R.C. GOLF ASSOC. TO CHARGE FEE TO SPECTATORS

Following Precedent Set in Old Country—Will Keep the Course Clear and Pay Expenses.

Toronto June 7—President C. A. Bogert of the Royal Canadian Golf Association has authorized the announcement that the association would give effect to a resolution passed at its annual meeting in 1925 that an entrance fee be charged to the course on which it was holding its amateur championship.

The championship is taking place this year on the course of the Toronto Golf Club with a part of the qualifying round on the adjacent Lakeview course to relieve the congestion which has been associated with the first day's play of amateur golf championships in Canada since the war when they have been held on well-known courses in large centres. A moderate charge of $1 a day or $3 for the week of the tournament was fixed by the Executive Committee.

Has Support of Club.

In adopting a policy of charging an entrance fee to the course on which the amateur championship is being held the association followed the example set by the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews. It secured also the consent of the directorate of the Toronto Golf Club which believed that it should give practical support to the policy since the revenue secured through the championship would be used to meet the expenses of the association's Green Section and to assist in the general development of the game.

HIGHBROW GOBS LIKE TO STUDY

New York, June 7—A third mate calling on "The Lady of the Lady" and "The Lay of the Last Minstrel" to add strength to his seagoing remarks is something new under the ocean sun.

Yet these are among the softening changes wrought by the American Merchant Marine Library association, which, according to its director, Carl W. Shattuck, has scattered a quarter of a million books aboard 75,000 ships riding the seven seas.

"Tankers bound for the Far East with oil, coalers off for the Pacific coast, fruit liners trading with South America—anything flying the American flag carries our little cargo of a box of 50 to 100 books along," said Mr. Shattuck.

Sometimes four months at a stretch without touching shore, the sailors of the chautie are thus able to alternate their "skipping on the decks" by "lying down below" with books that range in choice from a Meade's First Reader or a Zane Grey thriller to Wells' "Outline of History" or

HELEN WILLS OUT OF TENNIS THROUGH ILLNESS

Operated Upon for Appendicitis—Forbidden by Physicians to Play Before Autumn—Wimbledon Impossible

Paris, June 7—The hopes of all the United States that Helen Wills the California tennis star would wrest the world's tennis laurels from Suzanne Lenglen at the international hard courts tourney, now being played in Paris were dashed when Miss Wills was rushed to a hospital for an operation for appendicitis.

The operation was a complete success and attending physicians declared she was entirely out of danger. But Suzanne's title will rest secure this year so far as the Wills challenge is concerned for the doctors say it will be absolutely impossible for Helen to play at Wimbledon the end of June. In fact she will not be permitted to wield a racket again until fall.

Helen thinks otherwise. Even while she was on the way to the operating table she told one of her teammates that she would be "all right for Wimbledon".

"Maybe I will not be able to play in the Wightman Cup matches in England but I am sure I will be ready for Wimbledon."

The announcement that Helen's illness was diagnosed as appendicitis came as a great surprise even though it had been known that she was out of condition and not feeling in the least well. Her play in last week's Franco-American team matches and again on Wednesday in the first round of the international tournament against Madame Golding was far from top form. She looked tired pale and drawn.

The California girl herself thought she had overtrained. Last night Helen complained that she was not feeling well. Although she suffered much pain today she hoped until 4 o'clock that she would be able to meet Miss Bouman of Holland in the second-round singles.

The worn looking boxes that bring the "finished" library for exchange into the New York despatch office tell interesting stories of the men and the life aboard ship.

From a box off the "McNago" tumbled a half dozen Spanish text books and readers.

"The second mate married a Spanish girl" said Captain Joseph Davis, a former sea captain now connected with the library service. "He learned all the Spanish he knew from our books."

"Here are some grammars and books on 'How to Write.' They are for the young fellow on board—there's always at least one—who is going to sea just to write sea stories. They read Conrad, Capt. Risenberg, and Capt. McPhee."

MRS. MALLORY BEATEN BY YOUNG BRITISH GIRL

Defeat of the American Tennis Expert Came as a Shock to Her Supporters—Hard Drives.

London, June 7—Mrs. Molla Mallory suffered a surprising defeat in the North London tennis championship at the hands of a young English player, who would ordinarily not be reckoned in the same class as the United States ex-champion. She lost to Miss H. Woolrych by 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Woolrych's chief weapon is a hard-hit forehand drive. She started unsteadily and Mrs. Mallory seemed disposed to take it easy in the second set, and Miss Woolrych although apparently suffering from fatigue, won it. The last set was a struggle but the English player won it with the loss of four games.

Another United States player also was defeated in the person of Miss L. V. McQue. She had to encounter Miss Eileen Bennett, one of the most promising in the younger school of English players. By heavily chopped strokes to both corners of the court, she ran the first set to 8-10 and took the second at 6-4. Miss Bennett, who is an all-round player with a strong service rallied to take the third set by the same score.

She Could Never Do The Things Other Girls Did

Miss I. J. Ross, Scollard, Alta., writes:—"I am only twenty years old, but have suffered from heart palpitation and nerve trouble for several years."

I could never do the things other girls did, that is, in the line of sports, skating, etc., and could never depend on myself at work.
