WINTER LAYERS INCREASE RETURNS FROM POULTRY

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Why should we produce winter layers? Because there is an increasing demand, not only at home but abroad for poultry and poultry products. What has caused this great demand? There are several reasons which when taken collectively, are very convincing why such a shortage should exist in poultry and, of necessity poultry products.

Firstly, because Canadians are eating more eggs every year. Secondly, because there is a greater export demand for Canadian eggs and poultry to meet the demands in foreign countries—the latter having been depleted of their laying stock during the war. Thirdly, because of the high prices of feeds and the comparatively low prices of market poultry during the third and fourth years of the war, meant that a great many laying hens were killed off. Fourthly, because not sufficient attention had been given to the hatching of early chicks for winter layers. Consequently, the poultrymen found their returns were not sufficient to meet their expenses, and the increase in poultry raising has been very slow to what it might have been had there been sufficient profits realized out of the poultry industry.

While it is not intended to mislead you into the fact that big money can be made out of poultry and their products, yet this can be said, that your returns may be increased very materially by producing winter layers. The following results which were obtained on the Experimental Farm, Napan, from five of the best winter layers, also five of the lowest from October, 1919, to March 31, 1920, will bear this out.

The five best birds laid 413 eggs at a total cost of $8.21. The total value of eggs laid and sold for eating was $23.18, leaving a profit of $15.57. The five poorest laid a total of thirty-four eggs at a cost of $8.10 with a total value of $1.99, making a loss of $6.11 for the six months. Figuring on a basis of 100 hens like the first five, you have a profit of $312 against a loss of $122 from the latter. In computing the above, only the actual food consumed is taken into consideration—labor and interest on investment neglected. Now it can readily be seen that the winter layer is by far the more profitable hen to have. More especially when the high cost of feed is taken into consideration.

In order to produce profitable winter layers, we must select eggs for hatching from not only our most healthy and vigorous birds, but from our best laying strain. Hatch these along about the first of April and not later than the last of April. When the chicks are hatched, great care must be taken that the baby chicks do not get stunted, otherwise they will not be as good as later hatched birds at maturity. Keep brooders and brooder house clean, light and free from dampness and draught. Give them plenty of wholesome chick foods, such as baby chick scratch grain, baby chick grit, oyster shell, charcoal and sprouted grain. Keep an even temperature at all times during the early stages, for that is the most critical time in the development of the winter layer. Keep them growing well throughout the summer. Do not over crowd your house. Feed plenty of good growing feeds, such as grain mixture of 200 pounds cracked corn, 200 wheat 100 of oats, together with a dry mash mixture of 100 pounds bran, 100 corn meal, 100 crushed oats, 100 shorts and twenty pounds of beef scraps, keeping at the same time plenty of grit, oyster shell and charcoal where they can have access to it.

During September, select your most promising pullets from the flock and get them into winter quarters in order that they may become accustomed to their new surroundings. For winter quarters the house or pens should be light, free from draught or dampness and have plenty of fresh air. A good winter ration for the grain mixture is 200 pounds corn, 200 wheat, 100 oats, and 100 of barley and dry mash, 200 pounds screenings, 100 bran 100 shorts 100 cornmeal and twenty of beef scraps. Hens should always have plenty of grit, oyster shell and charcoal before them and in this way you can easily double your poultry profits.
