ONE FOR THE COMMODORE

A writer in the Chatham Commercial gets after our old friend Commodore Stewart in lively fashion in connection with the advice which he recently tendered to Mr. C. J. Morrissey, M. P. P. "to keep to the left". The correspondent points out that the genial Commodore did not always himself follow the advice which he now so generously tenders to young Mr. Morrissey. He says that although elected to the House as an independent in 1912, the Commodore bitterly opposed the late government, until the summer of 1916 when he suddenly flopped and became a patronage dispenser for the administration. As the correspondent puts it:

"One of the temptations which brought about that Northumberland disgrace was patronage to the newspaper, another was the control of patronage throughout the County, and a third doubtless was the promise of a corruption fund for the election, as evidenced by the fact that $2300 was received in Chatham from St. John to be used by the Government ticket."

After twitting the Commodore for disregarding the advice to keep to the left, which he now tenders to Mr. Morrissey, the correspondent goes on to say:

"I may also mention that one of the inducements he formerly had to oppose the Government was his vindictive hatred of the Hon. John Morrissey whom he persecuted in the bitterest way, and when that gentleman went out of the Government, Stewart considered himself free to flop, and flop he did. He became a Candidate, endeavoring to get to the right of the speaker, but the people had had enough of him, and he failed to get there. During the recent campaign he was wire pulling to get a nomination which he hoped would take him to the "right" but even the Conservative Convention would not have him, and a practically unknown man received at that Convention more than three times the number of votes he did. If he had less personal conceit and egotism he would ere this have learned that people in this county have no faith, trust or confidence in him, and that the better thing for him to do would in the future be less dishonest and more truthful in politics and in his newspaper."

Sydney Record: Hon. J. A. Calder, whose fondness for office and salary is much more pronounced than his love for principles, expresses himself as believing that "the time has come when everybody should be put in possession of all the facts of just what the Government has done, just what each party has done and is doing." Why not start with individuals? For instance, somebody familiar with the doings of the old Saskatchewan "machine" and with the manipulation of votes in the Dominion election of 1917 might put the people in possession of "all the facts" concerning the operations of this Calder person. As a "machine" operator Hon. Bob Rogers was a kindergartner compared with Hon. Jim Calder.

The International race in which two fishing schooners representing the United States and Canada are to compete, is being looked forward to with the greatest interest. The first race will take place off Halifax on Saturday of this week. The Canadians have selected a fast vessel of the famous Lunenburg fleet, while the Americans have chosen a crack sailer from the Gloucester fleet. The vessels will each be manned by a crew of twenty five men. The race promises to be fully as interesting as the International yacht race pulled off near Sandy Hook last summer.

Charlottetown Guardian: What are we doing to mould public opinion? Are the springs from which it is derived here pure and wholesome or are we letting it form itself on the streets, in schools that are not schools? We have our clubs, our organizations, our places of amusement. Public opinion is being formed in these. Of what kind is it? Are we dwelling on the frivolous only or are we looking to the future of our children and of our country. Our places of amusement are crowded our lecture halls, our literary societies, our mutual improvement societies, where are they?

The young men at Camp Panacooke, in the White Mountains, have an ingenious arrangement for wakening early. A frying pan on a nail; above it, another pan attached to a piece of string, that passes around a candle—the idea being to light the candle on retiring. When it burns down to the string, the upper pan is released and falls clattering to the lower one.

The return of Mr. J. W. Scovill in Charlotte will be very pleasing to the friends of the provincial government throughout the province. A successful business man of good old Liberal stock Mr. Scovill will prove a worthy representative of the progressive County of Charlotte. The victory of Mr. Scovill was one of the most notable achieved by any candidate in the recent election.

Messrs John Laing and Son, building contractors, of Carlisle and London, have written a letter to the "Builder", in which it is stated that "on a building contract we have in hand one bricklayer who has laid 28,000 bricks in 18 working days an average of 1,555 bricks a day. Further, the quality of the work is excellent." It has frequently been stated that 350 bricks a day is a reasonable output.

A society craze for things Spanish seems to be imminent in England. Two Spanish plays are running in London and Spanish singers and dancers are in great demand. Many fashionable women are wearing the high Spanish comb and one sees tentative attempts at the mantilla, or mantilla effects. All the new fashionable dances are said to show distinct leanings toward Spanish interpretation.

Germany fulfilled the terms of the Spa agreement for August and September by delivering to the Allies 1,936,865 tons of coal. That is good news if it indicates, as it would seem to indicate, that the Germans are abandoning the idea that treaties and agreements are merely so much waste paper.

More prisoners served terms for intoxication in the Westchester County, New York, penitentiary, during September than in any month within the last three years, according to officials. The increase was estimated at 25 per cent.

TOBACCO WILL NOT KILL GERMS

Rome, Oct. 28—Professor Puntoni, of Rome University has made some interesting experiments to ascertain the disinfecting effect of tobacco on bacilli usually found in the mouth and has exploded the theory that smoking is a safeguard against infection, an idea that dates back to the European plagues of the seventeenth century.

It was proved that tobacco smoke can only affect the weakest germs and then only after long exposure. The only germs liable to destruction in this way are the cholera bacillus and that of meningitis. It was absolutely impossible to kill typhoid fever and diphtheria germs by tobacco smoke. The weakest of these bacilli, the typhoid germ, was still alive after an hour, two very strong Tuscan cigars having been consumed without effect. The strongest tobacco could not kill the tuberculosis germ. The tobacco selected for the experiments included Tuscan cigars, Macedonia cigarettes and strong cut pipe tobacco. The smoke was blown into glass cases containing small pieces of thin paper soaked in germ-cultures such as the bacilli of cholera, influenza, diphtheria, typhoid fever, and meningitis.
