BRITAIN AND CANADA.

The solution of the unemployment problem in Great Britain continues to defy the best efforts of politicians, irrespective of party. Successive governments have striven in vain to provide the means of livelihood for millions, who are surplus to the nation's present industrial establishment. As has been the case in all countries since the war, promises of a quick panacea for all ills have been futile and have ended in disillusionment. It could not have been otherwise, for the root of the evil lies deeply embedded in world conditions beyond immediate human control. It cannot be suddenly extirpated, but only by patience and long, careful treatment can the social body be once more restored to perfect health.

The doubt arises if Britain can ever hope to provide adequately for her rapid natural growth in population. While it is true that the number of people employed is greater than in 1914, in spite of the present trade depression, it is questionable if British industry even in normal times can expand rapidly enough to keep pace with the growing demands of labor. In all probability the spectre of unemployment will reside permanently in the Old Country. A large number of citizens will always remain eager to emigrate to lands able to provide them with greater opportunities.

The problems of Britain and Canada are such that the one can supply the other with a satisfactory solution. Britain needs less, Canada more population. Only by increased man-power can the Dominion ever hope to rid itself of the crushing burdens of its railways and war debt. Fewer mouths to feed will do more than anything else to bring industrial peace to Britain and rid her of the danger of "red" agitators. Cannot these two countries co-operate in their own interests to devise a scheme whereby people of the same race and living beneath the same flag can be enabled to live where their talents can find the largest scope to develop? Even if it involves an outlay of capital, that can ill be spared at the present time, as an investment it would ultimately yield a rich return. It should not be difficult to launch a workable plan that would be both practical and profitable to both countries. When two people meet who are able to supply each others demands, good business is made easy. If the new Minister of Immigration and Colonization can initiate a joint conference that will lead to the desired results, he will perform a great service not only to Canada but to the Empire.

ONTARIO'S 4 POINT 4.

The Toronto Saturday Night in an editorial on the 4.4 beer legalized by the Government of Ontario a few months ago hands out the following interesting information:

"Ontario's new beer has been pronounced to be too dear and too thin by those who drink beer and too strong by those who know little or nothing about it. The Ferguson Government 4.4 got off to a good start, but it proved to be no Man O' War when it comes to a finish. People imagined that it would be a real beer, beneficial to the inner man and not hard to take. The contrary has proved the case. As for "kick" it is no better than the old stuff that was sold in the pop shops, and in consequence is being frowned down upon by beer drinkers, who very rightly argue that they can produce a brand of higher alcoholic strength at home at trifling cost, just as our forefathers did long ago.

"Our prohibition friends have no need to worry over 4.4. Beer drinkers are by the thousands turning to home brew which can be legally made and legally drunk. Not even visitors from the arid portions of the United States, if there are such, display an interest in Ontario's 4.4. "As everybody is dissatisfied with 4.4, including the prohibitionists who condemn it without drinking it and beer drinkers who condemn it after giving it a trial, it is up to the Tory Government to do something. The practical solution is beer that people will drink. In Alberta where they now have a sane temperance act it was found by experience that good beer is popular and has had a tendency to discourage the drinking of "hard" liquor. Ontario might do worse than adopt the Alberta Act."

HON. C. D. RICHARDS.

The appointment of Hon. Charles D. Richards of this city to the important portfolio of Lands and Mines in the Provincial Government has given great satisfaction to his friends here of all shades of political thought. It is not only a personal tribute to Hon. Mr. Richards but a great honor to the constituency of Fredericton, Marysville and Devon, which he represents in the Legislature. As leader of the Opposition in the last House he won the good opinion of the members on both sides by his urbanity, his fairness and unflinching courtesy in debate. Hon. Mr. Richards is a product of a rural parish of York County and has made his own way in the world in the face of many discouragements. He is a sound lawyer has plenty of energy, is thoroughly honorable and should make a most efficient minister of the Crown. As far as known there is not the slightest chance of opposition being offered to his return to the Legislature on October 3rd.

It looks as if the Provincial Government some time before the next provincial election will have to make some kind of a redistribution of seats in the Legislature. At the present time the Counties of Restigouche and Madawaska which have made substantial growth in recent years, have the same number of members as the smaller Counties of Queens, Sunbury and Albert, while the city of Moncton with its 21,000 population, returns but one member. This is certainly not as it should be and there will have to be a change, and in these days when economy is the watchword it may have to be made without increasing the total representation of the House.

The New York Mail and Express tells of a number of bartenders in that city who have lost several fingers of both hands during the past few years. One man who said that his duty was to draw beer for thousands who visited a concert hall, was told by physicians that his fingers had rotted off by the beer he had handled. The strange part of the story is that it happened in a country which has been under prohibition for the last seven or eight years and only what is called near beer is legally sold.

The City of Fredericton should wield some influence with the new Provincial Government. As the result of the late election it now has three resident members supporting the Government, including a cabinet minister. The City of Moncton with 21,000 inhabitants has but two, while Saint John with 50,000 has but four.

The Fredericton Exhibition is now in full swing and every effort should be made to put the attendance over last year's mark. It is a splendid show of great educational value, and nobody should miss it who is in a position to attend.

A. MURRAY & CO. TWO FINE BOOTHS AT EXHIBITION

Two booths at the exhibition which are greatly admired by everybody who have seen them, are those of A. Murray & Co. One booth is particularly attractive where beautiful dresses stylish coats and classy suits are shown. In fact everything that is necessary for stylish women in the way of coats in velours, marvella, novelty flannel and several other cloths are there. Some very pretty coats with fur collars and cuffs are shown while others have fur around the bottom and some very handsome plain coats, which catch the ladies' eyes. Then there are the dresses which have a prominent place on racks and on forms that show them off to advantage. There are one-piece dresses of all kinds in canton crepe, georgette, crepe back satin, balbriggan. Silent salesman displays gloves and hosiery in all the latest shades. There are scarves in tricolette, lace, and crepe de chine, powder compacts, hand bags, toilet goods, fancy and novel handkerchiefs, umbrellas, and other accessories, too numerous to mention can be seen in this wonderfully decorated booth which is ably looked after by Miss Stella VanBuskirk, who is in charge. She understands the many wants and tastes of the large number of ladies who daily visit this exhibit. There also is the fur booth where a charming young lady is demonstrating the latest and most stylish fur goods on the market, including coats of Hudson seal, Persian lamb, electric seal, racoon, and muskrat, all of which are offered for sale at the wholesale prices as they came direct from the largest manufacturing houses in Canada. Besides fur coats there are displayed in this handsomely laid out booth very pretty neck pieces and novelties in fur, which are much admired by the large number of ladies who continually linger about this popular exhibit.

Besides the wonderful display in the exhibition A. Murray & Co. conducts an up to date ladies' furnishing store on Queen Street.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE TOWN

A Trifle Vague.

"Wives buy most of Men's Underwear that we sell," said a salesman of a local department store, "and they seem to know little about the size their husbands need. Every day we have exchanges that are from two to four sizes too large or too small. The other day a lady came in and wishing to ascertain the size underwear her husband wore, stated, 'he wears a 15 collar.'"

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Winn of Lewiston, Me., are visitors to the city.
