ARE YOU AWARE?

That the Antimony Deposits at Lake George, York County, New Brunswick, are the purest in the world?

That it is the second largest mineralized area of Antimony Ore in the World?

That Antimony is one of the most essential minerals?

That this is the only commercial Antimony Ore deposit in either the United States or Canada?

That Automobile Tires and Inner Tubes, Babbitt Metal, Solder, Collapsible Tubes, Paints—of the best quality—White Enamel Ware, such as modern bath tubs, etc., etc., Smokeless Powder, Battery Plates, Type Metal, Silverware, Britannia Metal, White Metal, Glass, Druggists' Rubber Sundries, Dyes—for textiles, of the fastest quality—and many other commercial necessities, are absolutely dependent on Antimony for their manufacture?

That high grade Rubber for Automobile Tires, Hospital Supplies, Rubber Boots, Surgeons' Gloves, Coats, etc., etc., cannot be made without Antimony Chemicals?

That the source of all true wealth is the earth?

That the enormous War Debts of Canada must ultimately be paid from this source, and not by repeated flotation of Bonds, to pay interest on Bonds, ad infinitum, thus piling mortgage upon mortgage?

That this great national wealth must be controlled by Canadians, and not be allowed to pass into foreign investors' hands, who at the present time are only too willing and anxious to purchase control, and have been repeatedly refused?

That it is the privilege and duty of every patriotic citizen to purchase some of these securities, and thus not only participate in the development of our natural resources, but at the same time derive handsome dividends from their investment?

NEW YORK WOMAN WAS A PREY TO VAGARIES

New York, Jan. 27.—A weird picture of a querulous old woman with obessions of being impoverished because of trifling sums spent on her invalid husband whose income amounted to $400,000 while she distributed gratuities out of all proportion to services performed, was painted of Mrs. Rosa E. Spang in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by Charles C. Lockwood, State Senator.

Mrs. Spang died June 21 last leaving an estate of $3,250,000, inherited from her husband, Charles M. Spang, shell manufacturer, of Pittsburg. He died on February 14, 1919. His total fortune approximated $8,000,000, half of which went into a trust fund for relatives, with provisions for its reversion to charities. On the day before Mrs. Spang's death she had her will drawn bequeathing the residue in trust for the founding of a home for "the relief of poverty and distress among children."

That will is being contested by her only daughter, Mrs. Mabel Spang Crome, of Copenhagen, Denmark, to whom was left an annuity of $10,000 by her mother which added to a legacy from her father, makes her total income $30,000 a year.

Collected Strange Objects.

Senator Lockwood who acted as Mr. Spang's attorney for many years described the idiosyncrasies of the testatrix, which on several occasions provoked serious family differences and almost ended in a separation between the Spangs. Mr. Spang had found in their apartments at the Waldorf photographs which aroused his displeasure and a miniature coffin. He destroyed them after warning his wife would have to cease collecting objectionable articles.

It was the habit of Mrs. Spang said Senator Lockwood, to invite strangers into her apartments to look over her collection. In October 1915, she was attacked and robbed of $1,000 worth of jewelry worn on her nightgown and Mr. Spang told his wife that it was her chance acquaintances who were responsible for the deed. He expressed fear that they would be black-jacked and killed if Mrs. Spang continued bringing strangers to their home and said he thought she was going insane.

When Mr. Spang learned his admonition was unheeded he called upon Senator Lockwood said the witness to prepare papers for a separation under which he would allow Mrs. Spang $12,000 a year, but at the last moment changed his mind about living apart as his physicians had advised him she was incompetent and he thought his friends would censure him if he left his wife. Senator Lockwood said the photographs which caused Mr. Spang's displeasure were "very obscene."

Again in the spring of 1916 testified Senator Lockwood another row took place, but the couple were reconciled by Mrs. Crome their daughter who had arrived from Europe. Mr. Spang threatened to leave his wife and she, although seventy-one years old at the time, told him to go ahead as she would marry a young man she was in love with.

"Mrs. Spang had taken this young man to Saratoga the previous summer and paid all his expenses," said Senator Lockwood. "Later Mr. Spang paid him $5,000 for the return of some foolish letters she had written him."

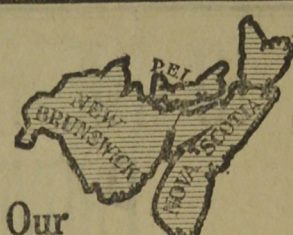

Objected to Cost of Tonic

After her husband suffered a stroke of paralysis, which left him blind and helpless. Mrs. Spang protested against expenditures in his behalf, and said they were on their way to the poorhouse unless some one economized. The lawyers showed her that Mr. Spang's income totalled $400,000 a year, while his bank balance approached $350,000, but Mrs. Spang was insistent that ninety cents spent for a tonic used by her husband each day was entirely too much.

"After making these protests Mrs. Spang would give a bellboy $1 as a tip for delivering her a two cent paper," continued Senator Lockwood. "She said she could not pay $12 a day for her rooms at the Waldorf, and then selected a suite costing $20. Another time she looked over the meal checks of nurses attending Mr. Spang and said they were gluttons. She gave the waiter $10 for bringing the checks to her. When the nurses heard of her complaint they were going to quit, and we had to increase their pay from $40 to $50 a week."

On many occasions Mrs. Spang expressed disappointment because her husband did not die, according to Senator Lockwood. She was afraid he would outlive her and thus prevent her from sharing his large fortune. She wanted his physician removed because he was prolonging Mr. Spang's life," said Senator Lockwood. The cost of keeping Mr. Spang at the Waldorf annoyed his wife, the witness said, and she was anxious to have him taken to a cheaper hotel.
