OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

FASHION'S FANCIES.

A puff of batiste and lace finishes sleeve on a tricot dress.

Long slim feathers rise from a bandau of jet worn around the head.

Gray waxed braid and soutache trim a tailored dress in gray broadcloth.

The newer coat is more elaborately embroidered than the earlier model.

Veils are embroidered in Ramage effect in designs suggestive of lace motifs.

The newest gloves affect the gauntlet top, and many are fancifully striped.

The Peter Pan collar, made of exquisite lace, is worn with a small bow tie.

A silk glove for spring has a fancy embroidered cuff in contrasting color.

VELOUR RIVALS VELVET.

Every season has its own chosen materials for certain garments and the autumn of 1920 found velour and velvet leading, neck and neck, in the race for favor. Really when it comes to a choice it is about "six to one and half a dozen to the other" as far the effect goes. Trifling is the advantage that either has over the other; each is lovely to look upon and luxuriously comfortable to wear, and the selection may safely be left to madame's personal taste. With one or 'tether she cannot go wrong.

PSYCHOLOGY OF CLOTHES.

Everybody has come to recognize the psychology of clothes; to realize that being well and suitably dressed gives one confidence. Because the average woman is more sensitive and fastidious than her brother, smart attire means even more to her than it does to a man, but in either case the consciousness of wearing the right thing at the right time is a decided moral stimulus.

ATTRACTIVE LAMP SHADES

Nearly every housewife realizes that she can not have too many lamps in her rooms and very smart looking shades are made from water color paper. These may be decorated in black or with a color if one prefers. Women who can paint use this form of decoration, while those who are not so gifted cut designs from paper and paste them on.

All kinds of figures and designs can be used and they are often cut from heavy paper. Black is always effective on all of the shades, but the black and white idea has almost gone out of style. A touch of black however, in almost anything will bring out a color all the more vivid for its use. These shades are used both for candles and lamps, both for the table lamps and the tall floor lamps, or piano lamps, and they are considered especially desirable for use in a bedroom. They can be carried out in the color scheme of the room or in a decided contrast just as the owner desires.

A person whose working day is 50 per cent work and 50 per cent blowing how good his work is, usually is worth only 50 per cent of his salary.

AROUND THE TOWN

The fuel problem is pressing hard upon most of us but there are various ways of solving it. One of the most original came to the attention of the writer a few days ago. It is not recommended for general adoption, however. A tenant rented a house in this city, one half of the building being occupied by the owner. Each half had a separate furnace. The tenant soon found that his furnace was throwing very little heat. One day when he was not at his ordinary vocation he gave the furnace the "once over". He found that the hot air leads all were in a state of disrepair except one which was in a state of absolute newness. This raised curiosity and he persued his investigations a little further. To his amazement he found that the new lead from his furnace led to a partition and through a register in it to one of the rooms of the landlord's side of the house. There was a warm session between landlord and tenant right after the discovery.

Customs change with the years.
Early in the Nineties any person using a bicycle when snow was on the ground would have been considered a candidate to have his head felt. Now-days bicycles are used all winter long if the depth of snow is not sufficient to interfere. On a hard packed snow-road a bicycle can be used as readily as on an earth road and many use this popular means of rapid transportation all the year round. The same is true of motor-vehicles. The first autos were considered so delicate that the first snow of the season sent them to the garages. Now motors plow through deep snow and only the roughest of winters can hold them up.

*****

In this connection it is easy to remember that the motor-truck of the Fire Department was purchased in the face of strong opposition. The opponents of the purchase admit now that the motor-driven apparatus has held its own. Only in the winter of its purchase did it get stalled. Snow as deep as fell that year had not been known in years. The readiness with which it can respond to a "still" or to any other alarm is appreciated now by all classes.

The fact that conditions of employment are beginning to approximate pre-bellum days must be realized no matter how hard it is for some per-

MOBILE NEWS STANDS TO HELP WAR VETERANS

(Special to Daily Mail, by Cross-Atlantic Newspaper Service.)
By Hugh Dryden

London, Nov. 28.—Wheeled news-stands perambulating the West End are a new feature of London street life. They originated from an attempt to solve the ex-soldiers' employment problem. Thousands of men have found after demobilization or discharge from the army that it is impossible to get back to their old civilian jobs, and many schemes, both official and unofficial, have been launched to help them earn a living.

An interesting instance of the latter kind is the Parading Publicity Company which has put a dozen of these mobile news-stands on the street manned exclusively by veterans of the war. The Manager of the Company says:

"We pay our men $12 a week and $3 for Sunday work. In addition, they get two and one-half per cent commission."

"So far, we have been successful, but with so few stalls it is obvious we are not paying our way. But there is a good Samaritan behind us, who is financing us in order to give these men a chance, and ultimately we hope to be self-supporting."

"The public have given us every sympathy. Many people now buy their periodicals from us, although we have only just started business." sons to grasp the fact. The lumber woods show the tendency more than any other line of labor activity. Wages have been cut almost in two the cut in most cases to go into effect after Christmas. Even with that reduction wages are not down to the level of the days "before the war." Conditions must change and the rapid fall in the price of foodstuffs will bring about the change more rapidly than will anything else. Lower prices will bring compensation in greater building activity and in increased construction work in many lines.

LAST OF THE DICKENS HAUNTS CLOSES DOORS

By London Daily Mail and C. A. N. S.
London, Dec. 1.—The Sceptre, near Piccadilly Circus, one of the last surviving of London's old shop houses, has closed its doors. For the farewell, the place was packed. Every inch of room in the old pews seemed to be occupied and the venerable mahogany tables bore a burden of tempting English food, tankards of foaming beer and bottles of crusted port. Charles Dickens, it is said, was a frequent customer and is supposed to have written part of the "Sketches by Boz" at a table in one of the upper rooms.

PRICE AND QUALITY

Everybody wants lower prices. Nobody wants them more than WASH-INGTON—but not at the expense of quality.

WASHINGTON'S prices are low, considering the quality, and will automatically go lower as costs decrease.

But whatever the price may be, the quality will always justify it.

For the WASHINGTON policy is to provide the best of food, service and sanitation at a reasonable price.
