Only a very few of the old timers who used to turn up at the annual meetings of the Farmers' and Dairy-men's Association were in evidence in the gathering which assembled at the Normal School gymnasium during the present week. One of these was Mr. W. W. Hubbard of this city, who it is said was present as a boy at the organization meeting held at the Burton Court House half a century ago. Mr. Hubbard has been active in the work of the Association almost continuously since that time, and for years held the post of corresponding Secretary. Others who were prominent in the Association in its early days include Mr. Henry Wilmot of this city, who officiated for some years as treasurer, Col. H. Montgomery-Campbell of this city, and Mr. George E. Fisher of Chatham. Mr. Fisher was present at the convention this week and while here took occasion to look up his uncle, Mr. James Frink, one of Fredericton's octogenarian citizens.

Some comment has already been made in these columns of the absence of the coon-skin overcoats among the farmers attending the convention. The reason for this is not very far to seek. The old stock of coonskin coats, so common among the tillers of the soil twenty-five and thirty years ago, have become worn out and have not been replaced. In the old days a good coon-skin coat could be bought as low as fifty dollars, but today a poor one will cost about three times that amount. In other words the advance in coon-skin coats has been out of all proportion to the advance in the price of farm produce, and consequently the farmers have been obliged to indulge in something cheaper and less comfortable on a cold morning.

While a farmer decked out in a nice coonskin overcoat would be quite a novelty today the Mail a few days ago ran into a man from an up-river parish of York County, whom we venture to say was wearing about the largest and about the nicest thing in the way of a fur coat ever seen in the Fredericton market. The gent referred to is about six feet and a half tall, stout in proportion, and he had an overcoat which almost came to his heels. This coat was not made of coonskins but of plucked beaver which comes pretty close to the deluxe standard in the fur coat line. There were a lot of beaver skins in this garment, and they had evidently been selected with great care as they seemed to blend perfectly.

The Mail is in receipt of an interesting letter from Dr. B. C. Foster, former principal of the Fredericton High School, who with Mrs. Foster is this winter enjoying the balmy breezes of the Mediterranean at a little village in the South of France. They will remain there until March 10th when they will sail for Sicily to spend a week or two. They will afterwards make a tour of Italy, visiting Naples, Rome, Florence, Milan, and other famous cities, after which they will return to Paris. They plan to embark for home by way of Cherbourg, reaching here about May 1st.

Although people travelling in European countries see many new and wonderful things it does not slacken their interest in the happenings of the old home town. Now listen to what Dr. Foster says: "We have received the first consignment of The Daily Mail, two bundles, which arrived last night. You may be sure we were delighted to hear from our home town and enjoyed the news very much, especially the items about Miss McAdam's jubilee, and Mr. James M. Palmer's son, Kenneth, winning the Rhodes scholarship. We were also much amused to note that our former grocer, had developed into a political poet, who slings a nasty quill. The civic political pot appears to be boiling fiercely—I would not mind if it should boil over if it should result in more economy."

(Dr. Foster was for years associated with Dr. J. M. Palmer, father of the Rhodes Scholar, on the staff of the local High School.)

A little further on Dr. Foster says: "I suppose the folks in Fredericton have been reading of the dreadful floods in England and different parts of Europe, and have been commiserating us, but their sympathy has been wasted as during the three weeks we have been here there has been only one rainy day. There is continual sunshine, the weather like our finest day in June in New Brunswick, and the nights cool. We are very nicely situated here. Eze is a small village situated on the Mediterranean shore between Nice and Monte Carlo, with which it is connected by train or rail. The shore is very bold, the cliff rising some thousands of feet, dotted by chateaus and villas, surrounded by gardens, making the most picturesque scenery I ever saw."

AUSTRALIAN
UNDER FIRE

Ottawa, Jan. 23—Fernand Rinfret, (Liberal, of St. James-Montreal), in the house debate on the address Friday, charged that Premier King had been misrepresented during the election campaign in Ontario.

Mr. Rinfret cited what he termed to be typical election statements: that a vote for King meant Quebec domination; that Premier King was head of a pro-whiskey government; that he was an emissary of the United States. "The victory of the Liberal Party in Quebec," exclaimed Mr. Rinfret, "was not a victory of prejudice; it was a victory over prejudice."

Mr. Rinfret felt that the government had now sufficient authority to go on with the business of the country. He thought, in regard to the tariff, that the opening of the new markets was of vastly more importance than the disposition of high tariffs.

Treaty Attacked

The Australian Trade Treaty was under Conservative attack. H. J. Barber of Fraser Valley, B. C. urged its immediate abrogation. Mr. Barber asserted that the dairy and poultry industries in his constituency were on the verge of ruin; and the treaty should be abrogated.

A. U. G. Bury of Edmonton East, said the people of his constituency had rejected the treaty because they felt that butter at three cents a pound cheaper did not mean anything unless people had the money to buy it.

F. W. Graham (Liberal, Medicine Hat), thought that the government in reducing the customs duty on automobiles, should consider the imported light car. He felt that something should be done to prevent Canadian wheat being milled in bond while it was passing through another country.

CANADA HOUSE
BY THE PRINCE

London, Jan. 22—The Prince of Wales, attended by his equerry, Sir Godfrey Thomas, visited Canada House at Trafalgar Square, the Canadian Government's headquarters in London, this afternoon. The visit was quite informal but it perhaps would be scarcely accurate to say that business in the building was uninterrupted thereby. At any rate it was not intended that the ordinary business conducted in Canada House should be interrupted by the visit.

His Royal Highness chatted for a time with the Canadian High Commissioner, Hon. P. C. Larkin, in the commissioner's own room, which is of a spaciousness that might be deemed symbolical of the expansive area of the Dominion itself.

Among the more sedentary occupations is being a coal conferee.

KING TO VISIT
PRINCE ALBERT
NEXT WEEK

Ottawa, Jan. 22—Premier Mackenzie King is still confined to his home with a severe cold, but his recovery is expected by next Monday or Tuesday. It was made known today, that whether or not the Conservatives put a candidate in the field against him in Prince Albert the Prime Minister will go out to the Saskatchewan riding Gossip around the Conservative headquarters indicates that the seat will be contested if only for the purpose of delaying the entry of the Prime Minister into the House. Were there no contest, he would be able to take his seat in Parliament on February 4. A contest would postpone this by probably three weeks.

MAY RETIRE
IN NOVA SCOTIA

Halifax, Jan. 22—It was announced today that when the Legislature of Nova Scotia assembles next month the government may take steps to introduce a measure designed to restore the Lemieux Act so far as Nova Scotia is concerned, re-investing the Federal Government with power to exercise the provisions of the act in the east of industrial disputes. The Lemieux Act (or Industrial Disputes Act) was declared ultra vires by the privy council more than a year ago, as infringing upon his rights of the provinces. The legislation would also involve the repeal of the "Industrial Peace Act" passed by the last parliament.
