious situation. The Hon. Premier had expressed the opinion that the deficits could be made up. He hoped that could be done. The Hon. Provincial Secretary dealing with the deficit had remarked that Ontario also had had a deficit. There was no comparison between New Brunswick and that Province with its great wealth and huge population. A fairer comparison could be made with British Columbia, and that province had had a surplus of $1,000,000. Old friends of the House, Price, Waterhouse and Co. again had appeared. Just where that excellent firm fitted in the scheme of provincial finance he could not say. Last year he (Campbell) had drawn attention to the fact that a statement of audit had not been signed. The Hon. Provincial Secretary had said he would see that it was signed. He did not recollect that such had been done, but the Hon. Provincial Secretary may be able to give the information. Much was said upon the Government's side with regard to the Audit Act, but that measure was substantially the same as that of the Hazen Government. The Auditor General had come to be termed the Comptroller General, but the terms of the Act, nevertheless, required that that official maintain a continuous audit. Under the circumstances why were two auditors necessary? Why need Price, Waterhouse and Co. appear at all? This firm seemed to be introduced as a solace for the Hon. Premier and the Comptroller General, who should be the auditor, was relegated to a subordinate position in the office of the Hon. Provincial Secretary-Treasurer. Happening to take up the Report of the Workmen's Compensation Board he had noticed in the report of the Auditor, Mr. McIntyre, that debentures to the amount of some $84,000 were in a Sinking Fund. The Auditor took satisfaction in saying that he had found securities representing the Board debentures. Why were not debentures in the Government Sinking Fund submitted to similar audit? Would it not be wise to have a similar certificate given in connection with provincial finances? He did not say that such could not be given but he doubted it, or Price, Waterhouse and Co. would have mentioned that. He noticed that $84,000 was on deposit with the Bank of Montreal at 3½ per cent. It might be said that the Government were using his money, but personally he believed that it should be invested at a higher rate of interest. His attention also had been attracted by an item which showed that the Probate Court Fee Fund exceeded expenditure by $9,416. One of two things should be done. The fees should be lowered or the excess of collections over expenditure should be distributed among the Registrars and Judges of Probate and not turned into Provincial Revenue.

His personal view was that the fees should be reduced, particularly as there was likelihood of a great increase in the rate of Succession Duties. The Hon. Provincial Secretary had referred to a substantial sum paid in bonuses to Provincial Officials in and about Fredericton. His belief always had been that a bonus was paid out of a surplus but this one had been paid out of a deficit. It seemed as if the larger the deficit, the larger was the bonus. He united with other hon. members in pleasure on account of the fact that school teachers were to be better paid. However, he noticed that the Report of Special Committee used the words "equal pay for equal work". If that phrase meant equal hours and equal duties he had no quarrel with it. However, there was another element which should enter into consideration and that was equal efficiency. In many classes of service women were more efficient than men, but there were other classes in which men were more efficient than women. He wished to throw out a suggestion in connection with the higher grades of the public schools, particularly the Grammar Schools. Was it not generally recognized that in connection with such grades largely attended by boys, virility of management, or masculinity as one hon. member had said was required? There were qualities which a woman no matter how efficient could not give. "Equal pay for equal work" was likely to produce trouble. Male teachers for higher grades should be obtained. He was informed that of some 2100 school teachers in New Brunswick not more than 100 were men. It was amazing state of affairs. Men must be encouraged to go into the profession and he believed they required more pay than women. Their efficiency in the grades to which he had referred was greater. He trusted that his attitude towards this matter would not be misunderstood, but it was his belief that there were cases in which women could not do the work of men. He considered it unfortunate that something in the line of religious education was not carried out in the Province. Conditions were little short of deplorable. He believed that if the question "How many commandments are there?" were asked of the boys in the street as many as seven out of ten would not know what was being talked about. He wished to refer to the Housing Scheme. It must be generally recognized that Housing Board had failed in a very laudable aim. Why was that? He believed because the Boards had been rather too ambitious. In his opinion the working man did not want the extensive and expensive promises suggested by the Boards. In the City of St. John the working men preferred to live in the City and not outside in the Country. The idea of locating the dwellings to be erected under the Housing Act in Manawagonish Road and such districts, led to great expense and to buildings of a class higher than necessary. His idea would be to demolish houses in older sections of the City which had fallen into disrepair, and to erect in their place commodious small comfortable and suitable houses. Such structures would pay the investment in them and would be welcomed by the working classes of St. John. It had been a pleasure to him to hear his colleagues speak so optimistically of the prospects of St. John City, which was likely to be a summer port as well as a winter port. The citizens of that place deserve credit for putting their hands in their "jeans" and paying for winter port development. It was the commercial metropolis and chief centre of New Brunswick and he was proud to belong to no mean city.

Hunter, Mr. McGrath, Mr. Grimmer and the debate was adjourned on motion of Hon. Mr. Smith.

Hon. Mr. Veniot

HON. MR. VENIOT said he wished to make an announcement for the information and satisfaction of people in certain sections of the Province. All knew that the Province was experiencing a freshet of unusual height and the press contained reports of resulting damage. The Department of Public Works have been informed during the day that the bridge across the St. John River at Hartland had been partially carried away and that the remainder of the structure was in danger. Reports were current that other bridges on the St. John River were in danger, notably the bridge at Hawkshaw. He would inform the House that danger at Hawkshaw seemed to be passed. Arrangement would be made at once at Hartland for the accommodation of the public and reconstruction of whatever part of the bridge to be rebuilt would be begun as soon as possible. He would ask all hon. members to give information to the Department concerning any bridges or other structures threatened with damage.

The House adjourned at 11.55 P. M.
